Mere 'Funny Money' Proposal

With the Douglas Social Credit system now one of the burning issues in public affairs in Alberta, The Bulletin publishes herewith the opinions of two men who have studied the subject, the one against, the other finding much good, in Major Douglas' theories. Their articles are taken from The New Republic, advanced weekly published in New York, and are contained in its issue of February 27. George A. Novack, who says the Douglas system answers none of the problems of today, is a former member of the staff of E. P. Dutton and Company who is now engaged on a history of American philosophy since the Civil War. A. R. Orage, who takes the opposite view, and who died in London last November aged 61, was for fifteen years editor of the English publication, The New Age. At the time of his death he was the editor of The New English Weekly. He was an author of note, among his works being "Friedrich Nietzsche; The Dionysian Spirit of the Age," and "An Alphabet of Economics." He was highly regarded as an economist in Great Britain.—EDITOR.

1.—It Answers Nothing

By GEORGE A. NOVACK

SINCE the war in Europe, and the crisis of 1929 in America, a multitude of monetary schemes have budded in people's brains. These schemes stem from all sorts of social roots and accordingly vary widely in radical content. The more radical propose some drastic substitute for the gold standard. Social Credit, commodity money, index numbers, energy units and what-not have been led forward to replace the golden calf.

Social Credit, the brain child of Major C. H. Douglas, an English engineer, is perhaps the most conspicuous of these "funny money" proposals. It has already circumnavigated the British Empire and taken residence in this country. To his disciples Major Douglas is the Darwin of present-day economics. They cry: "Adam Smith for Captitalism, Karl Marx for Communism, Major Douglas for Economic Democracy." They have even rather immodestly proclaimed themselves to be a Fourth International, the legitimate heirs of Marx, more truly Marxian than the Communists.

Do not, however, mistake the Social Creditors for Red revolutionists. They are pure monetary reformers who contemplate nothing more violent than "a bookkeeping revolution." According to Mr. Gorham Munson: "No confiscation, no expropriation, no 'nationalizing' of banks, no class war, no political revolution is proposed—nothing but the transformation of finance from a myth to an accurate mirror of industrial facts." The consequences of this bookkeeping revolution will be the distribution of plenty and leisure to all. The chief objection Mr. Munson says he has encountered to the Douglas prophecy is that it is too good to be true. It is—but there are more serious objections.

Social Credit theory is compounded of mythical history, superficial economics and utopian politics. Social Credit writers first extract their history and theory of money from two equally unreliable sources: etymology and their imaginations. For example, from the trivial philological fact that the root of pecuniary comes from the Latin word for cattle, pecus, Douglas assumes the first form of money to have been, quite simply, leather tokens manufactured by the owners of cattle for purposes of direct barter. There are four errors in this one statement. First, cattle were but one among many commodities (wheat, wampum, slaves, iron, gold, silver) used as money in primitive societies. Second, these early forms of money were not worthless tokens of wealth but commodities possessing their own intrinsic values which they retained after they became money-commodities. Third, money did not originate in barter, but out of the extension of community production and exchange. Fourth, money was not the invention of owners of wealth for their personal convenience. It was a social necessity imposed upon them by the very nature of commodity production and exchange.

The Social Creditites carry over these errors in explaining the nature of later forms of money: paper currency and credit. Douglas ascribes the beginnings of both to the English goldsmith's custom of issuing receipts for more gold than he had in his possession. This fable does not even pretend to explain how the precious metals have become universally acceptable money nor why one nation after another has allowed itself to be robbed for centuries by credit-creating bankers.

ORIGINS UNLIKE

As a matter of fact, paper money and credit money had dissimilar origins. Paper money (currency and bank notes) grew out of the state substitution of paper tokens

2.—On the Contrary

By A. R. ORAGE

EVERYONE — at least every public speaker—is familiar with the type of critic who sits at the back of the hall throughout the lecture, taking notes of those sentences or phrases that will afford him the best opportunities of contradiction from some predetermined point of view. At the end he rises, reads out these disconnected statements and ridicules each in turn to his own applause. I am irresistibly reminded of such objectors by Mr. Novack's performances in his remarks upon Major Douglas' "Bookkeeping Revolution." He has not paid his subject the tribute of troubling to understand it, and but for the immense importance of the issues raised by Douglas I should hardly pay his criticisms the respect of a refutation.

Extensive as his superficial acquaintance with Social Credit discussion may appear, Mr. Novack betrays three disqualifications for the task he has undertaken. First, he has not grasped the argument he pretends to dismiss; second, he shows no clear understanding of the nature and function of money systems; and third, his article is not an evaluation of Social Credit theory, but Communist propaganda.

As to the first, I can confidently say that if Mr. Novack had presented his case under other names and phrases I should have doubted if it could be a criticism of Douglas, with whose work I have been personally associated for many years. Certain of Mr. Novack's statements, moreover—such as that "In addition to controlling all the functions of money, the Social Creditites melt all its forms into one shapeless mass" and that "They see only one class antagonism in capitalist society, the antagonism between finance and industrial capital"—are positively irrelevant to anything with which I am acquainted in Social Credit literature.

"The Social Creditites imply . . . that bankers create loan credits out of thin air." Is this true? It is and at this day of the world I am almost ashamed to repeat so elementary an item of general knowledge. Bankers' loans are merely promises that cannot and must fulfil. Not only "in extraordinary circumstances like the World War," but also "in normal circumstances, bank credits are . . . ultimately based upon the continuous production and exchange of commodities" —or rather upon the expectation of the same. That is, they are based upon the total productivity of the whole community, as a going concern; they are instruments of the social credit. Every bank loan is a license issued to the community to continue or extend its economic existence. The policy which governs the issue of those licenses dictates absolutely how the economic life shall be carried on, whether in the production and consumption of bread or of high explosives.

Major Douglas has shown that present bank loans are not only misapplied to undesirable kinds of production but are so issued as to create a chronic insufficiency of money, which is itself largely a cause of the misapplications. Briefly, money is issued by the banks only to finance production. The official theory is that all money issued for production becomes purchasing power in someone's hands, and so pays the prices of the goods or services produced; but in practice it becomes purchasing power at a slower rate than it produces prices at market.

The result of the boom is therefore a slump. Major Douglas has here provided with the simplest and most irrefutable explanation to date of "the fact that capitalist production runs in cycles and breaks out into crises at periodic intervals," which, according to Mr. Novack, he "fails to account for."

WORLD SLUMP

Mr. Novack is even reduced to quoting as an authority the pair behind Mr. Gallakeli, who, in the middle of a world slump teem-

CIVILIZATION FACES REFORM, ASSERTS CHASE

Transition From Private Capitalism to New System Now Under Way

ATLANTIC CITY, March 9.—A stout foundation for the greatest civilization ever conceived is being developed in the western world as it enters a period of economic transition from private capitalism to some new system "more consistent with the imperatives of a high energy culture," Stuart Chase, economist declared at the National Education Association meeting here.

Outlining eight physical facts of existing conditions as he sees them, Chase said that under these conditions thrift and invention have produced an economy of abundance. This economy, he said, "is trying to function in the confines of a financial system laid down when energy and invention down in their infancy . . . a financial system founded on scarcity."

The eight facts he cited as:

1. "The growth of inanimate energy.
2. "The growth of invention.
3. "The decline in man-hour costs while costs in terms of money have been pegged by monopoly and waste.
4. "The increase in technological unemployment.
5. "The network of specialization which has destroyed local self-sufficiency.
6. "The halting of the population curve.
7. "The development of the productive plant to a capacity far in excess of market value.
8. "The saturation of foreign trade, due to the exporting of energy and invention of so-called backward nations."

MONEY EXPERT SEES NO DOOM IN VANCOUVER

Bradshaw Says Situation Grave But Not Insurmountable

VANCOUVER, March 8—No recommendation for reduction of interest rates on Vancouver's bonded debt is contained in a report on the city's financial condition submitted to the city council today by Thomas Bradshaw, Toronto financial expert. The report indicates that, although the situation presents some grave problems, they are by no means insurmountable.

Mr. Bradshaw surveyed the situation on the invitation of Mayor G. G. McGeer at the request of a meeting of the city's bondholders, called to consider the mayor's proposal for suspension of 50 per cent of interest payments.

He found the city's difficulties are caused chiefly by conditions through which all Canadian municipalities are passing and, except in a few cases, are handling successfully. He reported Vancouver's chief fault was it had not made the same effort as other municipalities to collect its revenues.

Mr. Bradshaw, president of the North American Life Assurance Company, stated the city had made a mistake in cancelling the 1934 tax sale and the whole effect had been that collection of the city's normal revenues has been unquestionably deferred.

TENTATIVE BUDGET

The report suggests means of effecting greater receipt of civic revenues and proposes savings and sources of additional revenues. It contains a tentative budget for the city for 1935, based on the assumption expenditures will not surpass

WOMEN ASKED SEX SUPPORT

MONTREAL, March 9—An appeal to all thoughtful women to support and defend the workers of their own sex was made by Mrs. Dumont A. Wright, president of L'Association des Femmes Conservatrices, in an address on Women's Rights.

Depriving women of the right to be employed would be unjust to men as well as to themselves, said. In many families the "head of the house" could not earn enough to provide the necessities of life and his wages must be supplemented by those of his wife or daughter. The speaker strongly advocated equal pay for equal work.

STORMS DELAY GREAT LINERS

HALIFAX, March 9—A second storm delayed ship, the liner Duchess of Bedford, reached harbor today after the Danish collier Trode had brought word of another overdue steamer partly disabled on the Atlantic.

A full 24 hours behind time, the liner brought into port two women injured as she bucked heavy weather on the crossing from England. Her ankle broken in a fall on the deck, Mrs. E. M. Fisher bound for Burnaye Lodge, Invermere, B.C., was taken to hospital.

Loyal Troops To Start Drive On Struma River

Government Planes and Big Gun Divisions Engage Macedonians—Advance on Salonika Declared Imminent

GENEVA, March 9.—The dispute between Bulgaria and Turkey has been officially declared off through friendly intervention of the League of Nations which led to a settlement, it was announced today in an official communique of the League.

ATHENS, March 9.—Rumors published abroad today that Athens had been bombarded by rebel warships are regarded as completely unfounded. Rumors that the government of Premier Tsaldaris had resigned also were entirely without basis.

ROME, March 9.—A statement published abroad that Italy is behind the Greek revolution was called "absurd" by a government spokesman this morning.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 9.—Foreign Minister Tewfik Rushdi Bey today gave reassurances of Turkey's "sincere attachment to peace and a firm intention to safeguard it."

Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press.

ATHENS, March 9.—Greek government planes and artillery engaged the Macedonian rebels today and government sources here declared a drive on the Struma river area was about to begin. General George Kondylis, the government's minister of war, left Salonika for the front. The weather had cleared.

There had been reports of a rebel advance upon Salonika being imminent, possibly marking a climax in the week-old civil war, but apparently the government decided to step in with its own offensive.

The movement out of Salonika was accompanied by a bombardment from the air upon the rebel stronghold of Siderokastron, 10 miles south of Kuiata, on the Greco-Bulgarian frontier at 8:30 a.m. Rebel artillery answered the first bombardment with brisk fire although apparently without effect on government planes. Reports said this was followed by a second bombardment of the stronghold.

HORSE THIEVES GET WARNING

CALGARY, March 9 — Horse thieves, who in the old days often died with their boots on and at the end of a rope strung over a convenient tree-limb, are free of death threats today but severe prison sentences are in store for them if they continue to operate on the range lands of southern Alberta.

Judge W. A. Macdonald issued a warning to the marauders of the range Friday when he sentenced Turner Paul, a Duchess district rancher, to nine months imprisonment. Paul was convicted of stealing a gelding, branded, from a ranch near Brooks.

Horse stealing has increased of late, and the district court judge warned he could impose a sentence of 14 years imprisonment for such an offense.

FINES ADDED TO INJURIES

CROYDON, England, March 9 — A motorcyclist, William Thomas Baker, who had spent five months in hospital after a road accident which he could not remember, and who now has a paralyzed arm which may have to be amputated, was fined $100 and $42 costs and his license suspended as a result of the accident today.

SASKATCHEWAN ELEVATOR BURNS

NOKOMIS, Sask., March 9—Ogilvie's elevator here, some 15,000 bushels of wheat stored in it, a coal shed and the elevator warehouse were destroyed in a fire here late Friday afternoon. A stock of flour and a quantity of feed were saved while loss was covered by insurance.

GREEK REVOLT COSTLY IN LIFE AND WOUNDED

Thousands Reported Killed—Salonika Bombarded —People Panic Stricken

LONDON, March 9. — The Sofia correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph last evening said:

"The Greek revolution has taken a grave turn with thousands reported killed and wounded.

"Salonika was bombed from the air and bombarded from the sea, and the population was stated to be panic stricken.

"Fighting is continuing. The rebels have fortified the left bank of the Struma river and have landed men from warships in the Gulf of Orfani.

"Many islands in the Aegean Sea are in the hands of the rebels, who have reported to have seized several merchant ships.

"The rebel forces are now understood to number over 100,000. It is obvious their leaders are preparing for a long struggle."

A later report from the Sofia correspondent of the agency said:

"Some hundreds of rebels crossed the frontier during the day in the Petritch and Nverokop region."

A naval battle which may settle the fate of the rebellion on the sea was expected momentarily, the report said.

MEXICAN PRELATE IS POLICE VICTIM

HELD IN LONELY PARK, THEN PUT INTO COLD JAIL

Archbishop, Arrested On Minor Charge, Exhausted After 24-Hour Ordeal.

MEXICO, D.F., March 9—Holy Inconmenicado nearly 24 hours, Archbishop Pascual Diaz was released Friday afternoon after being ordered to pay about 100 pesos (about $27.50) fine for violating Mexico's religious laws.

The leader of the Catholic Church of Mexico, whose mysterious disappearance Thursday stirred fears he had been kidnapped or deported, was accused of officiating at religious services outside the Federal District.

Apprehension among Catholics regarding the Archbishop's whereabouts ended with the announcement of his liberation.

EXHAUSTING ORDEAL

Exhausted from his long ordeal, the Archbishop entered automobile upon reaching home last night. He said: "As we were returning from the festival at La Villa (Virgin) near one and that of two priests were stopped by agents of the ministry of the interior and traffic police, who alleged traffic violation. I and Padre Jose Ortega Wing were requested to enter the agents' car.

"We were taken to a lonesome part of Chapultepec park, where we sat in a car for two hours." Mgr. Diaz said. "About 11 p.m. a police patrol arrived and I and four friends and the chauffeur were forced to enter the car. We were taken to the sixth district police station."

JAILED ALL NIGHT

"We passed the night incommunicado, sleepless and sitting in chairs. We were not even served food and suffered from the cold.

"This afternoon we were taken to the ministry of the interior, where I was formally charged with violating the laws.

"I explained I was only a guest at the La Visitation festivities and did not know that it would cost 100 pesos. However, they gave me an unlimited time to pay the fine."

The archbishop said he was under a physician's care last night, said to be suffering from severe cramps and that a rest period of 24 hours in jail.

The ministry of interior in a statement last night said Diaz and four others who accompanied him had been released after admitting various violations of the religious laws and promising not to repeat them.

those of 1934—stating, in fact, that an increase should not be tolerated.

Revenue, especially overdue tax revenue, now amounting to $10,-970,495, should be more effectively collected, the report continued. Indebtedness is an important contributing factor to the city's temporary difficulties.

INTEREST NOT HIGH

Mr. Bradshaw did not refer directly to Mayor McGeer's demand for reduction of interest rates, but he declared the average rate of interest, on the city's total debt at present, is not high in relation to that of other municipalities here or in Great Britain.

Cheap money for legitimate purposes can be obtained in abundance provided credit and debt refunding are preserved, the report states. New Brunswick, a few days ago, obtained a five-year loan at 2.94 per cent and recently Canadian municipalities borrowed at from 2 to 3½ per cent.

The suggested budget provides a reserve of $1,994,717 for non-collection of revenues and includes one-half the annual sinking fund payment. It is still short $1,066,817, and to meet this shortage, Mr. Bradshaw recommends that the British Columbia government be asked for $800,000.

ADDITIONAL REVENUE

In addition, some additional revenue might be suggested, including $175,000 increased license fees, a 10 per cent tax on revenues, totalling $600,000, a $250,000 increase in water rates, a $250,000 reduction in the school budget, and $34,961 reduction in sinking fund contributions on unexpended capital balances.

The city's Sea Island airport, which cost $575,554, and which is operating at a loss, should be discontinued, the report made by Mr. Bradshaw suggests, unless it can be disposed of, the report states.

Legislature Demands Bondholder Approval

VICTORIA, March 9—"It is not the intention of the British Columbia government to approve of a measure authorizing the city of Vancouver to postpone a portion of interest charges without the approval of the bondholders," Premier T. D. Pattullo told the legislature last night.

"I think that the mayor of Vancouver went about the handling of this situation in the wrong way and that if he had followed the course which was adopted by some of the smaller municipalities he would have found himself in a happier position," he added.

ON WRONG COURSE

"The first member for Vancouver-Burrard (Mayor G. G. McGeer) questions the integrity of intention of the minister of finance in his financial proposals. But there is a right way and a wrong way to do a thing, and the mayor of Vancouver, in my judgment, adopted the wrong course.

"The difference between the minister of finance and the mayor of Vancouver is that the minister of finance is not only a student of theoretical financial economy but is thoroughly versed and understands the practical end, while the mayor of Vancouver, who has had no practical experience, indulges in flights of imagination without understanding the practical end.

HOPELESS SITUATION

"In listening to the observations of the first member for Vancouver-Burrard, who is the mayor of Vancouver, I was struck with the fact that he states the city of Vancouver is unable to carry on within the jurisdiction which is now there, and that it is necessary to come to the legislature for enlarged powers. In fact he states that the position of the city of Vancouver is hopeless without getting from the province through action by the government and the legislature.

NEEDLESS MONEY SOARING

"Notwithstanding this fact we hear him delivering an attack upon the minister of Finance because the Minister made it plain that I have upon numerous occasions, that in the province of British Columbia, peculiarly function and successfully carry out responsibilities which are peculiarly and exclusively essential that there shall be a redefinition of jurisdictions as between the Dominion and the provinces in respect to revenue and taxation.

"It is all very well to soar into the clouds in nebulous theory, but we are face to face wit ha practical condition. That condition this government is facing."

Urges African Party Merger

JOHANNESBURG, March 9—Tielman Roos, until recently a prominent figure in South African politics, yesterday recommended to his followers that they abandon the idea that they merge with the government United Party in the interests of the country.

Formerly a leader of the Transvaal Nationalist party, a minister of justice and a member of the appeal court, Roos at one time was a powerful leader in the union. He was largely responsible for South Africa leaving the gold standard and following sterling.

Unofficial World Parley Success

LONDON, March 9—Specific proposals for strengthening the League of Nations, the Treaty of Paris and the restoration of world prosperity by the stabilization of currencies, reduction of tariffs and settlement of governmental debts were unanimously approved by Sir Philip Murray Butler's unofficial 10-power conference, the Columbia university president announced Friday.

Dr. Butler spoke enthusiastically of the conference results, but declined to say whether he would call together a similar official conference could also be successful.

Social Credit . . . For And Against

for metal money. Credit, on the other hand, developed wherever payments in commercial transactions were postponed and debtor-creditor relationships were set up and maintained; that is, in close connection with the growth of commerce and the capitalist mode of production. Douglas confuses their different origins and functions because banks issue both credit and currency notes. He has the temerity to declare that "the epoch-making event of credit creation has probably gone unnoticed until the present time." He has providentially appeared to correct the oversight.

In addition to confusing all the functions of money, the Social Creditites melt all its forms into one shapeless mass. They regard paper money and precious metals, cash and credit, national and international money in all their metamorphoses as equally arbitrary creations of state institutions or individuals, having no objective basis of value or inherent necessity in social production and exchange.

This disregard for the various forms and functions of money is accompanied by an incomparable similarity. International economists and financial relations, which play a leading role in domestic credit conditions, seem thoroughly unimportant and accidental to them. Out of such historical fictions and theoretical fallacies do the Douglasites fashion Social Credit.

The rest of their economic wisdom is summed up in two phrases: "the money power" and "the flaw in the price system" (their polite pseudonym for capitalism). To the Social Creditites, the bankers are Public Enemy Number One. His racket is the monopoly of credit that enables him to regulate the volume of money, dominate and levy tribute on industry. There is only one class antagonism in capitalist society, the antagonism between finance capital and industrial capital, whose interests they consistently confound with the interests of the consumer. That is why the Single Tax was "only the frank expression of the hate of the industrial capitalist." He landed proprietor, who appears to him as a useless encumbrance, a superfluity in the machinery of the harmonious whole of bourgeois production," so Social Credit formulates the hatred of the capitalist class for its parasitic agents for the power to finance capital, which threatens to devour them.

DATES FROM WAR

The Social Creditites imply, where they do not assert, that industrial capital "has nothing to do with air, is this true? Not except under extraordinary circumstances like the World War, which endanger the very existence of capital. Major Douglas' conception of finance dates entirely from the war period. In normal circumstances finance capital is invested on some security which, whatever its form, is ultimately based on the continuous production and exchange of commodities.

Whence do the crises of overproduction arise? Douglas replies: "Interrupt and paralyze this process, arise!" The Social Creditites first stamper. "The Bankers conspire," say, and then shout, "The Flaw in the Price System." Bankers have no use in point. At best, however, this serves to explain the occurrence of crises and credit crises. The universality of the present crisis, affecting every sphere of production, industrial and capitalist, agriculture, the magnitude of its effects, and the helplessness of the governments to cope with it, all to the silliness of blaming the crisis on the machinations of the money power.

FLAW IN SYSTEM

Is it, then, caused by the flaw in the price system? According to Douglas, it is. Major Douglas' great discovery. This flaw is presumably demonstrated by the A plus B theorem, which proves that the chronic tendency toward a deficiency of purchasing power. Douglas is not a theoretical economist, brains, but the accounting system. "The accounting system is remarkable for imperfections, wars and crises. The trouble is that incomes are distributed by financial organizations instead of consumption. The whole monstrous mess arises from an error in bookkeeping."

This explanation of crises by a flaw in the price system has a few flaws in itself. It fails to account for the fact that capitalist production runs in cycles and breaks out in crises at periodic intervals. Like all the New Economists, the Social Creditites either dodge this question by saying that only the present paradox of poverty amidst plenty is an unprecedented phenomenon, or they deny that there is one, or else they try to solve it by reference to the credit cycle.

POVERTY IN PLENTY

However, even before the Socialists appeared, our first American economist, Benjamin Franklin, had pointed out the possibility of poverty amidst plenty. Nor can the cause of over-production crises be traced to the financial system. The fact that crises first manifest themselves in a contraction of credit induces the Social Creditites to blame their occurrence on the bankers. They do not see that the banker is not an independent potentate and his contraction of credit is only a sign that the crisis has already begun.

The credit cycle is only the flywheel, not the generator, of the periodical crises. The roots of the crisis lie deeper than the Social Creditites care to look, in the one sphere they held sacrosanct, capitalist production itself. The misguided attempt to confuse their different origins and functions because banks issue both credit and currency notes, and the further temerity to declare that "the epoch-making event of credit creation has probably gone unnoticed until the present time." ing with goods, and with people without money to buy them, looked through five different professional economists and failed to find "the exact location of any flaw in the price system." You don't find the flaw in a flow; you cannot "locate" the point at which a flow begins. Major Douglas has indicated many of the causes contributory to the appearance of prices and retardation of effective purchasing power; it is impossible, however, to point, all the fact that the overall discrepancy exists is simply not in question, and that allows of no remedy except to create new markets (by incurring debts more or less unpayable) and repeat the disaster upon an even greater scale.

CAN'T BE SOLVED

If the "contradictions in capitalism," which may be summed up as the failure of capitalism to produce profitably without distributing adequately, could not be solved by this means, they could not be solved together (and would be inevitably altogether

No monopoly is comparable in power with the monopoly of money. It is the power of the capitalist class as a whole to monopolize the issue of credit. It can obtain possession of everything else in the world, as in fact, all the means of production in the Western nations are now passing into the virtual ownership of the banks. That could be prevented by no other monopoly, not even of the monopoly of land.

Imbued with the Marxian fallacy that the money-system is merely the symbolism of commodities and property-relations, Mr. Novack begins with a string of loose generalizations about money, based upon one of the most glaring non-sequiturs in "Das Kapital"—that money grew out of the necessities of exchange alone. In historical fact, the origins of money are also involved with magic, and with the rulership of the state, no less than with the exchange of commodities. I can only counsel Mr. Novack to think again, and for himself, upon this subject.

For money, and especially in its developed form of credit, is the supreme executive and initiative instrument in the civilized state as the sword is the arm of the militarist of all governments, including communist and fascist governments, is the symbol of their authority and wisdom to control, and not to be controlled by, it.

It is futile to the last of Mr. Novack's disqualifications for delivering a considered verdict upon the Social Credit proposals on the subject with the inflexible prejudice of a communist theorist. Dr. Douglas is quite up to advance that the Social Credit movement is an enemy, and although that enemy is temporarily in league with fascism, he believes it will ultimately join the fascist forces. He is wrong. But Mr. Novack does not believe in, any movement that he cannot place upon one side or the other of the "inevitable" class war.

APPEAL TO REASON

It is true that Social Credit is an appeal to reason, not to mass "action," and is beginning effectively to seek expression through Parliament. Here constitutional channels in the British dominions. It is also true that communism, by its rigid doctrinaire insistence upon civil war as the only solution—an attitude that it has hardened considerably since the Russian Revolution—has alienated much support and incalculably strengthened the forces of reaction. At the same time, communism has a certain fascination for people with an all-or-nothing aim.

Thus Mr. Novack tells us that even in Soviet Russia, where the means of production are socialized, Social Credit could not solve the problem of poverty. Now nothing short of complete world socialism will solve the economic problems of any one section of it. Nor is the pursuit of this super-Utopian phantasy, which seems to me far too fanatical even to consider whether an attack upon the very heart of all capitalism—the Money Power—might not do something to unite the progressive forces of the nation, and thus to create that which they only strive more bitterly to divide. To demand mere support, while it is impossible, for the dispossessed millions of our superindustrialized world, now degenerating into a permanent proletariat, to appeal to a communist intellectual, who looks to the day of the "making" of communism and revolt as the fulfillment of his hope and prophecy.

POWER OF BELIEF

Yet when that day dawns—as it does not infrequently, when half-starved workers are shot or trampled down in fight—then the part played by the communist doctrinaire is seldom that of a triumph of reason. More than casually. It has proved far more the fault of an agent provocateur.

Such theories as these only postpone the relief of the masses until after the destruction of "the capitalist system" and the rise of a new (unspecified) system and the government of world socialism. I suggest that it is only because they postulate to the end they prefer simply to ignore that they have not the ghost of an idea how to set about it. Social Credit, on the other hand, proposes the relief of destitution and the distribution of existing abundance to be the first, and not the last step, toward a new world order.

It has defined a method of immediate relief in a future that ought to be acceptable equally to the conservative who wishes to save civilization and to the socialist who looks to the physical salvation of the workers as the hope of the future. At the very least this proposal deserves more unprejudiced examination than Mr. Novack has given it.

FIRE LOSSES FOR YEAR ARE AGAIN LOWER

Record of Merit Awards Beaten by Lowest 1934 Mark

Mice chewing matches, smouldering pipes in trouser pockets and children playing with matches—these were some of the contributing factors in fires fought last year by the city fire department, according to the annual report compiled and released Saturday by Fire Chief Albert Dutton.

Four times winner of the "Award of Merit" for low fire loss, he defended again this year, lopped some $4,000 from the 1933 totals. Fire loss in Edmonton has fallen steadily from $478,730.95 in 1929 when Chief Dutton rose to the chief's office to $96,323.61 for the year, to the present low figure. Much of the credit for this achievement is due to the inspection of buildings by fire preventive squads of the department.

DAMAGE LOSS LOWER

Although fires were slightly under the total for the preceding year, the figures being $96,-323.61 and $97,434.34 respectively. Insurance carried or involved in fires last year totalled $2,499,501.22 as compared with $2,445,213.00 in 1933.

Total fire loss of $96,323.61 in 1934 was paid on 147 fires. Only one fire occurred, the loss being $16,885, and this left a damage loss of $79,438.61 to spread over 146 fires. The per capita loss was $1.21 as against $1.27 for 1933.

Three deaths resulted from fire during the year, Leopold Baumgart, 4, and Reidbar Ranhold Baumgart, 10 months, being burned to death in a blaze at 12534 72 street on September 13.

LESS FIRE ALARMS

The department responded to 678 fire alarms last year, as compared to 748 during 1933. Blazes reached the high peak in April when 131 alarms were answered, figures for the 12 months of 1934 being: January, 37; February, 43; March, 59; April, 131; May, 71; June, 32; July, 44; August, 31; September, 42; October, 84; November, 48; December 55. There were 180 false alarms during the year.

Burning of grass and bush is the reason for most of the fires occurring in April, 95 blazes originating in this way being fought last year.

CHIMNEY FIRES

Chimney fires come next with a total of 74 and rubbish burning next with 47. Forty-two outbreaks were caused by smoking sources, with cigar and cigarette stubs started 26 fires and and hot ashes, 28.

Stovepipes started two fires last year, mice and matches, 1, a burning pipe in a pocket, 1, and sales from a pipe, 1.

In his report, Chief Dutton gives careful consideration to fire calls for each year from 1906, figures showing the lowest number having been recorded in 1906 when 38 calls were answered and the highest number in 1914 when the department went out on 1,244 calls.

Total membership of the department is 109, this total including 79 privates and 12 captains.

"The most effective means of reducing the fire losses is for every citizen to use the fire alarm during every week in the year Fire Prevention Week," says the report, which concludes as follows:

"I wish to thank most heartily the citizens and city officials whom I have come in contact with in the performance of my duty for the co-operation and support I have received. I also wish to thank the officers and men in every position of this department for their loyal support and able assistance afforded me."

In his annual report to Chief Dutton, C. S. Gould, superintendent of fire alarms gives the following note of warning:

"I would again call to your attention the number of false alarms for the year from fire alarm boxes, and also to the fact that the boxes are continually being tampered with, and in some cases being damaged. I personally look to the matter up with some of the school principals but it cannot report any improvement."

Fire Marshal J. Hoole reports that last year 8,857 buildings were inspected, 308 fire permits issued and 317 fires investigated.

Excerpts from the fire marshal's report follow: "I have carried out periodical fire drills in the motion picture houses in the city, thereby acquainting the ushers as to their position and duty should a panic or fire occure in the theatre.

"During Fire Prevention Week of this year, R. Storry, school build ing commissioner, and myself inspected all public schools at which time a number of fire hazards were found by teachers and pupils. Also separate schools were inspected by this branch, at which time fire drills were given and participated in by teachers and pupils.

"In the interest of safety this branch of the department has been successful in having buildings classified as fire hazarded removed or torn down to the total of 35."

City Ukrainians Pledge Support To Grit Party

Shouting their support of Liberalism and its standard-bearers, 250 Alberta Ukrainians, Saturday night, pledged their loyal adherence to the provincial and federal Liberal parties at a meeting held in the Liberal club rooms on Friday night, when stirring speeches by provincial political leaders and Ukrainians whipped the feelings of the audience to a white-hot fighting spirit. V. Hrynuk, acted as chairman, and P. J. Lazarowich was secretary.

The meeting met to determine whether or not a separate organization should be formed, or whether the Ukrainians should merge with the provincial party and present a united front. The latter course was unanimously agreed upon by the gathering.

Guest speakers of the evening were W. R. Howson, K.C., M.L.A., Lt. Col. G. B. McLeod, federal Liberal nominee for east Edmonton, and James A. MacKinnon, federal nominee for west Edmonton.

Other speakers were D. S. Ferbey, P. D. Rudyk, N. Mudryk, Dr. J. Gowda, W. J. Cheldayn, E. M. Glowa and W. Siwarenko. A committee was organized for liason and organization work.

CANADA'S NEW BANK TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

NEW ERA FOR FINANCING OPENS WITH INSTITUTION

Regulation of Internal Credit and Foreign Exchanges Among Objects.

OTTAWA, March 9.—Without ostentation or ceremonial the Bank of Canada, the dominion's first central bank for bankers and governments, will open its doors for business next Monday. So far as the general public is concerned the occasion will have little apparent significance since this bank will not deal with ordinary depositors and borrowers.

But there will be a general indication of the new order because on that day chartered banks will be prepared to exchange existing bank notes for the new paper currency of the Bank of Canada, a smaller bill printed in bright colors. The Bank of Canada will have the sole right to issue paper money eventually, and over a period of years the familiar currency will disappear to be replaced by the new.

In brief the functions of this new institution will be:

1—To regulate internal credit.

2—To regulate foreign exchanges.

3—To mitigate fluctuations in the level of production, trade, employment, and prices, so far as may be possible within the scope of monetary action.

4—To give expert and impartial financial advice to the government of the day.

TAKE OVER RESERVES

The bank will take over all the gold reserves of the existing chartered banks and that held by the government. This will be about $70,000,000 from the dominion treasury and $35,000,000 from chartered banks, based on the nominal gold price of $20.67 an ounce. The benefit arising from the current increased value of gold will accrue to the dominion government. Chartered banks will not be permitted to withhold sufficient gold to cover their foreign commitments. With additional securities which will be deposited with the central bank it will start with assets of about $220,000,000.

Almost a year of preliminary work has gone into the organization of the Bank of Canada in preparation for next week's formal opening for business. It was just a year ago that Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes, moved the resolution in the House of Commons calling upon the house to agree to the principle of a central bank to be known as the Bank of Canada.

DISCUSSED IN PARLIAMENT

Weeks of debate in the house of commons and in the banking and commerce committee, with a shorter passage through the senate, placed the necessary legislative authority in the hands of the government late last spring. Then came the task of selecting a personnel, the most important being the appointment of a governor.

Graham Ford Towers, 37-year-old executive of the Royal Bank of Canada, was appointed governor early in September and he left at once for European banking centres to study the technical side of central banking. He returned in two months and organization went speedily forward.

DEPUTY GOVERNOR

J. A. C. Osborne, secretary of the Bank of England, was brought to Canada to act as deputy governor and lend to the new venture some of the value of his experience in the new form of financial operations and control about to be ventured in Canada for the first time. Other personnel was drawn from Canadian financial institutions and the department of finance, the functions of which are now transferred in a large measure, to the Bank of Canada.

After a few weeks in temporary offices, during which the bank's capital stock of $5,000,000 was sold among some 12,000 subscribers in 100,000 shares at $50 per share, a meeting of the shareholders was held and seven directors elected. The bank moved into permanent quarters in a Wellington street office building. The solid section will occupy the east block of the parliament buildings where the treasury vaults will be used for storing the gold reserves.

House of commons opposition to a central bank was negative or non-existent, but there was a strong move supported by Liberals and Progressives to have it entirely government-owned. But the government maintained its original proposal to have the bank owned privately but subject to a large measure of control by the government. That is effected by a regulation under which the governor and deputy governor must be appointed by the governor-in-council, and by-laws and resolutions of the board of directors are subject to approval of the governor-in-council.

PAPER MONEY IN CIRCULATION RUNS IN COLOR

Portraits of Royal Family Abound—Laurier On $1,000 Bills

OTTAWA, March 9.—Canada's new paper currency will go into circulation when the newly-formed Bank of Canada officially starts business March 11. Seeking to avoid confusion and to frustrate any attempt at counterfeiting, the Bank issued a detailed description of the new small notes which bear portraits of seven members of the royal family and two of the nation's great prime ministers.

Persons obtaining the bills will find their size a novelty. They are six inches long and two and seven-eighths wide, fractionally shorter but wider than the midget United States currency issued a few years ago. Notes of each denomination are in English and French but the colors and designs are the same for each language.

The bills, ranging in denomination from $1 to $1,000, show considerably greater range of color than the old currency which will be withdrawn from circulation gradually over the next 10 years. The $1 bill is green, the $2 blue, $3 orange, $10 purple, $20 deep rose, $50 brown with a shade of red, $100 chocolate brown, $500 sepia, $1,000 olive green. Each denomination shows several shades of the same color.

KING GEORGE

A portrait of King George appears on the $1 note, while on the reverse is an allegorical female figure representing agriculture. The denomination is set out on the right centre of the note's face with the title "Bank of Canada" on both sides. Green rays spread from the centre design, underlying the denomination.

The $2 note bears a portrait of Queen Mary in evening dress, with diamond tiara and necklace. On the reverse is a figure of Mercury. To the right is an airplane, a representative crossing an arched bridge, and an electric train emerging under the arch. A shipping scene balances the design.

PRINCESS MARY

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

The portrait of Sir John Macdonald is on the $500 note which is balanced by a female figure representing field and orchard products. Sir Wilfred Laurier's picture is on the $1,000 note. On the reverse are two figures, typifying security and safety.

Signatures of "G. F. Towers," governor and "J. A. C. Osborne," deputy governor, appear on each together with the words "Ottawa, issue of 1935."

Alderman Bisset Goes To Montreal

Alderman A. Bisset will leave for Montreal tonight to attend the preliminary meeting to the mayors' conference as the special representative of Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, it was announced Saturday morning.

Bank To Get Down To Business

The new Bank of Canada, "the bank without a vault," is getting down to serious business in their new home in Ottawa. Under the governorship of Graham Ford Towers, organization has begun and the "ready for business" sign is nearly complete. Layout shows Governor Towers' Victoria building which houses the new bank, and the French and English brass plates on the doorway.

B.C. DEMANDS TARIFFS UPON REGION BASIS

Premier Pattullo Discusses Federal-Provincial Relationship

VICTORIA, March 9—A regional tariff policy for Canada was necessary if British Columbia was to prosper, Premier T. D. Pattullo told the legislature Friday in winding up the debate on the budget.

The premier's statement came after a description of British Columbia's relationship with the federal government, of the need of a housing scheme, land settlement scheme, reforestation, and aid to municipalities.

MAKE OWN TRADE

"In order to enable us to carry out these many undertakings we must have trade," Mr. Pattullo said. "It is absolutely essential that we shall have a market for our products in order to prosper. We produce very much more than we can possibly consume and we must have an outside market. The tariff, therefore, is of the utmost consideration to this province and it will be necessary to have some form of regional tariff if we are to properly prosper."

Premier Pattullo reviewed the conference of the four western premiers held here a little over a year ago which reached agreement on a number of important questions including:

An extensive works program financed by use of national credit, and, if necessary, by issuance of additional money.

DEBT REFUNDING

Careful consideration by the Dominion and provincial governments of a scheme to refund all or part of the respective debts of the provinces at lower rates of interest.

Lower rates of interest on deposits to encourage loans to industry and lower interest rates on provincial and municipal borrowings.

Endorsation of the general principle of a national scheme of unemployment insurance on a contributory basis, such scheme to be brought about if necessary through changes in the B.N.A. act.

Regina Hears Settler Protests

REGINA, March 9.—Complaints, all based on the influx of new settlers into their country, simply poured from the lips of representatives of more than 50 municipalities who met members of the government, yesterday.

"We have helped them to the limit of our resources; are willing to shoulder our share of the burden, but we cannot continue indefinitely in the way we have done" declared one municipal delegate. He declared old settlers on good land were rebelling against payment of high taxes to support the newcomers.

Blackshirt Mosley Focus Of Riots On Manchester Streets

MANCHESTER, England, March 9. — Hand-to-hand street fighting broke out last night as the climax to a speech in the town hall by Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader.

The disorder was touched off when intruders sang the Communist "Internationale" at the same time those in the meeting sang "God Save the King."

Three persons were injured in the ensuing clash, which saw police, anti-Fascists and the Blackshirts in a three-sided battle.

POLICE SEEKING KNIFE WIELDER

YPSILANTI, Mich., March 9.—A fiend killer who wields a two-edged knife was sought by local and state police today for the murder of seven-year-old Richard Streicher, Jr., whose body was found stuffed under a coldridge leading to an island park in the Huron river Friday.

Dr. Mark Howard, pathologist, said he found the boy's body bore 10 stab wounds inflicted by what appeared to be a double edged knife.

Young Streicher, son of a wealthy tool and die manufacturer here, left home after school hours Thursday and was not seen again until two schoolboys found his body under the bridge Friday.

VARSITY BOYS FACE CHARGES

Two University students tore off the big four-foot thermometers from the walls of the Corona Drug Store and the Sun Drug at the corner of 109 street and Jasper shortly after 1 a.m. Saturday, and were well on their way back to the halls of learning before police caught up with them.

The thermometers were taken from them and will be exhibit "A" and "B" when the youths face a magistrate in court at a future date on summons for theft charges.

Dutch Airlines Reach Manila

MANILA, P.I., March 9.—Plans for an air-line between Batavia and Manila which some day may be the closing link in a round-the-world airplane service, were disclosed here yesterday by Lieut. Commander W. H. Tetenburg of the Netherlands navy.

The Dutch flier, who led three flying boats on a flight from Sourbaya, Java, to Manila, said the Dutch KLM airline now linking Amsterdam and Java, plans to extend its regular service to Manila in about eight months.

When the Pacific and Atlantic are spanned, said Commander Tetenburg, the Batavia-Manila line would make the completing link for globe service.

BULL FIGHTER GETS DAMAGES

NEW YORK, March 9.—Sidney Franklin, native of Brooklyn, who is internationally known as a bull fighter, was awarded $7,000 damages Friday in his $500,000 suit against Columbia Pictures Corporation.

The suit was the outgrowth of a movie showing Franklin fighting in the bull ring while a commentator made facetious remarks. Franklin maintained his right to privacy under the civil rights law had been violated.

Senate Votes Vast Sum For U.S. Defence

WASHINGTON, March 9. — The United States senate ended a three-day battle over armaments Friday by voting a near-record $460,000,000 for the war department with authority to increase the standing army from 118,750 to 165,000.

Considerably changed by the senate, the bill will go to conference with the house of representatives. The vote on passage was 68 to 15.

Negro Actor Recovers After His Collapse

NEW YORK, March 9.—Richard B. Harrison, celebrated negro actor who was born at London, Ont., was "feeling comfortably" in Fifth Avenue hospital here yesterday, a week after his dressing-room collapse. Officials were unable to say when the actor would return to the cast of "The Green Pastures," in which the Canadian has appeared as "De Lawd" some 2,000 times. His fun-down condition is not considered serious.

Welsh Disaster Mine Unsealed

GRESFORD, Wales, March 9.—Four teams of six men each descended into the inner workings of the sealed-up Gresford Colliery last night with the double object of recovering bodies and seeking light on the disaster which cost 265 lives last autumn.

FORMALITIES FOR OPENING ARE EFFECTED

New Governor Certified to Give Start-Off On Monday Next

OTTAWA, March 9.—A certificate from Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes Friday was placed in the hands of Graham Ford Towers, authorizing him as governor of the Bank of Canada formally to start operations of that institution next Monday.

At the same time orders-in-council were passed repealing the finance and dominion notes acts and continuing suspension of gold payments.

Operations under the finance and dominion notes acts will be carried out by the Bank of Canada, while the measure continuing suspension of gold payments was necessary because of power contained in the Bank of Canada Act enabling the institution to sell gold at will unless its payments are suspended by government order.

REGISTRATION CHANGE

One phase of the new banking system of interest to the general public is the change in registering notice of intention of a borrower to give security to a chartered bank for a loan under section 88 of the Bank Act.

Heretofore such notices have been registered with the assistant receivers general. On and after Monday the official to receive such notices will be the local agent of the Bank of Canada who will replace the assistant receivers general in each province.

Under the Bank of Canada Act a balance sheet must be prepared showing the standing of accounts as on Wednesday and published as soon as possible after that day.

GOLD TRANSFERS

On the opening day the chartered banks are required to place their gold reserves with the Bank of Canada although the physical transfer may not take place at once. It will involve transfer of between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 in gold, mostly coins. The banks will receive $20.67 an ounce for their gold. Any profit that might be realized from its sale or from a reduction in gold content of the dollar, will accrue to the Dominion treasury.

There is an exception to this rule in that the minister of finance may deem a certain portion of this gold to have been held against foreign commitments of the chartered banks representing it, and any profit derived from such gold will be returned to the bank concerned.

Bennett Condition Reported Better

OTTAWA, March 9.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was reported to be feeling much better Friday and making satisfactory progress toward recovery. It was expected that he would be able to return to his office next Monday. Stricken with influenza two weeks ago with an infection of the respiratory passages, Mr. Bennett has been confined to his rooms since February 24.

Arms Probing Body Active

LONDON, March 9.—The Royal Commission appointed to investigate the armaments trade in Great Britain held its first meeting Friday.

It is charged with considering the possibility of a government arms monopoly to ensure close supervision of the trade and ways and means of removing present objectionable features in the private manufacture of arms.

BREAKING BALKAN PACT DETERMINED AIM OF IL DUCE

African Mobilization Smart Move—Yugoslavs Sternly Warn Bulgars—Greek Revolt More Grave

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, March 9.—Unconfirmed reports reaching here today from Athens state the cabinet of Premier Panagiotis Tsaldaris has resigned following a heavy bombardment of Athens by rebel warships.

LONDON, March 9.—The Daily Herald under a flaring headline "Mussolini behind the Greek rebellion" cited British "diplomatic circles" today as the source of a story claiming diplomatic intrigues of Il Duce caused the Greek revolt and trouble in the Balkans.

"Every responsible statesman is convinced the Venizelist revolt is encouraged by Italy, supported by Italy, and is part of the Italian campaign to break up the Balkan pact," aid the Daily Herald.

"Venizelist pro-Italian Greece linked with pro-Italian Bulgaria would break the bloc and give Italy strategic control of the Balkans," the newspaper asserted.

"There is even suspicion," it continued, "that the mobilization of Italian divisions for Africa is connected with events the Italian government knew were impending in the Balkans."

Stern Yugoslav Warning Given

LONDON, March 9—A dispatch to the Daily Express today from its Belgrade correspondent said Yugoslavia has issued a stern warning to Bulgaria.

"If a single Bulgarian soldier enters Greek territory," the dispatch asserted, "the Balkan pact will come into force and Yugoslavia, Turkey and Rumania will go to the aid of Greece."

Several Yugoslav nationalist leaders urged that in the event a foreign force invades Greek Macedonia, Yugoslavia seize Salonika to protect Yugoslav interests.

POSSIBLE WAR MAIN TOPIC U.S. SENATE

Assertions Great Britain Might Become Hostile Enemy

WASHINGTON, March 9—Amid talk of possible war, and much criticism of Japan, the senate yesterday added $20,000,000 to raise the hefty United States army appropriation bill to a near record, $400,000,000, and then pushed it to the point of passage.

The bill, carrying an appropriation greater by nearly $70,000,000 than a year ago, produced assertions that there was danger of conflict not only with Japan but with Great Britain and possibly other nations.

BRITAIN A DANGER

Declaring he saw no danger of conflict with Great Britain or Japan, Senator William Borah said that if there was such danger, an increase in the army of "only 46,000 men did nothing except to emphasize the inadequacy of our situation." He added, dramatically:

"Why should she (Great Britain) go to war with us when she secures everything she desires through diplomacy?"

BREAK-UP EMPIRE

The veteran senator said armed strife between Britain and the United States would cause the Empire to "break up overnight," for "two of the Dominions would not cooperate with the mother country."

He did not name the Dominions he had in mind.

Senator Lewis, Illinois Democrat, said unprepareduess invited trouble.

"Japan now will make a gesture to Russia," he said, "on the ground that the United States is afraid about its position with Russia," and from that, he predicted, might grow conflict "With the army of Russia, and the navy of Japan, where do we stand?" he asked.

20-CENT DAY MEN BUILDING NEW ARSENAL

Quebec Liberal Challenges Methods on Floor of Commons

OTTAWA, March 9.—A government ammunition factory is being built at Valcartier Camp near Quebec by men paid 20 cents a day, it was charged in the House of Commons last night by C. G. Power (Lib., Quebec South). He claimed this was a violation of Dominion wage regulations.

The men are in the unemployment relief camp maintained by the Department of National Defence, Mr. Power explained. The arsenal was being built and it was planned to abandon the present ammunition factory in Quebec which employes 81 men with a payroll between $40,000 and $60,000.

WAGE VIOLATION

The arsenal should be built by laborers from Quebec, Mr. Power said, and not by men from all over the country who were paid 20 cents a day. He claimed government regulations stipulated men must be paid prevailing wages in a community when engaged on Dominion work. He said the wage of 20 cents a day violated this regulation.

To register his protest against the Quebec situation, Mr. Power proposed a formal motion to reduce by one dollar a vote of $67,602,000 salaries to national defence officials.

NOT WAGE BASIS

Defence Minister Grote Stirling said the 20 cents a day was not a wage and never had been regarded as a wage. The Dominion had assumed responsibility from the provinces to look after homeless, single unemployed. The Dominion fed the men, clothed them, gave them shelter and tobacco. In addition, 20 cents per day allowance was given.

Key men in each camp, continued the minister, were paid the prevailing wages of the community. The rank and file received 20 cents a day allowance.

This made it worse, retorted Mr. Power. The men who received the wages were political appointments, although the men who did the work did not get the wages.

CUBANS WORK AMID BOMBING

HAVANA, March 9—Dozens of shots could be heard in the centre of strike-torn Havana shortly before midnight as the cabinet and council of state assembled for a special session at the Presidential palace.

Bombs exploded frequently and shooting also was reported in the Vedado residential section, several miles from mid-town.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of Cuba's armed forces, warned strikers it was the "Firm purpose of the government" to break the strike and "the armed forces will back the government" in that purpose.

SATURDAY, MARCH 9

THREE IN ONE

The financial year of the province ends on March 31. The legislature meets in February. Necessarily a budget speech, insofar as it treats of provincial finances, comprises a review, a progress report, and a forecast; a review of financial operations which ended twelve months ago, a progress report on operations which will end three weeks hence, and a forecast of operations for the year which will begin on April first and end with March of 1936.

That a budget statement delivered under such circumstances should lack clearness, even to the point of being confusing, is inevitable. That delivered by Hon. J. Russell Love yesterday is not less clear or more confusing than its predecessors, but warrants the suggestion that some change should be made which would enable the Minister and the legislature to review the financial events of a year before these have passed into the realm of ancient history.

No convincing reason has ever been stated why the fiscal year should not end on Dec. 31, and the record be surveyed at the session of the legislature two or three months later, while the transactions are still near enough to have a bearing on the course of present events.

BUDGETING FOR DEFICITS

Out of the statistics submitted by Mr. Love in respect to last year, this year, and next year, and the mass of extraneous matter which long and misguided tradition has made it customary to include in a budget speech, the following facts emerge, which have present and urgent interest.

For the year ending with March, 1933, the deficit was $2,107,521. For the year which is to end with the present month, a deficit of $662,075 is expected. And for the year which will begin on April 1 a deficit of $699,479 is anticipated.

Budgeting for a deficit has now become common practice, and unless the Minister has miscalculated next year is likely to bring a larger shortage than the present one. The province is not living within its income, and not in sight of the time when that is expected to be possible.

The deficit does not of course tell the whole of the bad news. Borrowings have to be added to the loss to show the actual outcome. At the end of December last the net funded and unfunded debt was $149,462,654. At the end of 1933 the net funded and unfunded debt was $144,044,626. During the year there was added to the debt, including the deficit, $5,418,028.

Over the life time of the province the debt has grown on the average $4,900,000 per year. Last year beat the average by $500,000.

Since a cash deficit of less than $700,000 during the last calendar year was accompanied by the addition of more than five millions to the provincial debt, speculation would be useless as to how fast the debt may be expected to grow in the coming fiscal year. The deficit predicted has no necessary bearing on that.

THE TAX LIMIT

Of most immediate interest is the declaration that: "The Government does not consider it wise, in view of the financial position of the people, to increase the present tax burden by the imposition of any new taxes, and with the exception of an increase in the fuel oil tax which has already been announced, no upward revision in any of the existing rates of taxation is contemplated."

Agreement will be unanimous that further tax measures or upward revisions of existing tax measures under present conditions would be unwise, and probably also unproductive. Taxation generally has reached the point where diminishing returns would be the result of increasing levies.

Whenever and however the provincial debt is to be paid, that will have to be a matter for consideration in some more favorable season. At present it is not even possible to balance the budget without cutting expenditures to a degree that would be questionable at best.

No doubt there is opportunity for readjustment and retrenchment in spots. But in other directions there is need of heavier outlay than is being made. On capital account there is immediate need of heavy expenditure to create employment at wages for men who are at present being supported on direct relief with no return whatever to the province or the taxpayers.

Relief costs for the year are estimated at $2,139,000. Last year the amount was $3,347,000. Such outlays must of course be met by borrowing, and represent an addition to the interest-bearing debt. It would have been better business to borrow twice these amounts and spend the money in useful constructive enterprise, had the Government been in position to do so.

REFUND OR REPUDIATE

The public will welcome the announcement that the Government is at last aware of the urgent necessity of refunding the provincial debt. The figures supplied by the Minister are more convincing on that subject than any argument he might offer.

Scaled down to the last possible item, the net interest-bearing debt is placed at $131,000,000. This, Mr. Love suggests, can only be refunded with the active assistance of the Dominion, and probably only if the Dominion guarantees the new bonds.

Which means in plain language that the province is no longer able to finance itself. We have admittedly come to the place where only the credit of the Dominion can enable Alberta to borrow money for what it is worth.

Assuming that the Federal Government will lend its assistance and credit, the Minister has worked out a plan under which the province could in the next 30 years, by paying $182,608,830, retire bonds to the amount of $68,000,000, leaving it then owing $80,000,000.

That there is any prospect of paying the $80,000,000 within the thirty years or any other stated time he does not suggest; but proposes that this sum be converted into permanent stock, on which a rate of 3½ per cent should be paid.

The alternative to refunding is to go on paying, as at present, something more than $7,000,000 a year in interest, with no sinking fund sufficient to retire the debt, in which case the interest alone over the next thirty years would absorb more than $200,000,000, leaving the province then still owing the $131,000,000.

The only question raised by these figures is why it took five years of depression and deficits to acquaint the Government with the fact that the provincial debt must be refunded or eventually repudiated.

The promoters of the British Pacific railway, which is planned to run from Victoria, B.C., via Cariboo, Yellowhead Pass, Edmonton and through the Northwest, state that the money to float the scheme is all secured on the London market. They say they are waiting for the B.C. government to fulfill its promises to assist the scheme. Hon. J. H. Turner, finance minster of British Columiba, is going to England to float a loan, and it is expected he will give such pledges as will enable the company to secure the funds arranged for and proceed with the work.

Poems That Live

GROWING OLD

Sweet sixteen is shy and cold,
Calls me "sir", and thinks me old;
Hears in an embarrassed way
All the compliments I pay;

Finds my homage quite a bore,
Will not smile on me, and more
To her taste she finds the noise
And the chat of callow boys.

Not the lines around my eye,
Deepening as the years go by;
Not white hairs that strew my head,
Nor my less elastic tread;

Cares I find, nor joys I miss,
Make me feel my years like this—
Sweet sixteen is shy and cold,
Calls me "sir", and thinks me old.

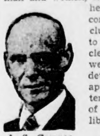
The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

We'd better leave off smirking at the puerile nature of most of the confessions of sin made by Oxford Groupers in fulfilment of the urge to purge their souls. Having knowledge of the ghosts that walk with many an unsuspected man and woman, it tickles one's risibilities to hear a company promoter confess to the sin of "exclusiveness," a society lady to cigarette smoking and a clergyman to refusing to wear pince-nez lest they detract from his personal appearance. But that's better than a real uncovering of the secret recesses of the libido.



J. S. Cowper

A woman in Vancouver recently became a convert. She had been a good wife and mother. To a maiden lady among the Groupers she confided that years before, when she lived in Calgary, on being dismissed by her doctor as cured after an illegal operation, the doctor had insisted upon having intimate relations with her. It was all in the dead and dusty past, but the maiden lady assured the convert that to save her soul it was her duty to make full confession to her husband. The husband who wasn't a Grouper refused his wife's plea for absolution. He started suit for divorce, naming the Calgary doctor as co-respondent and asking $2500 damages.

What a mess followed this ill-starred advice.

Usually when two people reach the divorce court, one or other, if not both of them, is heartily sick of the relationship. In this case both husband and wife had been living happily and contentedly with each other till the eight-year old episode was disinterred.

The doctor denied any wrong-doing and pleaded the Statute of Limitations. The wife came to court to say that it was all true and to beg that her children be not taken from her.

The outcome was as remarkable as the inception of the case. When the judge learned that the husband had been a party to taking his wife to the Calgary M.D. for the purpose of the illegal operation, he refused him the divorce, saying he was the author of his wife's misfortunes by having been an accessory to procuring an illegal operation. So it all ends with the husband and wife remaining legally tied, though divided further than ever by the confession, the bitterness of the publicity and the fruitless lawsuit. If the same precedents are followed as in a notorious Alberta case, the husband will probably have the added mortification of being ordered to pay the doctor's law costs.

The refusal of the judge to grant a divorce is doubtless sound law, though it adds to the burden of sorrow each will bear. Our divorce law is not a remedial law; it is a punitive law. It isn't born of any modern attitude toward the marriage contract; it has its roots in the old Mosaic law. The husband having committed an offence in allowing his wife to go to the doctor for an allegedly illegal purpose cannot avail himself of the offence confessed to by his wife. They are doomed to eternal punishment, starting in this life.

Dead and buried pasts are better left dead and buried. There should be a Statute of Limitations on the consciences of folk. After this medley of unhappiness caused by a weak woman taking seriously the instruction to confess her sins, I'll poke no more fun at the pink tea confessions of the Groupers.

The column ended a couple of days ago with a story of the sea, told to me by Roger R. MacPherson, honorary skipper of the Cutty Sark Club. The Cutty Sark, as all sailormen know, was a famous Dumbarton clipper. In the days of her prime no vessel afloat, steam or sail, merchantman or naval craft could keep abreast of her in a strong, steady, favorable breeze.

Old Capt. Woodget who commanded her from 1885 till 1895, and who died in his native Norfolk, England, a few years ago at the age of 82—leaving three sons, all shipmasters—knew his Bible from cover to cover. He would hold services on board and deliver extempore prayers. He didn't smoke or drink, but he could speak sailor talk.

A tale is told of an occasion when he was holding service on the poop with the good ship bowling along under a heavy press of sail. As the skipper was deep in extempore prayer, a heavy sea hit the ship.

"The —— mast will be overboard if we don't look out" said a sailor apprehensively.

The skipper stopped short in his supplication and glared. "Stop your —— row while I'm praying" he said to the hapless interruptor, and resumed his devotions.

The Cutty Sark, after being sold to the Portuguese had her rig cut down and her name changed. By good fortune she was bought back by Capt. W. H. Dowman who restored her rig, her name and her former beauty. Today she is on exhibition at Falmouth. She may yet be manned and entered in the Australian grain race. The fast thinning ranks of the old sailormen dote on her former glory like theatregoers worship the memories of bygone stars.

At North Vancouver another old sailing ship the William T. Lewis (formerly the Robert Duncan) is being altered to carry hog fuel at the end of a tow line. During the war the Wm. T. Lewis carried deepsea freight under the command of Capt. Manning, later of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

Lumber-laden, off the south of Ireland, the ship was rolling along when her mate reported a whale in sight. The "whale" came alongside and spewed a shell at her. Her German commander hoisted the signal "Prepare to abandon ship." Manning and his crew took to the boats and pulled for Bantry Bay. The last they saw of their vessel was of timbers flying as the German shelled the ship with explosive shell to sink it.

A few days later word came that the German had been driven off, and the ship towed to Liverpool. The cargo had kept the ship from sinking. Manning's watch still ticking was found above his bunk by the rescue crew. Now the gallant old ship shorn of masts and gear is to attain inglorious peace carrying hog fuel to the paper mills of the Gulf of Georgia.

Keeping Baby's Bed Dry

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Babies, by living on an exclusive milk diet, receive such an enormous quantity of liquid that the bladder is really overworked all the time. Every time the bladder fills up to an extent, the elimination of the fluid will occur in order to relieve the pressure. Some infants learn to control this after a few months, but a lack of control cannot be considered really abnormal before the second year.

Dr. F. McCoy

As the child grows older it will learn to avoid wetting its clothes during the daytime because of the scorn it receives from its companions and from its parents, but the bed-wetting often continues for a much longer period. The bed-wetting is often exceedingly exasperating to the parent, and criticizing does not usually accomplish much. Encouraging the child to overcome this disorder helps better than punishment.

The three principal causes of bed-wetting are: first, an over-distention of the bladder from drinking too many fluids during the latter part of the day and just before retiring; chronic or acute bladder inflammation; third, lack of subconscious mental control.

Usually, after child changes from the milk diet to solid food, it is a good plan for these children to avoid liquids after three or four o'clock in the afternoon. Children fed on improper food combinations may develop a chronic inflammation of the bladder. This can usually be corrected by a few days exclusively on fruit juice, followed by a diet of the right food combinations. Where neither of these two conditions are present, the habit can sometimes be stopped by making mental suggestions to the child while it is awake.

It is a good plan to offer some little reward to the child if it has a dry bed in the morning. For example, take him to a picture show or to a picnic in the park if the bed is dry every night during the week.

The bed-wetting often takes place at night because the child actually dreams that he has awakened and attended to the matter properly, and he is very embarrassed upon awakening to find the bed wet. This is most apt to occur on cold nights.

If the child is a sound sleeper, good suggestions may sometimes be given to him when asleep. After the child is asleep, the mother may sit at the side of the bed and talk to her child in this manner: "When you wake up in the morning, your bed will be perfectly dry," or, "Mother will be so pleased to find the bed perfectly dry in the morning." Use the word "dry" over and over again, but in giving this mental treatment never at any time use the word "wet." This treatment may seem too simple to be true, but I urge you to try it for a few times, as children are very sensitive to positive suggestions.

There is abundant evidence to believe that when a person is asleep the mind can be educated and instructed by someone giving instruction and suggestion in a low tone of voice. With children, this method of giving suggestions is especially valuable. When the mind receives suggestions during sleep there is very little resistance to the ideas given, and they continue to assert their effect when the child is awake but without any conscious remembrance of the suggestions.

Horoscope

By MARY BLAKE

On March 10 it will be wisdom to stick closely to your own knitting and not attempt to untangle the snarls made by other hands. Should you allow your emotions to become greatly agitated over some trivial thing, it will be a mistake. Exaggerated ideas of self importance, like balloons, will be exploded when the limit of safe inflation is ignored, so let nothing cause you to "swell up" too much.

Married and engaged couples, as well as those about to explore Love's domain, will help make their natal day run smoothly if they will remember it is not what you say but how you say it, that really counts.

If a woman, and March 10 is your birthday, it will be well for you to always keep in mind that no matter how pleasing a personality you may possess it is important to provide the right setting for it by exercising care in regard to your personal appearance. A domestic career, with the right man for a husband, probably will be the medium through which you will secure your greatest happiness.

If a man, and March 10 is your natal day, law, medicine, writing, chemistry, and music, are frequently the best means through which to gain laurels.

On March 11 should you be the victim of rudeness, do not permit it to upset your disposition. Rudeness can usually be traced to either lack of cultural advantages, loss of temper, presumption, or just a naturally churlish disposition. Business may show some very promising signs for an active market this week. Keep your eyes open for opportunities. Social activities should be entered upon freely. It will be wise to attend to correspondence, if it is possible.

Married and engaged couples as well as those expecting to see some dearly beloved one on this date, will show good judgment if they will remember either personal or domestic slovenliness is about the most discouraging trait one can discover.

If a woman, and March 11 is your birthday, you have probably a great deal of self control. You should be very successful in commercial life, or an artistic career.

The child obrn on March 11, usually, when it reaches its majority, makes a place for itself in the world.

If a man, your desire for distinction will undoubtedly spur you on until your hopes are realized. A wife with business acumen may help you to solve many a problem.

The latest rumor from Ottawa is that the general elections may be sprung suddenly in April. This seems to us unlikely. Mr. Bennett will want to go over as Prime Minister in May to the royal anniversary.—Toronto Star.

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date, March 9, in 1825, the Upper Canada Assembly took the first actual step toward post office reform. The postal service was administered by the British post office, rates were high; the service was poor and irregular; and, what was worse, all the profits were sent to London instead of being used for improving the service in Canada. The need of postal reform had long been one of the demands of the reformers. William Lyon Mackenzie had been elected to the assembly for the first time. One of his personal grievances was the high rate of postage upon his newspaper, which he used as an argument why the public would be best served by colonial administration of the post office. He secured the appointment of a committee of investigation, which was largely reform in composition. That committee not only urged extension of the service, but suggested that letters on public business should be carried free, just as they are now to and from the parliament at Ottawa, and then, having wiped out a large revenue, suggested that the surplus, "if any," should be devoted to strengthening the bridges over which the mail carriers had to pass. And the assembly passed a resolution asking that it be allowed to take upon itself the entire management of the post office, but nothing was done until 1851. In all the intervening years the agitation for autonomy in postal service waxed stronger, but it was slow work. The reformers claimed right along that the wretched postal service was a direct violation of the charter of Upper Canada of 1791, which had guaranteed an efficient post office. This matter of postal reform was, it must be said, not altogether partisan; many who were not counted reformers voted for colonial administration; it was their support of the demand for autonomy which, in the course of time, convinced the home government that unless the post office revenues were handed over there would be very serious trouble indeed. Once the post office became Canadian it began to grow and give satisfaction; rates were reduced, reciprocity in mail handling was arranged with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, which, in fact, laid the basis of the interprovincial trade which developed. Trade followed the mails then as now.

AUSTRALIA SAVES MILLIONS

In the latest Australian loan conversion in London an outstanding amount of $111,920,000 of Commnowealth of Australia 5 per cent loan of 1935 to 1945 was converted into an equal amount of 3½ per cent stock, redeemable from 1956 to 1961. This was the ninth conversion by the government of the Commonwealth of Australia since 1932, and brings the total amount of stock converted up to $574,174,460, on which there is an annual interest saving of $12,876,220.

During the past five years debts redeemed by the Australian National Debt Sinking Fund totalled $187,500,000. In the current year the total contributions to the sinking fund will exceed $49,000,000 to be allotted in London, Australia and New York on the basis of the amount of debt domiciled in each market.—Exchange.

INTEREST RATES

There is no problem facing the people of Canada that calls for more earnest attention than this. At Ottawa they may magnify all other issues, may accentuate their differences, and may institute many necessary reforms, but until something is done to lessen private and public interest rates a return to normal conditions is impossible. The prevailing rate is more, vastly more, than money is worth. It is a plunger's rate carried over into legitimate investment. A plunger or speculator may afford to pay a high rate. With him it is lose all or make all on a wild throw. But the investor in home or farm or legitimate trade should pay not more than one-half the amount now charged.

Here is a man who in the days of the boom laid away a quarter of a million. He invested it in government bonds (non-taxable). Every half year he cuts off his coupons and buys new treasures for his home. But his neighbor, who has made the same amount, placed it in a business undertaking, and called to his assistance two hundred men who represent a thousand people. His profits have vanished and he faces closure. Why should dormant capital, protected by government assurance, have such an advantage over living capital employed for the public good? There is no reason in it, and if the rate is not voluntarily reduced, there is only one remedy for conditions. That remedy will surely be applied.

The one question that demands consideration above all others is interest rates. It is idle to say that it is the savings of the poor, honest, hard-working people that are being loaned out to investors. That is chiefly camouflaged, and everybody knows it.—National Home Monthly.

MR. QUEEN TO MR. BENNETT

Mayor Queen's letter to Premier Bennett contained not the slightest exaggeration of the overwhelming financial difficulty which has been created for this city by the withdrawal of part of the federal aid for relief and the throwing of an impossible burden on the municipalities. The burden has been too heavy all through the depression, but since the change, last August, it has been driving the municipalities to desperation.

Winnipeg's debt for unemployment relief is now almost $5,000,000. The city has also spent $1,167,000 on relief works. The annual debt charges are now nearly $500,000, and they are increasing as the city continues to borrow money for relief. The debt charges on relief expenditure will have to be paid for years, and, in addition, as soon as the city quits borrowing for relief, it will still have to raise a considerable amount for current relief through the taxes.

When the citizens face up to the actual situation and the prospect for the future, they have reason to be alarmed.

The unemployment is entirely abnormal and this city is in no way responsible for it. Relief, under these conditions, is a national responsibility, and it is grossly unjust that such an enormous burden should be piled on the taxpayers of the city. The civic services will have to be starved and excessive taxes levied for years unless the Federal government carries its own burden and relieves the city of its preposterous load.

The people of Winnipeg are solidly behind the Mayor in asking the Federal government to reverse the present situation and give the city a reasonable chance to exist and to maintain its essential services. — Winnipeg Free Press.

Municipal Bonds And Payment In Cash

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

Eastern financial papers carry columns of serious warnings against any organized effort to bring about a reduction of municipal debt charges; and officials of loan and trust companies issue wise warnings about the danger of frightening credit away.

In none of these cases is any reference made to the relevant facts. It is loudly proclaimed that the municipalities borrowed unwisely.

This is not even half the truth. The municipalities have fallen into money difficulties by reason of the fact that, year by year, a constantly increasing cost in social services is being thrown upon the municipalities by the combined effect of the Dominion policies and the Provincial Government policies. The municipalities have had no voice in the creation of this extra social service load; and municipal warnings of the danger of overloading and crashing the entire municipal structure throughout Canada have gone unheeded. Take away the social service loads created within the last fifteen years, and practically every municipality in Canada would be in safe financial shape.

The cost of direct relief alone is sufficient to strain the resources of a city municipality. In this connection the Dominion first decides how small a percentage it can pay; next the Province decides how small a percentage it can add to the Dominion percentage; and finally the whole balance of the load is thrown upon the municipalities—without their consent, and in most cases over their active protests showing exactly how and why the extra load cannot safely be carried.

The most direct financial disaster brought upon the municipalities by the extra social service loads, and consequently increased tax levies has been the destruction of real estate values. The higher the tax levy the more real estate reverts to the city. Tax sales do no good. No one in his sane senses wants to buy or hold land subject to a constantly increasing load of taxation. The municipal power to collect taxation largely depends on real estate values; and these values have been destroyed by actions of governments in thowing increased loads on the financial structure of municipalities.

There is no chance of lessening the social service load. Every politician in Canada is committed to an extension of social services. There is no possibility of the municipalities paying principal and interest on bonds, together with the amount of the new social service load.

In actual proven truth there must be a payment of all municipal indebtedness in Canada or a collapse of the entire municipal financial structure in Canada.

Fortunately the method of paying off the municipal indebtedness in Dominion legal tender, secured for retirement by annual instalments charged upon each respective municipal revenue relieved by the bond payment, is safe, sound and very practical. It will restore real estate values—and the bondholders will be paid in full with money equal in value to the best money in the world.

The decrease in real estate values is variously estimated at from twenty billion dollars to twenty-four billion dollars. The total amount of municipal bonds is about one billion six hundred million dollars. The restoration of real estate values can easily reach ten times the amount of the bonds paid off.

The Dominion Government will get ample increased revenue to pay for the use of the legal tender; the municipalities can take care of the social service load; and the peak load of bonded inflation will be lifted from the nation. Just another time when a little political common sense is the only thing needed.

A PLEA FOR THE BRUSH AND TIMBER LAND SETTLER IN ALBERTA

Editor Bulletin: The first settlers in Alberta went on to the prairie and park lands, where they could prepare from ten acres to the whole quarter section for seeding in the first year at a cost of from five to seven dollars per acre, thereby having this total area in crop for the second year and so on.

The entry fee for each homestead being only ten dollars, during all of this period outside work of many kinds was available at good wages for the settler and prices for farm produce was good as compared with present prices.

Compare these favorable conditions of that time with the plight of the brush and timber land settler of these later years.

The new settler after having located his homestead and paying ten dollars of his exorbitant fifty dollar entry fee is lucky if he doesn't have to spend one to five or more days brushing and cutting out a trail to the new home and in many cases clear land to put buildings on.

In that and following years with the assistance of his family he will clear, break and prepare for seed from one-half to five acres per year. More may be done on some quarters and very much less on others. Therefore at the end of five years of hard work for the settler and his family they have 25 to 35 acres to cultivate and during this trying five years no work has been available off the land to assist the settler to make a few dollars and carry on.

The cost of properly preparing this kind of land to put seed on runs from fifteen to twenty-five dollars per acre on the easiest portions of the quarter to prepare where parts are open, whilst green timber portions may cost from forty to one hundred dollars per acre.

After the land is brushed and grubbed it takes six to eight horses or a tractor to break same and this power, the general run of settler has not got and can't hire it done and in view of these facts it would seem that the government would make no mistake in paying for a limited number of acres of breaking for each resident settler, some to be paid for before issue of patent and in case of patented lands to be paid for out of first two crops, this would greatly assist the settler and family to get established and live whereas at present many a family only exists in these areas.

In view of these conditions it seems to me that the settlers on these timber areas should not be called upon to pay any cash tax other than school for at least five or more years from date of entry but in lieu of this exemption and the crying need for roads in these areas heavy statute duties should be called upon from the settler, possibly eight days per year for each quarter, four during summer seaons and four days in the late fall and winter, as part of road making can be better done after freeze up such as corduroying soft places.

It is not my desire to discourage the intending settler from going on these lands, in fact I think it is the proper place to go if he and his family have had some farm experience and have some means, or can get assistance as there are many advantages to be taken into consideration, such as lots of building and fence material, fuel, wild game, fish and wild fruits, fair grazing and hay in parts. The soil is very productive and the past season of 1934 has been the only year of serious frost damage from 1929 to the present. In the northeast part of the province where I am doing duties on my second homestead.

I feel deeply the great necessity of the land owners in our farming districts paying more attention to the preserving of timber belts of from ten to twenty-five acres on each quarter. Too much can not be said in favor of this crying need for action, we in this province, must wake up and preserve in every possible way a portion of our green timbers and this is largely up to the resident settler for his own protection.

The homesteader could be encouraged to fire-guard and protect anywhere from ten to thirty acres of his holdings by calling upon him to do less cultivation duties in lieu of his extra expense to clear out and build fire guards. Lectures could be held during the winter season showing the people the danger of depleting their lands of these nice young poplar and beautiful evergreen bluffs such as exist in most parts of the west and north of our province.

CHEAP AT $5000

Editor, Bulletin: In reply to Mr. Speed who issues a challenge to all who are in line with the social credit idea and protests against the government paying what he calls an exorbitant fee to Major Douglas for his advice.

I feel that I am expressing the views of a large majority of the people of Alberta when I say that if Major Douglas can submit a workable scheme that will bring economic prosperity to Alberta, it will be the best investment of $5000 that ever was made.

Mr. Speed's diatribe in the third paragraph is meaningless, which he will see if he reads it again.

Major Douglas is not asking to come to Alberta. He is a successful engineer who has his own business to look after and as such should be paid for his services. He has written several books in the last 15 years in which he has revealed the fundamental faults of our economic system and what is much more important—has suggested a remedy—without entailing a revolution.

If Mr. Speed has a better idea why does he not tell us what it is, and not indulge in destructive criticism only.

Major Douglas has supplied us with a scheme which will enable society to consume all the goods and services which it can produce and will reward efficiency with a well paid leisure which will do its part in enabling humanity to attain those supreme heights which I have no doubt we shall ultimately attain.

We who are in line with the social credit idea certainly believe that a new era is before us and it is for this reason we are in sympathy with the Douglas scheme.

For a dozen years the voice of Major Douglas was as one crying in the wilderness and now that we have reached the culmination which he predicted (international and national bankruptcy), I feel sure that any government which shows an inclination to listen to his advice will receive the commendation of the majority of the people.

Our existing financial and economic system has failed; why not try one that will serve the people instead of breaking them?

CRITICIZING CRITICS

Editor Bulletin: There is no better source that permits individuals to air their conscience than the Bulletin is offering. I take the liberty to express a word of gratitude to our paper for its candid interest in the welfare of the people. However, with this grant of freedom I wish to express a few thoughts on the much debated subject of Social Credit.

Our critics in the Mail Bag, such as the writers of "Debunking Social Credit" or "Social Credit A La Aberhardt" and "Vigorous Protest" etc., etc., present a definite school to which they belong. And to be sure, that privilege we cannot deny them; but one thing does mark them as extraordinary, and that is their own satisfaction at being in opposition and calling it great work.

It is well to have opposition for, opposition brings careful investigation. But when a man is in the opposition he is presumed to have an efficient theory to offer which is pregnant with ability and action to do. This very thing is omitted by our critics and they spend their time in telling us how bad it would be if Social Credit became our government therefore inference leads us to believe they have nothing to offer.

One of our critics has stated that it is beyond the comprehension of logic to put Social Credit into effect. This need not alarm anyone. The mind is responsible for certain methods of reasoning, and when a mind cannot grasp certain powers and understand laws we can hardly hold them responsible for their method of expressing matters.

Logic is an intrepretation of truth, a science of correct reasoning. We can test the strength of logic on the statement made that Japan is applying Social Credit or the effects of it when they sold 60,000 little girls into white slavery. I am certain that our people are not deceived by this statement, for Japan has applied a reverse form of some scientific method, perhaps as when our young girls roam the streets and sell their bodies for a morsel of bread. This our government does not wish to have, but it is done, and certain people patronize such abuses.

Yet such perverse logic is tagged onto Social Credit, just as perverse as when Mr. Aberhart is called an "economic red herring." Why should he be roasted out of existance? He has as much right for his belief as you have, and when you propose a Socialistic doctrine you expect me to fall for it and surrender my born privileges and birthright to some man on the street who is capable of laying down a theory that is to be more logical than that of Major Douglas.

And here you get down to "concrete thinking." It might be well to know that neither Social Credit nor Aberhart is on trial, it is this present system that is on trial and if any defence is necessary it must come from the existing parties. And, citizens of Alberta, knocking Social Credit is not defending the present system in existance.

And here I shall wish to quote the Journal on Hon. G. N. Johnston's statement, speaker of the legislature and member of the government party, considers Social Credit: "the most serious menace that has ever faced Alberta." The government realizes the power of Social Credit. It is not for our destruction but for our good. It may be read in history as the act of emancipation from the tyranny of finance.

If ever a people were taxed beyond their ability to pay it is now. If you have never thought about it think about it now. Calculate the enormous sums of money used up or squandered for lavish purposes today.

Take the fees we pay for our parliament members. There are 65 of them. Each one of these receives the sum of $1,800.00 a year, multiply that by 65 over a period of time, say, five years. Then add unto that your cabinet members, premier, etc.

Personally I have no objection for this money spent on useful causes but when it is spent on wooden posts the burden of taxation is too great. Some of these members sit through a term without ever opening their mouths unless they have to yawn.

Now I wonder which is the greatest menace we have to face, the present system of taxation and confiscation or Social Credit, including the "economic red herring," with no promises but vital scientific facts to forever put Alberta outside the range of poverty.

Think it out for yourself, if Aberhart is an "economic red herring" certainly these created expense bills are jelly fish.

SOLDIER GRANTS

Editor Bulletin: Congratulations to Joseph M. Dechene, St. Paul, and Frank R. Falconer, Athabasca, for the stand they are taking on behalf of the settlers in the north country, and to W. R. Howson, K.C., for his efforts to give the returned men a square deal. This matter has been delayed too long, and we are tired of being classed as bums and worse, especially the single men, who seem to have committed a serious crime in not marrying and raising a family to exist on relief rations.

But there is one matter which has been overlooked in the New Deal or else thrown in the discard; That is the soldier grant, which instead of being a grant, cost the settler $10.00 to file and $40.00 to prove up the same as a homesteader.

To returned men who have broke away from relief connections in the city where we were herded and treated like cattle to try and live decently on the land and establish ourselves, this is an added insult to injury.

Perhaps the U.F.A. government of Alberta can explain why they did this. I, for one, would be interested to know, if they wanted money why pick on men who were told nothing was too good for them when they came back, but later the best they could give them was 20 cents per day relief camps?

Wake up settlers on Soldier Grants and demand that our grant be what it was intended to be, and that we be given some contributory help to make a start instead of demanding money for settling up the country.

Success to The Bulletin which is awake to a needed change of conditions in this province.

OLD RED PATCH,
Caslan, Alberta.

MINIMUM WAGE SCALE

Editor Bulletin: Having been observant of the present low wage system one cannot feel satisfied in passing over the lumber dealers and sawmill men taking taking advantage of cheap labor.

The present low rate paid, $15 a month and compensation of ten cents a day deducted, leaves in the neighborhood of $13.25 to the man. Items of clothing and mitts takes nearly all for the month. By comparing the retail price for dressed lumber in the city of $27 to $35 and $40 per M., the direct profits are divided with the contractor.

To be fair to the workman he should be paid not less than 40 cents an hour. B.C. has that law, why not Alberta? Can nothing be done by legislation to make it law here? There is no reason why it can't be made.

At the present time two parties have the contracts and one is paying 2 cents to peel standard flat ties and square sawn ties one cent. The other party 1½ cents for standard flats and ¾ cent for sawn ties.

Why this difference? In one sense one is reasonable to a certain extent the other isn't. No difference in contract price to contractor. One man peeled 85 cent ties and moved them to one side. Board cost 75 cents per day, so figure it out. Eighty-five cent ties at 1½ cents equal $1.27½, deduct 75 cents for board; 52½ cents for a day's work. Result, a darned sore back and nothing to show for it only a few cents.

Now let us look at the price of 28½ cents which contract gets on 50,000 ties. After expenses are all paid, pretty well on to $3,000 clear profit, all at the expense of the worker.

The appeal to the people of today should receive support and if something is done we will be able to see our way clear and demand the scale of wages we are entitled to.

We trust that the time will come when we will receive the benefit for our work, if some of our legislature members will give use a better support and give us a chance for our livelihood which we as Canadian citizens are entitled to.

FAIR PLAY,
Blue Ridge, Alberta.

SILVER JUBILEE EMPIRE STAMPS

In addition to the special issues that will be issued, on May 6, next, by the Dominions of the British Empire, particulars of which have not yet been announced, there will be issues for 43 territories which are under the immediate control of the Colonial Office.

There will be 172 separate stamps, with face value of about $18.00, and a uniform design will be used in which the name of the territory appears at top, above a view of Windsor Castle. The dates "1910-1935" appear over a profile portrait of the king (looking left) in medalion, at right. The denomination appears at the lower left-hand corner of the design and the words "postage and revenue" appear at bottom. The highest denomination in any one set will not exceed the equivalent of 25c, but the respective sets show considerable variation as regards face values.

The following territories will have special stamp issues: Antigua, Ascension, Bahamas, Barbadoes, Basutoland, Bechuanaland, Bermuda, British Guiana, British Honduras, Cayman Islands, Ceylon, Cyprus Dominica, Falkland Islands, Fiji, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gilbert and Ellis Islands, Gold Coast, Grenada, Hongkong, Jamaica, Kenya, Uganda, and Tanganyika Territory (joint issue), Leeward Islands, Malta, Mauritius, Montserrat, Nigeria, Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland Protectorate, Saint Christopher-Nevis, St. Helena, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, Somaliland Protectorate, Straits Settlements, Swaziland, Trinidad, Turks and Caicos Islands and Virgin Islands.

The stamps will be released simultaneously on May 6 and remain on sale to the public until December 31.

With the special set of four values, to be issued by the Mother Country, as well as the Dominion issues, collectors will have an interesting and historical group of, probably, well over 200 different stamps to be added to the collection. Short sets (one, two or three values) in unused condition may be obtained of each territory if $6 is sent to the club director at an early date. This amount is slightly over face value; the difference is to absorb postages and exchanges in obtaining the issues.

WEEKLY CLUB SPECIALS

Canada—100 face different postage and revenue stamps. This lot will catalogue well over five dollars. Only one to a member at $1 nett.

DIES OF 3-CENT 1932 ISSUE

A philatelic writer asks "why" the use of more than one die in the lower values of recent Canadian issues. This IS a problem! Looks as if there was a collector at the printers!

The 3c value of the 1932 issue (current medalion type) appears in two dies. Gibbons list Die I. as having the point, at top, of the right hand figure exactly opposite the horizontal line above "cents". Die II. has this point distinctly above this line and, in addition, the value inscriptions appear thinner. Plate 2 is the only one on record, as yet, as Die I.

Rogers' Group Of Stars Now Play Capitol

Together in "Judge Priest" and "David Harum", Evelyn Venable (above) and Louise Dresser (flower) star again with Will Rogers in his new film, "County Chairman", opening today at the Capitol. Kent Taylor and Stepin Fetchit are two more of the Rogers' band of screen notables who are cast in the picture.

The ukulele was reproduced by the Hawaiians from the guitar introduced by Portuguese traders.

RIALTO OFFERS TWO FEATURES SCREEN TODAY

"I Am A Thief" and "The Church Mouse" on Big Program

The bloodstained records of all the famous jewels in human history make no mention of diamonds called "The Karenina." They exist only in the imagination of the screen playwrights whose story of the diamonds which were the objective of Europe's most daring jewel thieves and the keenest police agents of the continent is now the Warner Bros. production, "I Am a Thief," playing today and Monday at the Rialto theatre, with Ricardo Cortez and Mary Astor in the stellar roles.

Back of the actual jewels used in the picture to represent the Kareninas, however, is an intensely interesting story. It goes back to the eighteenth century, to France of the Bourbon kings, Louis the Well-Beloved, and the epoch of Pompadour and DuBarry.

This picture, "I Am a Thief," is the story of the breath-taking adventures of a band of daring international jewel robbers and their battle with secret service operatives on the Continent during their attempt to steal the almost priceless Karenina diamonds, which results in several mysterious and baffling murders.

There is an all star cast which includes besides Miss Astor and Cortez, Dudley Digges, Robert Barrat, Irving Pichel, Herbert Cavanaugh and Arthur Aylesworth. Robert Florey directed the picture from the story and screen play by Ralph Block and Doris Malloy.

This is a double feature bill with the other half being Laura La Plante in "The Church Mouse."

Carole Set To Play Lead Opposite Bing

Carole Lombard's projected trip to Europe was called off today when the blonde star now resting in New York City, received word from the studios that she will play the leading feminine role opposite Bing Crosby in "Sailor Beware." Elliott Nugent will direct the film, it is announced.

Mary Astor Heads Cast Rialto Film

Successor to Billie Dove's crown as Hollywood's most beautiful star, Mary Astor is featured in "I Am A Thief," starring Ricardo Cortez, at the Rialto theatre today. The film shares a double billing with "The Church Mouse."

Shirley Temple Stars Princess

It was a happy coincidence that launched Shirley Temple on the road to success as a motion picture star. This is the way it happened:

Jay Gorney, composer of the music for "Stand Up and Cheer!" saw her perform in a preview of one of the Baby Burlesk comedies at a suburban Los Angeles theatre one night while the studio was frantically searching for a talented youngster of Shirley's type. Coming out of the theatre, he saw the little girl and her mother in the lobby and suggested to them that they visit Fox Film. Shirley went to Movietone City—and was such a sensation that Winfield Sheehan signed her to a contract.

She subsequently appeared with Janet Gaynor in "Change of Heart," and with Adolphe Menjou in "Little Miss Marker." And now she is playing the title role in "Baby, Take a Bow," at the Princess theatre today.

CAPITOL HAS ROGERS STAR IN NEW FILM

Has Lead Role in "The County Chairman"—Opens Today

Described in advance accounts from Hollywood as the finest to date of Will Rogers' notable series of American character portraits, the Fox Film production, "The County Chairman", will be seen here at the Capitol theatre beginning today.

"The County Chairman," it is said, is a story of smiles and heart rending pathos by the hugely successful "Judge Priest" and "David Harum" as a vehicle for Rogers. In the new film he plays the part of a wily, lovable county boss, half-diplomat, half-rustic. He wins elections and arranges feuds at the beginning today.

"The County Chairman," it is said, is a story of smiles and heart rending pathos by the hugely successful "Judge Priest" and "David Harum" as a vehicle for Rogers. In the new film he plays the part of a wily, lovable county boss, half-diplomat, half-rustic. He wins elections and arranges feuds at the beginning today.

A notable supporting cast includes such players as Evelyn Venable, Kent Taylor, Louise Dresser, Berton Churchill, Mickey Rooney, Frank Melton and Stepin Fetchit.

Once again, it is stated, Will Rogers displays his recently developed flair for singing in this picture. You will recall his musical repertoire in "Judge Priest." This time he renders an old-time western rangers' song, accompanying himself on the guitar. Another highlight of "The County Chairman" is one of those famous torchlight processions so much in vogue at the turn of the century. This one is staged by Will and is said to have all the frenzy and thrill of its originals.

You mustn't miss Will Rogers, the inimitable, in "The County Chairman." You'll love him more than ever—and no one can say more than that!

JOAN CRAWFORD STARS EMPRESS

The much talked-about filmization of the Tallulah Bankhead stage hit, "Forsaking All Others," with the breath-taking combination of Joan Crawford, Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery in one picture, is the special film attraction which opens a three - day engagement at the Empress theatre on Monday.

Robert Montgomery

Based on the successful play by Frank Cavett and Edward Roberts, which presents the eternal triangle from a fresh and highly diverting viewpoint, the new picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke, whose long string of successes culminated with the recent "Thin Man" and "Evelyn Prentice."

Cast as a young Parkavenuelte who leads the procession in a mad whirl of gaiety, Miss Crawford has been finally given the chance to do the real comedy characterization for which her legion of admirers have long waited.

Gable, fresh from the intimidable, in "The County Chairman." You'll love him more than ever—and no one can say more than this!

Radio Stars At Dreamland Now

One of the greatest casts of screen, stage and radio stars ever assembled comes to the Dreamland theatre Monday in Reliance's "Transatlantic Merry-Go-Round," a sparkling comedy drama with melody, mystery and romance, staged aboard a palatial ocean liner.

Headed by Jack Benny, Nancy Carroll and Gene Raymond, it includes Sydney Howard, who is known as England's Chaplin, Mitzi Green, Sid Silvers, Frank Parker, The Boswell Sisters, Sidney Blackmer, Ralph Morgan, Shirley Grey, Sam Hardy, Patsy Kelly, William Boyd, Jean Sargent and Jimmy Grier and his orchestra.

Jack Benny's broadcasts from the high seat, including imitations of famous screen personalities by the now grownup Mitzi Green, songs by Frank Parker and The Boswell Sisters, comedy by Patsy Kelly, music by Jimmy Grier and his orchestra and elaborate dance ensembles by a bevy of Hollywood beauties, are high spots of this Harry M. Goetz-Edward Small production, which Benjamin Stoloff directed for release through United Artists. Sammy Lee and Larry Ceballos directed the musical sequences in the story which is from the pen of Leon Gordon.

CAPITOL GETS FINE LINE-UP NEW PICTURES

Manager Wilson, of the Capitol theatre, announces a new departure in theatre offerings with the announcement of a Spring Festival of certified entertainment which he guarantees the film theatre offered at the Capitol theatre.

"I have no hesitation on recommending and guaranteeing the pictures which will play at the Capitol during the coming weeks," says Wilson.

"The motion picture companies have searched the world for outstanding merits in screen stories—from distinguished authors, favorite books and modern writers. Down-to-earth human interest stories will be joined with spectacles and important musical pictures. Many of the new pictures will be from the works of authors universally accepted as setting the standard in literature."

The coming attractions include the following: Will Rogers in his latest success, "The County Chairman," which opens for three days starting Saturday. "The Gilden Lily" comes Wednesday next for three day run featuring Claudette Colbert. Then for a full week George Arliss will be seen in "The Iron Duke," commencing Saturday, March 16, and in conjunction with this exceptional production will be added the first of the greatest of film series, "The March of Time." Then, coming in the order given there will be "Ruggles of Red Gap," starring Charles Laughton, Zasu Pitts, Charles Ruggles and other famous screen stars. This will be followed by "After Office Hours," featuring Clarke Gable and Constance Bennett. Then for a week's showing commencing Saturday, March 30, the biggest production of all time, "David Copperfield," the most famous and popular of all Dickens' stories. This production will be closely followed by "Clive of India," featuring Ronald Coleman and Loretta Young and "The Scarlet Pimpernel" another real masterpiece; the three latter productions are now playing for extended runs in Toronto, New York and Chicago, continuing week after week without a let-up in the attendance.

"Never before," says Manager Wilson, "in the history of this business, as long back as I can remember, have we had such an abundance of great attractions, that will bring people to our theatre from far and near."

BRITISH FILM PLAYS STRAND

Betty Balfour, the splendid English actress, whose sensational return to the screen is indeed an event, is appearing in the title role of "My Old Dutch" at the Strand theatre, and is of the opinion that filmgoers are getting to know too much about films and the private lives of the players. This is bad for the film industry; it is worse for film fans. When you pay for a seat you pay for a few hours of make - believe. You want to be told a story, to play a game of pretend. Of course, all of us enjoy a little occasional gossip, that is only human. But if we are wise we shall at any rate keep our inside information to ourselves while we are watching a film.

Betty Balfour

"I realize that a film actress is, in a sense, a servant of the public, and that those who pay the piper have a right to call the tune," says Miss Balfour. "I am always ready to read or hear any criticism of my acting, my appearance, my dress, or in fact anything to the Betty Balfour who belongs to the public. But I do not see why the life of Mrs. Jimmy Campbell should become public property, do you?

"A few years ago, when I was making the 'Squibs' films, I had thousands of letters from all over the world addressed to me as Squibs. They wrote, not to me, but to the Squibs they had seen on the screen; and believe me, it was with the mind and heart of Squibs that I read and replied to those letters. They made me happy because they proved that I had succeeded in creating a convincing illusion. And that, after all, is an artist's job."

Illness Forces Ann Harding From Cast

Ann Harding's plan to be the first actress to star in a feature-length colored motion picture under the new Technicolor process, went glimmering today because of ill health.

The star who was scheduled to appear in Walter Wagner's colored picture, "Peacock Feathers," and who already had made costume and photographic tests, was ordered to Tahiti for six months by her physician, Dr. William Branch.

Listen Inn

A race between NBC's two nets and CBS, that is rapidly developing into a raging free for all for sustaining hours from Chicago, is panning out all to the good for listeners, who in the course of the next few weeks will be able to pull in from the major webs, broadcasts which up to now have been kept off the national hook-up due to the stranglehold on the Windy City's dine and dance spots by the Chicago Tribune's station WGN. When the big nets finish airing the large commercials on each night, the fill-in space up to and after midnight is taken up with sustaining entertainment of "name" bands, and dialers have had the limited choice on the kilocycles of Orville Knapp, Anson Weeks, George Hall and Frank Dailey for CBS and Don Irwin, George Hamilton, Leonard Keller, Tom Oakley and Don Pedro for NBC.

The Tribune's WGN coming into the NBC fold makes available to the WEAF and WJZ outlets the famous Aragon-Trianon hour with Wayne King and Jan Garber, Ted Weems from the Palmer House and nightmology from the College Inn, the Chez Paree, the Grand Terrace and Edgewater Beach.

Listeners who prefer variety of other entertainment Sunday night will keep their dials on KOA and other NBC-WEAF-WJZ outlets to pick up the cream of network enjoyment from the early evening hours until the late dance spots from the Pacific Coast . . . At 6:00 p.m. Editha Fleischer, Metropolitan Opera star will sing the prize aria, Maria in the Opera Guild's production of "The Bartered Bride", supported by Deems Taylor, narrator, Wilfred Pelletier's orchestra, Mark Windheim and Louis D'Angelo . . . At 7:00 Jack Denmeay, guest star on the Manhattan - Merry - Go - Round will relate some behind-the-scenes stories of his days in the ring . . . At 8:00 Jane Froman, Frank Black's orchestra and the Modern Choir will musically visit the French capitals with "On the Boulevard's of Paris", a specially arranged medley of favorite French numbers. "Got Me Doin' Things" and "Can't Help Lovin' that Man" will be the torch singer's solos . . . At 9:30, "Emporer Benny", a skit based on O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" staged by Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, Frank Parker and Don Bestor . . . At 10:00 p.m. last of the big program hours, the Countess Olga Albani and Charles Previn's orchestra draw the theme from famous literary works. "Waltz" from "Faust", Nevin's "Huckleberry Finn" and "The Flight of the Bumble Bees."

A local band leader who gets red in the face when the cash customers request "Isle of Capri" will be pained to learn that the ditty this week, for the fourth consecutive time topped the listing of the songs most played on the cross country networks according to the number of combined plugs on WEAF, WJZ and WABC. In order followed "Blue Moon", "I Believe in Miracles", "Fare Thee Well Annabelle", "Cocoanut", "Moon Turns Green", "You're the Top", "You and the Night and the Music", "Tiny Little Fingerprints" and "Every Day."

2,000 Boy Scouts Girl Guides In Rally To Welcome Chiefs

A great rally of 2,000 Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of Edmonton and district will be the highlight of the four day visit of Lord and Lady Baden - Powell, world chief Scout and world chief Guide, who will arrive in the city on April 24. The rally will take place at the Edmonton arena on Friday, the 26th.

During their stay here, every effort will be made to give the tilled party a hearty but quiet reception. B.P.' celebrated his 78th birthday but two weeks ago. The chief Scout and Guide arrive on the Wednesday and at 5 p.m. will interview the press. On Thursday there will be an official reception by Premier Reid and Mayor Clarke. On Friday at noon, Lady Baden-Powell will address the Canadian Club.

On Friday evening the rally will commence with the assembling of all Scouts, Rovers, Wolf Cubs, Guides, Rangers and Brownies on the floor of the arena. Groups from each point as Millet, Leduc, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Alix, Red Deer, Lamont, Fort Saskatchewan and Grande Prairie have signified their intention of being present to greet their world-famous chiefs.

Following an address by Lord Baden-Powell of Gilwell there will be a march past out of the arena. The grand salute and howl of the Brownies and Wolf Cubs will then be taken. A knotting display by the Girl Guides will be followed by a presentation of physical training, pyramids and tumbling by the Boy Scouts.

All groups will re-assemble for a closing ceremony. It is expected that the public will be present in large numbers to see the famous visiting party and to witness the great expression of youth's loyalty and affection.

Lieut.-Col. Branville Walton, O.B.E., highest Rover Scout officer, is accompanying the party and it is the intention of local Rover Scouts to hold a campfire for him on the Saturday evening, probably at the Sixth (Mossie) Rover Den.

On Saturday afternoon conferences will be held at which Scouters and Guiders will be given an opportunity of meeting their respective chiefs.

The Edmonton district Scout association, of which Vernon Pearson is president and Harry Holloway secretary, is in charge of the rally, and is carrying out its arrangements under the direction of E. F. Scarlett, district commissioner, and Mrs. H. M. Newson, divisional commissioner of the Girl Guides.

The boys have been playing real basketball lately. On Thursday they took Eastwood 45-17. Harry Crockett was the most outstanding player in both games scoring 14 out of the 45 points in Thursday's game and 10 points on Saturday. Other stars were Cruickshanks and Don Dean.

The House Hockey League champions at Tech were finally decided when the team from 2E and F, defeated 1½ and H, 7-2. Thursday noon of this week.

Undefeated Sixth Scout Troop Cops Junior Hockey Cup

Undefeated during the entire season, the junior hockey team of the Sixth troop of Holy Trinity church carried off the Scout hockey cup by defeating the 20th troop of Christ church in two straight games; the play-offs, scores being 3-2 and 3-1.

"Scram" Scramstad starred on the forward line, and the unbeaten six-man lineup were Lloyd Abrams, Frank Montgomery and Pug Young. George Montgomery managed the team. For 20th troop juniors, Eric Bale, Harvey Crawford and Bill Rankin did splendid work.

In the senior division the deadlock resulting from the first two play-off games will be broken in the final to be played at the Varsity rink on Monday at 8:30. The Sixth won the first game, 3-1, but were defeated in the second, 3-2. Cpl. F. R. Gibson and Laurie Tyrell have managed the 25ths two teams.

HENPECKED!

Does you wife talk a lot?" a man asked a friend.

Talk a lot?" was the reply. "If I suddenly became deaf and dumb it would take her about a week to discover it!"

CLASS '35 HAS PLANS FOR START

BY PAUL MALONE

In two months 300 graduates, degree in hand, will face forth from the University of Alberta to wrest a living from an inhospitable world.

Although provincial and federal governments are expected to do nothing toward finding jobs for the graduands, it is extremely doubtful that unemployment ranks will be augmented by even one of them.

The class of '35 has plans.

Ninety students are slated for Bachelor of Arts degrees. Most of these will continue their studies in other faculties, using their arts courses as a basis for more advanced study. A goodly portion will enter the School of Education to emerge in two years' time as fully-fledged pedagogues. Others will depend on their B.A.'s to place them in the world of letters and journalism.

Having attained Bachelor of Science degrees in Arts, 26 students will follow largely in the footsteps of their more humble B.A. brethren with mighty greater assurance due to their more valuable degree.

BRIGHT PROSPECT

Of all the phases of the modern world, one of the brightest fields is that of engineering. Particularly, in western Canada, are prospects favorable for students of mining engineering. Many expect to leave the U. of A. this fall. They will all play parts in opening up Canada's great mineral wealth as their predecessors from the local campus are doing at the present time.

One co-ed is numbered among 16 electrical engineering final year examination candidates. She is Miss Esther Rabkin, who intends to practice her profession in her native land—Russia. Fifteen chemical and four civil engineering graduands bring the total of the Science faculty's contribution to the graduating class of 56. A good men and true, with one exception—Miss Rabkin.

Ernest Yamaoka, Japanese student, is one of the two undergraduates who expect to obtain their degrees in architecture.

BRACE OF LAWYERETTES

Miss Helen Ford and Miss Mary Duncan are among the 20 law students slated for graduation this year. Graduates in law usually experience little difficulty immediately after graduation, due to the fact that they must article before being admitted to the bar. Their future is assured, for a short time at least, although their living hardly more so than when they were students.

Eleven graduates in household economics, not a male among them, will chiefly enter hospitals, as student dieticians. Pharmacy degree holders to the number of 16, will either return to the firms to which they were apprenticed, connect themselves with other establishments, or set up business themselves. Few will qualify for the latter class unless possessing considerable capital.

Twenty-nine students expect to graduate in medicine. They will then continue their internes hips, begun in their latter years of study, until sufficient experience is attained to warrant a private practice. Six graduates in dentistry will probably seek connection with established members of the profession to add practical experience to theoretical knowledge.

BRILLIANT CLASS

Research or practical application of university training to Alberta farm lands, together with official posts, constitutes the lot of eight students in final year agriculture. Twenty-one are replete with class-room knowledge and experience gained in the University hospital, will face forth in May to continue their ministrations to the sick.

School of Commerce contributes students to the world of business and accountancy.

One reason for optimism in respect to the future of the class of '35 is the brilliance which has marked their scholastic and extra-curricular progress at Varsity. Among those receiving degrees in May will be Arthur Bierwagen and Margaret Smith, president and vice-president, respectively, of the current Students' Union executive. Practically the entire Students' Union executive, in fact, is graduating.

Leaving in May, also, are Doug McDermid, editor-in-chief of the Gateway; Kathleen Swallow, president of women's athletics; Don Wilson, president of men's athletics; Margery MacKenzie, president of the Wauneita Society; Parker Kent, editor and journalist, and a host of other students who have achieved renown in their university years.

Meanwhile, in the rapidly dwindling space remaining before the all-deciding final examinations, these three hundred students are dropping social and sportive recreations for the serious business of that last lap study grind.

These examinations are serious business and the midnight mazda glow long into the black hours of the a.m. There is a set-jawed mien about the countenance of the college as they set to. It must be made. Failure cannot be even contemplated.

At Convocation, a colorful and momentous occasion, which comes about the middle of May, the University will give these foster children her final blessing. Then, the world.

Ave atque vale, class of '35.

Stepping Along

By Ramsey Little

A Weekly Column Dedicated to the Youth of Alberta by the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Club

A press item of a few days ago amused me very much. The senate met at 3 p.m. and it adjourned at 3 p.m. It was referred to in a joking manner, and it was in that way that it first appealed to me but later I began to see the serious side of the matter.

Last week I dealt with the subject of reform of the B.N.A. act, when I attempted to show that it was an outworn relic, this week I shall be discuss a specific provision under that act, the provision which provides for a Senate.

The Senate is not only outworn but it is an entirely useless institution which has today degenerated into a home for old men, or old women when ever way one wishes to call them.

The Senate is comprised of ninety-six members, twenty-four from each of the four great Provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Maritime provinces and the Prairie provinces. These members are for life and political appointees and remain in office for life. The principal idea behind the clause providing for an upper house was to act as a curb upon Parliament, in case that body should attempt to rush through legislation that was not in the best interests of the people.

Today that necessity no longer seems to exist, by the time legislation has passed through Parliament the Public is fully conversant with all its provisions, the modern newspaper having made the subject matter of a bill to its readers almost as soon as the words are spoken. The work of the Senate as a consequence has devolved almost entirely into the routine one of giving assent to the bills as passed.

At present Canada is far behind the rest of the world in matters of social legislation, but there is the prospect that in the very near future a fairly large quantity of this legislation will be dealt with by the Parliament of Canada.

This raises the point as to what will be the attitude of the Senate towards this important change in the social and economic order? As a result of the political nature of the appointments to that body, it is always possible for an incoming government to find itself opposed by a hostile senate, with the power to reject any bills of which it does not approve.

The senate is in many ways comparable to the British House of Lords, save only in the hereditary nature of the latter body. The struggle between the British parliament and the House of Lords has been much more pronounced than the differences between the two bodies in this country, but both bodies have to rely for their main support upon the Conservative party, because it was the one purpose of the upper bodies to act as a curb upon any so-called radical party in case it gained power.

The action of Mr. Lloyd George some years ago, of threatening to create an unnamed number of peers to further the passage through the Lords of his social legislation had the effect of curbing greatly the power of that chamber.

The prospects are, that should the Labor party gain power in the British Isles—and there is a good possibility of that happening—then the House of Lords will be drastically reformed or abolished altogether.

In Canada there seems to be no really sound arguments for the retention of the senate. It is undoubtedly an expense that we can ill afford, the cost of government being far too high in this country, and there is as well at this time, when curtailment of expenditure is of paramount importance, a grave serious consideration to the subject of abolishment of the senate.

With the return of titles for Canadians there is now two means of rewarding party workers, either by recommending a title or appointing them to Senate. Fortunately a title costs the country nothing, but the senate costs a lot for a considerable expenditure of money. The money spent on this upkeep brings no benefit to the people of this country, neither in money nor in economic or political security.

It is doubtful if the government of Canada would be changed one iota if the senate were done away with today. This age is one of progress, both in economics and in government, the continuity of almost half the world having undergone a political nature during the past six years.

For a period democratic government was fighting a battle against Bolshevism and Fascism, but today the situation has changed, the latter two systems are not nearly so much on the defensive, as witness their terrorist actions of a few months ago.

With democratic government now safely assured in our country, the senate is a body that should designed to make responsible government suited to modern times, since it is no longer any danger that Canadians will force through parliament legislation which is detrimental to the welfare of the British Empire, therefore the protection which the British government needed through the senate no longer stands.

The senate met at 3 p.m., the senate adjourned at 3 p.m., there was no work to do, there will be none tomorrow, why maintain this useless and expensive chamber, which is not a blessing and may prove a curse.

She Explores Depths

Once upon a time, not very many years ago, there was a very little girl whose name was Gloria Hollister, who scampered over the hills near her home at Suffern, N. Y., on her pony, with her dogs frisking about. Later the little girl trained her horses for shows and also exhibited cats and dogs, and some talked cats and chickens brought from British Guiana. Always she was interested in animal life.

Still as a little girl she experimented with home made diving apparatus staying under water as long as she could with a self-made contraption to give her air. She still likes to dive, but now she has gone down as low as 400 feet into the ocean with a 60-pound diving helmet on her head, a net in one hand and dynamite percussion caps in the other to stun fish. For the little girl who grew up and holds the title of research associate to William Beebe, author and deep sea explorer.

Yes, it is dangerous work. Miss Hollister admits, but she has faith in what she is doing and that helps.

Gloria Hollister attended Connecticut college at New London, Conn., and majored in zoology, continuing in graduate work at Columbia. In the Beebe expedition she was first made technical assistant, then technical associate, and now is research associate.

Two years ago Miss Hollister was made a fellow of the Zoological society, and elected to the Society of Women Geographers. Her special part of the work of the Beebe expedition is to study fish skeletons. She has completed 3,000 and has invented a new method of using dye to outline the bone structure of the fish, which is throwing new light on fish history.

Flying Aces Win Tuxis Final 2-1

Alberta College Flying Aces won the Tuxis finals when they defeated St. Mark's 2-1 in a rough and ready hockey battle. K. Todd and Gamache were the Aces' heroes when they scored one each and Barker for St. Mark's returned to slam in one for the losers.

Lineups:

St. Marks—Schiller, Flemming, Welch, Dobbin, Adams, Gray, Harmon, Lavor, Dykes, Barker.

Aces: Herdie, Goodwin, Simons, Chapman, K. Todd, Craig, E. Todd, Gamache, Rentiera.

Student Urges Youth Prepare For Changes

Deplores Lack of Interest Shown By Young People In Affairs of Men

By CHARLES K. HURST

President-Elect Tuxis Parliament

Youth today is more plentifully supplied with organizations than ever before, it has its young people's societies, its Scouts and Girl Guides, its Tuxis and its C.G.I.T., Youth has its political clubs but, in spite of all the numerous organizations which it possesses, the greater part of youth is not a member of any organization or club.

In spite of the fact that we often hear of youth movements, young people today are not interested in anything outside their own little sphere; they are provincial. Their social grasp is not sufficient (at least so they think) so why should they worry about what the rest of the people of Canada and the world are doing?

CONTENT IN INACTIVITY

They are content in their inactivity, so what matters if Bennett, King or Woodsworth rule the country? While old John sits at home arguing politics and economics with middle-aged John, young John grabs his hat and the keys to his father's car and makes a hasty departure.

It would be far from wise for anyone to urge that youth become rocking chair politicians, but it is asking too much to ask them to take some interest in such things?

"I am only young once," is the cry of the modern youth. He doesn't seem to realize that the greatest changes in history are to be made in his generation and he is making no effort to prepare himself for those changes. It is while he is young that he can prepare for change; if he waits until he is old it will be too late. Youth smiles disdainfully at politics as an old man's sport, when in reality it is also his business.

SHOULD HAVE SAY

In the past old men have declared war and the young men have done the fighting. It is time for the young men and women to become an interest in government and at least have some say in choosing the rulers they want to fight.

It is the lack of interest of citizens which permits political graft and economic corruption to exist in democracy. Political graft and economic corruption in democracy so disgusts some disinterested people that they flee into the arms of a dictator.

Is Canadian youth going to let its disinterestedness carry its inherited liberties and set them at the feet of a second Mussolini or Hitler, or is youth going to step occasionally on its mad dash to nowhere and do a little thinking?

TRAIL RANGERS' AMATEUR NIGHT

Trail Rangers of Highlands United church are putting on a jamboree in the church hall on March 15 and are calling it "Trail Rangers' Amateur Night." A carload of fun is assured.

There will also be shown a scenic film entitled "A trip through Alaska with bow and arrow," secured from the University department of extension.

Group tasking part will include the Livewires under John Morrison, the Eagles under Bryn Mathews and the Tigers under George Davies.

MINSTREL SHOW

The Superbets Tuxis group are taking part in a concert at Eastwood High School in aid of the school athletic fund by presenting their minstrel show which was recently so successful.

Under the presidency of Paul Knopp a highly enthusiastic young people's society of over 50 members has recently been organized at the Highlands United church.

RANGER CAMP

The Eastwood "Ranger" camp is in full swing under the leadership of Tom Campbell and Larry Thompson. The camp is planning "Great Doings" for the near future.

On March 19 the Tuxis and Trail Ranger boys of Eatwood United church will take the evening service. Matt Davis will speak on "World Brotherhood."

The Girls' Junior Choir will supply the music under the leadership of Mrs. Warley.

Girls' Club Holds Annual Banquet

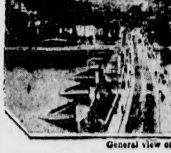
The Holy Trinity Girls' Club held their annual banquet at Joyce and Clow's banquet room Monday, March 4. The tables were beautifully decorated with daffodils and jonquils.

After dinner sets of whist and bridge were enjoyed, prizes going to Miss Ester Morgan and Miss Kathleen Hind in whist and in bridge to Miss Margaret Webster and Miss Dorothy Miller.

Those present were Mrs. P. Greenwood, Mrs. R. Reynolds, Miss Edna Huntbach, Miss K. Baird, Miss Josephine Lutin, Miss Marjorie Dalton, Miss Dorothy Jones, Miss Winnifred Payne, Miss Donalda Woods, Miss Doris Morgan, Miss Esther Morgan, Miss Kathleen Hind, Miss Margaret Webster, Miss Margaret Hogeau, Miss Edith Fleming, Miss Gwen Pearson, Miss Vera Pearson, Miss Emily Brown, Miss Betty Booth, Miss Vera Smith.

Know Your World

PRAGUE



The Teinchurch. The powder tower.

General view of Prague.

DESCRIPTIVE—Prague, situated on both banks of the Moldau, in what is now Czechoslovakia, is 150 miles northwest of Vienna, and according to a recent census has a population of 848,061, predominantly Roman Catholic.

HISTORY—There is evidence Prague existed as a town as early as the 10th century. Its early history is colored by the exploits of the old Bohemian kings who lived there. Under the rule of Charles IV. the city became one of the principal municipalities of the German Empire in the 14th century. There was the Protestant and Hussite wars and the Thirty Years' war. In 1648 the Swedes captured the Kleinsite on the right bank of the Moldau, the last engagement of that conflict.

INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE—On a great waterway and at the junction of seven railroads, Prague is the economic centre of the Austrian crownland. Manufacture of railway cars, leather, cotton goods, beer, flour and metal products, and a great sugar market characterize the trade.

POINTS OF INTEREST—Prague is full of old churches and other buildings of historical and architectural interest. There are nine bridges across the Moldau, with a magnificent boulevard on the banks of saints. One of the interesting parts of the city is the Altstadt, which preserves its mediaeval appearance. In its centre is the Grosser Ring with a monument erected in 1650 marking liberation from the Swedes.

GRAMMATICAL ERROR

The chemist was in a bad temper. He had told his assistant to have a pail painted outside the shop, and when he saw it he was furious.

"You're a fool," he said.

"But sir, the paint is beautifully done," said the other.

"It may be," said the chemist. "But who's going to rely on us when our sign reads, 'In making up prescriptions we dispense with care.'"

Gerald: "Have you got hot and cold water in your room at the hotel?"

Ronald: "No, just tepid and lukewarm."

University Production Is Clever

The fact that the clergyman slept, in John Bridie's play of that title, was meant to prove that he and his kind certainly had nothing to do with the ultimate triumph to good of a family harrowed through three generations by the curse of a half-mad genius in its ancestry and a bar sinister to its name. "A Sleeping Clergyman," the twenty-second annual production of the Dramatic Society of the University of Alberta had its opening night in Convocation Hall, Friday, and will be repeated on Saturday evening . . . and is over and above all, the best amateur production of this season. . . . But to come back to the clergyman, and what he had to do with things, the fact that he slept, took all credit away from him, but also absolved him from blame, so that he practically works out like one of those delightful equations where x and y cancel, and the result is zero. Only the deep irony of the indifference of the clergyman leaves a fraction to be reckoned with.

In all, Varsity can take a bow for their presentation of a clever, ambitious play, and their success in handling it. A large cast of thoroughly competent actors, especially good direction by Emrys Jones—direction with imagination as well as well founded technique—and with Frank Holroyd's exquisitely designed and perfected sets to add the finishing touches, the whole piece was smoothly put over, and had as well the fascination of an unique theme.

"TOO LATE I STAYED"

However, the hands of the clock were reaching toward twelve when the curtain dropped on the last act, and in spite of the fact that the play was good, its lengthiness became a little wearisome. Especially with two scenes that were no more than transitional scenes, which in an amateur production could easily have been deleted. Act 1, scene 2, and act 3, scene 2, were not especially essential; only it would have been too bad to take such delightful darling bits away from Varsity amateurs. Lightning quick scene shifts helped tremendously—due to splendid stage management.

"We are our parents," quoth Dr. William Marshall . . . actually the oracle of the play. The theme topic of this amateur production. How parents dead, took flesh amazingly in their children, whose lives were wonderful stories of the mingled—but the sins of father and mother would be visited upon them, even unto the third and fourth generation. How, however, though the clergyman didn't help with their problems, the children of Nancy Marshall, endowed with their father's genius, and ungovernable passion, and with the stability of character of their mother's side of the family, eventually came to passions from strife and tragedy. Genius harnessed to the original good in them, triumphed. That was what Uncle Bob had hoped for. When he saw the lives of the children of two generations ruined on the cross grained characters of mother and father he had need to put his faith in God, and in the fact that he believed that good and ill allied must prove the triumph of the stronger, good.

Hazel Sutherland, first as Nancy Marshall, then as Wilhelmina Cameron, and finally as Hope Cameron, played three parts with the versatility and understanding, the poise and spontaneity that might be desired by a much more experienced actress. Through the difficult stages she was quick and spontaneous in acting.

Bob Folinsbee, first as the irascible brother, Charles Cameron I, and later as Charles Cameron-grandson gave a splendid performance. In the first choking to death scene he might easily have exhausted himself for the rest of the play, but everyone was glad to see him reappear as a more healthy young man. His make-up was excellent.

Walter Dallaire, as Dr. Marshall, took on strength of character with his developing years, and the half-whimsical philosophic part, one of the heaviest in the play, was exceptionally good. His make-up too was especially effective.

In smaller parts Mary Duncan as Mrs. Hanna, Jeffery Proune as John Hanna, Madeline Austin as Minnie, Robert Pearson as a police sergeant, and Burton Hooper as Mr. Douglas Todwalker offered much to the good balance of the play, and the success as a whole. Others in the cast included Clarence Weeks, Roy Chalmers, Robin Ritchie, Edward Aylesworth, Francoise Martin, Douglas Florendine, Charles Brick, Margaret Ennis, Hilda Schmidt, David Ross, Emily Scragg and William McCalla.—E. R. B.

MISS E. HOWARD DIRECTS PLAY AT VICTORIA HIGH

The play chosen this year by the Victoria High School dramatic club is the very charming "One Hundred Years Old", by Serafin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero as translated by Helen and Harley Granville-Barker.

The action takes place in modern Spain and centres around Senor Juan del Monte ("Papa Juan" as he is affectionately called by his children) who is about to celebrate his one hundredth birthday and is determined to have to his party all his descendants, good, bad and indifferent. Family intrigues and romances flourish around him but serenely he achieves his desires.

As usual in a Spanish play the characters are very real and stimulating—from the lovable "Papa Juan" himself with his sly humor, to Filomena, the mischief-maker, and Currita, the adorable great-granddaughter.

The play is being directed by Eva O. Howard and will be presented in the school auditorium, on March 13, 14 and 15 at 8.30 p.m.

The cast is as follows: Papa Juan, Gordon Burton; Dona Marcisla, Gwen Sellers; Don Evaristo, Bert Russell; Dona Filomena, Jean Boyle; Eulalia, Betty Folinsbee; Currita, Naomi Lang; Trino, George Cranmer; Antonon, Norman Chmielnitsky; Alonso, Raymond Burnap; Manuel, Allan Porter; Carmen, Helen Andrews; Rosa, Sheila Morton.

In Victoria High Play

Miss Jean Boyle, daughter of Mr. Justice Boyle, and charming member of the younger set, who is taking one of the leading roles in the annual play presentation of Victoria High School. "One Hundred Years Ago" is a very charming story of modern Spain and possesses delightful humor and many decidedly human and entertaining situations. It will be presented Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of next week in the High School Auditorium the social round . . . . .

NOEL COWARD, famous young globe-trotting dramatist, will board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, when she docks in Honolulu on March 28, en route to the Far East. Coward's latest play, "Pointe Valaine," closed last week on Broadway after a comparatively short run. He will probably stay in San Francisco for a few days, Los Angeles, and after visiting Honolulu, will board the white Empress of Canada with Hongkong and China as his destination.

Minstrel Show Entertains Kiwanians

Bringing joy and laughter to the large number of Kiwanians and their wives gathered in the Macdonald hotel for Ladies' Night, Friday evening, a group of members went "black face" in a realistic manner, and presented a tuneful and gay Minstrel Show. Mr. Frank Bird was the show manager, and Mr. Ralph Cooper the conductor and director. Especially entertaining were the old Southern melodies, lively and tuneful, as given by the well-trained chorus. Mr. Ed. McGarvey, one of the funny men of the show, took the solo parts. Messrs. Clyde Hook, Clayton Adams and Alex McDonald were the others who supplied the witty buffoonery and delighted the audience with their funny sayings. Mr. Harry Maddison made a fine style, "I'se a Waitin" and Mr. Ed. McGarvey did "Hallelujah" with the chorus. Others taking part were Messrs. Roy Henry, Charles Chrismas, Harold Randall, James Walker, Gordon Porter, Stanley Hawley, Harry Maddison, Cecil Martin, Len Sadler, Alex Ritchie, Fred Cowley, Andy Downes and Jim McArthur.

Mr. Louis Scott who was an excellent interlocutor, was presented with a beautiful set of gladstones by Mr. J. W. Glenwright, Kiwanis Lieutenant-Governor, at the close. In non-serious vein Mr. Glenwright presented bouquets of flowers to the wife of the president, Mrs. Joseph Cook, and of the past president, Mrs. James Walker.

Assisting with the entertainment, on a cleverly fashioned stage built at one end of the ballroom, and against a black background, were Miss Dorothy Murray, who danced a clever buck and wing number, and her sister, with little Jerry Snow in a song and dance number, and Mr. J. Van Buskirk, in dance and banjo solos.

Mr. Joseph Cook, the president, welcomed those present, and prior to the minstrel staged a lively overture by the orchestra was enjoyed.

Wives of the members were guests at dinner prior to the entertainment, and dancing followed later.

Among those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cook, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Glenwright, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD PLAY CONTEST

Two well balanced plays were presented to an enthusiastic audience Friday evening at the Young People's Union Executive's sixth annual dramatic contest held at the Masonic Temple. Two more plays in the contest will be presented Saturday and the Judge's decision on all four plays will be given.

A clever one act play centering around an old Waterloo war hero was the offering of the Metropolitan United Church. Fred Bowden as the broken-down and battle scarred veteran gave a pleasing performance. His make-up was the finest of the evening. Joan Perry, Allan Beckwith and Ben Wahi were excellent foils for Brewster and aided in no small way in putting across the scene.

Norwood United made it difficult for any other plays to surpass their scenery. The stage was made into the inside of a captain's room aboard a ship at sea. Through a large bright open window one could clearly see the pilot at the helm. Every once in a while an officer in full uniform strolled by, peering out to sea in a most realistic manner.

Stewart Kennedy and Bill Goebel as the pilot and officer of the watch added just that touch of realism that put the play over. Although they had not a single line or were directly connected with the actual play their presence was felt all through the act.

Clifford Roy drew the "heavy" of the play and handled it quite convincingly. Marguerite Clifton had just enough sob stuff to make as she portrayed a mother hurrying to the bed side of her dying son to make the audience feel with her. Jean Quick and Howard Hyland supplied the love interest. Bill Irving and Bill Stewart had important roles and more than did justice by them.—R. C. T.

Longer Skirts Characterize New Fashions

By ADELAIDE KERR,
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, March 9.—"Longer skirts" was the decree of today's fashion showing and, as the hemline came down, the fashion designers also began to get deep to the serious business of establishing their edicts for spring styles.

In the midst of displays stressing slightly shorter hemlines for women have struck a new note by exhibiting skirts which were only seven or eight inches from the ground. They are designed with a soft gored fullness breaking away from the old tight line with the rest of the silhouette molding the bust and waist.

"Wear capes" was the next edict illustrated by a collection which displayed them in every length from waist to knee. Outstanding among them were models made of two to four silver fox pelts, framing the wearer's face and sweeping around the arms. There were also hip-length evening capes of silver fox and ermine and three-quarter length wool capes topping wool frocks. Full length fitted coats in navy, black and grey wool, were also collarless and with cape-like sleeves bordered with navy and silver foxes. They showed no fur next to the face.

BEVERLY GROUP PRESENTS PLAY AS FIRST EFFORT

The newly formed Beverly Dramatic Club made its first appearance in the Beverly Presbyterian Church on Friday evening with Lillian Mortimer's three-act play, "The Wild Oats Boy". A splendid crowd was on hand to greet the young players in their first venture on the boards. Philip Haverstock, in the title role of Eddie, endeavoring to live up to the conditions of an eccentric will left by a supposedly defunct Uncle George, gave a convincing performance of a prodigal in the process of being reformed. This reformation was made difficult by the actions of his skeptical sweetheart, Judy, a role that was capably carried through by Mrs. Jack Booth. A number of relatives from the backwoods also added to his difficulties. The roles of Prue, the widowed cousin and her pestiferous son, Trout, were very amusing owing to the handling of them by Mrs. Walter Mathison and Mr. Stanley Gibbons. Mr. Charlie Floden as Chuck, the express driver, and Mr. Alex Motherspoon as Jake, the slick city cousin, gave nice performances. Mrs. Jack Goodfellow as Aunt Uncle from Maine, as portrayed by Mr. Lloyd Gibbons, proved to be the character comedy role, and the audience as a whole. Miss Catherine Haverstock was a charming Aunt Anne's maid. The part of Bee, the flirt, was a difficult one but was nicely cared for by Miss Cathcart-Jones. Mrs. Mathison as old Uncle from Maine, as portrayed by Mr. Lloyd Gibbons, proved to be the character comedy role, and the audience as a whole. Are Women With Bad Make-Up "Hypnotized" By Mirror Gazing?

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

A well-known psychologist recently made the startling statement that women who powder their noses go through life in a semi-hypnotic state, and aren't responsible for their actions. He says that it isn't the actual powdering that is responsible, but the fact that women gaze into mirrors when doing the powdering. And this mirror-gazing induces a state of self-hypnosis.

Whether that is true of not is a debatable point, of course. But when I see the makeups that some women sport, I'm inclined to believe that a good many of 'em really aren't responsible for their actions. I've discovered, too, that it is often older women who commit errors in makeup. And that's because they don't realize that maturity must forego a good many of the privileges that are allotted to youth.

As a rule, the elderly woman must tone down the vivid makeup that looks so attractive on a young face. She should strive for softness of line, rather than for extreme effects. The skin of maturity is always somewhat darker than the skin of youth. A note of blue creeps into the complexion and lips. And if a natural effect is to be gained, a darker, matching powder must be used, and a rouge with a different basic tint. The rouge and lipstick should usually have a faint hint of blue in them to reflect the bluish-red tones that appear in the mature skin. The lipstick should be applied sparingly, so that the mouth remains soft-looking.

ELISSA LANDI

Most elderly women can use eye cosmetics greatly to advantage, if they are skillful. For as women grow older, their brows and lashes tend to fade somewhat. And when the brows and lashes become pale, the face loses a good deal of its expressiveness and character. The older woman, however, must be careful not to apply her eye cosmetics too heavily. It is seldom pleasant to see an older woman with heavily made-up eyes, for this adds hardness to the face. Mascara should be applied only lightly to the lashes. And just a faint, soft tracing with an eyebrow pencil is sufficient to darken and accent the brows attractively.

Hot Breads Are a Real Family Treat

By MARY E. DAGUE

The warm, fragrant smell of bread just out of the oven and the delicious rich taste of it spread with thick melting golden butter, is one of my nicest childhood memories. I really pity the child who hasn't similar ones.

Sister Mary

Hot bread isn't so hard to make, you know—not if you use the so-called "quick" rules, for they are my family's favorites are fruit breads and hot rolls served with cottage cheese at luncheon.

The fruit bread makes grand sandwiches and I serve with tea in the afternoon, and if the rolls are tiny enough, they will do for tea with jam.

For breakfast, I use prune muffins. I always plan to serve a ready-to-serve cereal when I make muffins for breakfast, so the time spent on the muffins is saved on the cereal.

One cup prunes, two cups pastry flour, two teaspoons baking powder, three tablespoons granulated sugar, three tablespoons melted shortening, one egg, one cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt.

Wash and cook prunes in boiling water to cover for ten minutes. Drain, remove pits and cut in small pieces. I do this the evening before I want the muffins for breakfast. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add prunes. Beat egg until light and add milk and melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients and stir vigorously until all dry materials are moistened. Turn into greased muffin pans and bake 25 minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees F.)

FRUIT BREAD

One cup stoned and chopped dates, one-half cup candied orange peel, four tablespoons candied lemon peel, one egg, one cup white flour, 1½ cups graham flour, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons butter, one-quarter cup sugar, five teaspoons baking powder, one cup milk.

Beat egg until light with sugar and butter which has been melted. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to first mixture. Add milk and mix well. Add graham flour to dates and candied peels which have been finely chopped. Combine with first mixture. Mix well and turn into an oiled and floured bread pan. Let stand twenty minutes and bake one hour in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

This bread makes dessert unnecessary and simplifies meal planning. At luncheon the other day we had it with cream of tomato soup, croutons, cottage cheese and grape juice. When I serve a cream soup I occasionally omit the share of milk for my small son and substitute a glass of fruit juice, especially when cheese is included in the meal.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Stewed dried apricots, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, crisp toast, toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cream of tomato soup, croutons, cottage cheese salad, fruit bread, grape juice.

DINNER: Baked ham with pineapple juice, twice baked sweet potatoes, cauliflower in cream sauce or dried lima beans creamed, jellied beet salad, open apple pie, milk, coffee.

Monday—Making Room for Others In Public Vehicle

What's What

Question—Would you please outline for us a list of what would be necessary for Mrs. Jones? Mrs. Jones' wife is 50 years of age and a modern dresser. She likes good business clothes. Should we have sports outfits? We plan to sail during the month of July or August—our first trip abroad. How much or, rather how little baggage need we take?

Answer—A foreshadowed question which sets a record for 1935's earliest summer-travel query. Even a "modern dresser" must be conservative about steamer clothes. Mr. Rover should have an overcoat for cool nights aboard ship and for possible low temperatures in England, Scotland and Ireland. It can be quite chilly "over there" in August. He and his wife may take sports clothes for daytime deck wear. A business suit, worn when embarking, is useful for all land travel. A tuxedo may be packed for special occasions. Mrs. Rover may take one evening gown with a dinner jacket and two thin ensembles for Southern Europe. One smart afternoon costume will suffice, in addition to the every-day knit ensemble. A tweed coat, felt hat and comfortable shoes are absolute necessities. Since in all large cities abroad twenty-four-hour laundry service is available a two weeks' supply of washables will be sufficient. Extra baggage means extra trouble. Experienced overseas travelers limit themselves to one suitcase for each passenger.

J. H.—By all means ask your former employer for a letter of recommendation.

WHERE THERE IS NO DRAIN

To prevent the ice pan from leaking or becoming rusty from the drippings of your refrigerator, wash the pan thoroughly and dry it. Cover the bottom of the pan with paraffin about a half-inch thick. This will not only preserve the pan, but makes it easier to be washed and kept clean.

A SMALL BUDGET

When every penny counts on the small budget, buy first milk, then in order, fruits, vegetables, breads and cereal. So often only filling articles are bought and the safeguards for family health are neglected.

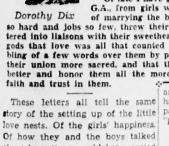
Is "Free-Love Marriage" Proving To Be Success?

DEAR MISS DIX—A young man and I loved each other very much. Owing to the depression he had lost his position and we were financially unable to marry, so we became lovers. I fought against it because I thought it would kill our love, but he insisted that it would only make him love me the more. For two years and a half all was well and I was happy. Now he has a position with a good chance of advancement, but he no longer talks of when we will marry. In fact, he avoids all discussion of the subject. We seem to be drifting, with him going away from me. I love him so much that life doesn't mean anything to me without him. Shall I give him up or continue drifting? I am afraid he doesn't intend to marry me and I hate to nag him about it. Shall I ask him frankly if he intends to marry me or shall I wait until he speaks? I am only 23 years old. C. A.



Dorothy Dix

Answer:

Of late I have got many, many letters like yours, G.A., from girls who, like you, seeing no prospect of marrying the boys they loved when times were so hard and jobs so few, threw their caps over the windmill and entered into liaisons with their sweethearts. The boys swore by all their gods that love was all that counted in marriage, and that the mumbling of a few words over a priest or preacher could not make their union more sacred, and that they would love the girls all the better and honor them all the more because they had shown their faith and trust in them.

These letters all tell the same story of the setting up of the little love nests. Of the girls' happiness. Of how they and the boys talked about how they would bet married when times were better so that they could live openly and decently together. And then they tell, just as you do, of the boys getting back their old jobs or new positions, and of the cooling off of the boys' ardor and of their ceasing even to talk of marriage. Some of the girls write that their lovers have openly deserted them. Other girls write that their sweethearts show that they are weary of them. I have even had letters from boys asking how they can get rid of the girls with whom they have been living and who, they feel, will be a handicap to them as wives with a past, in order that they may marry "pure" young women.

All of which shows that the returns from the free love marriages are coming in, and that they mean now, as they always have meant, disaster to women.

As to what you should do under the circumstances, your best plan is to force a showdown with your sweetheart and make him tell you his intentions. He is playing for time. He feels himself a cad in ditching you and he lacks the courage to do it offhand. Perhaps he thinks that he can make you break off the relationship by neglecting you. But all the delay, all of the subterfuge doesn't help you or soften the blow. It just drags out the agony and it will be far better for you to have it over at once.

In reality you know what is coming, for there is no woman in the world so dull that she does not know when a man has ceased to love her. Don't hang onto a man who wants to be rid of you. Don't make any man marry you from a sense of duty, because if you do you will bring misery down upon yourself. For no lot is so cruel as that of the unwanted wife.

If you have made a mistake, pay for it and forget it. There are other men and you are young enough to make over your own life and yet be happy. DOROTHY DIX.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The checkered hen felt very proud because it pleased the Tiny crowd. When it had finished with its song, the giant said, "That's great!

"Now, sing once more and then I'll let you strut away so you can get your share of corn, back in the hen coop, ere you are too late."

The hen, however, didn't stop to sing. It wished to fill its crop, and when the giant mentioned corn, it fluttered to the ground.

"Hey, there she goes," cried Scouty. "Gee, she must be hungry as can be. Let's follow her. She will be tickled when her lunch is found."

So, to the coop the Tinies went, and there a half an hour was spent. The giant gave the Tinies corn so they could throw the stuff.

The kernels disappeared real fast. Twas heaps of fun until, at last, the giant said, "Give her no more. I'm sure she's had enough."

And then, without another word, he grabbed hold of his magic bird and put her in a little box filled to the top with straw.

Said little Dotty, "Oh, I beg of you to make her lay an egg. I'll bet that it will be the biggest egg we ever saw."

The giant answered, "Wait until I come back here. You'll get a thrill when you see what I'm going to do." The Tinies cried, "Okay!

"We'll always wait for something new, remember, then, it's no use to you to hurry back. We do not want to wait out here all day."

About five minutes passed and then the farmer joined the bunch again. He had a big bass fiddle and he cried, "I'll play a tune.

"It's music that makes my hen lay. Now, please be quiet. Don't you say a single word. Then you'll all see a real sight pretty soon."

(The Tinies get their surprise in the next story.)

A BARBER WHO HAD RHEUMATISM

Tells How He Carried On

A barber who had been "a martyr to rheumatism" writes—

"I have been a martyr to rheumatism for some ten years. For five years I was so affected that it was with the greatest difficulty I was able to carry on my business. I may say I am a barber by trade. After having tried numerous remedies, I was finally advised to try Kruschen. I am pleased to say that after having used Kruschen for some twelve months, I am now freer from aches and pains than I have been for some ten years. In fact, I consider I am rid of rheumatism, thanks to Kruschen Salts."—W. M.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They actually dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of the Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to dispel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channel.

Peter Preaches To Gentiles

Illustrated Sunday School Lesson

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 10:1-11; 15:6-11

For more than 10 years after Jesus' ascension the early church was practically closed to Gentiles. An angel appeared to Cornelius, a devout Roman soldier at Caesarea, telling him to send to Joppa for Peter to come and preach to him and his household.

God prepared Peter for this new relation to Gentiles by a vision like a sheet let down from heaven containing various clean and unclean animals which Peter was told to kill and eat. When he refused the voice said, "What God hath cleansed, make not thou common."

Peter's sermon to them was a summary of the life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ and an appeal to believe in Him as Saviour. As they accepted it the Holy Spirit came upon them exactly as on the Jews on Pentecost and Peter baptized them into church fellowship.

When Peter's act was questioned he defended it claiming that God repeated on the Gentiles what He had done for Jews on Pentecost and the church approved and caught step with God in the forward march toward the brotherhood of man.

CHURCHES TO SAY PRAYERS

LONDON, March 9. — Church services throughout the British Empire will be marked by the singing of the national anthem during the celebration of the royal jubilee, it was announced here Friday.

It was also announced a special prayer had been written for the occasion by the Archbishop of Canterbury and would be said in all English churches.

The text of the prayer is as follows: "It is very meet, right and our bounden duty, that we should give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, Holy Father, Almighty, Everlasting God for that thou wast pleased, as on this day, to set thy servant, our Sovereign Lord, King George, upon the throne of this realm and hath profited him, in days of sickness and of health, throughout his reign of five and twenty years. For the example of unceasing service set by him and our gracious Queen Mary, for the loyalty borne to him by the great family of peoples and in all parts of the world. We magnify thy glorious name."

Dr. Osborn Speaks Twice On Sunday

Rev. Andrew R. Osborn, D.D., will occupy the pulpit at First Presbyterian Church at both services on Sunday, speaking in the morning on "Corner Stones" and in the evening on "Benumbing Doubt or Glorious Faith," being the second of a series of his sermons on "Do You Believe in Life After Death?"

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be administered during morning service.

The choir, under Carman H. Milligan, will present appropriate music.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at the local Christian Science Church and at all Christian Science churches tomorrow. Among the citations from the Bible is (Genesis 1:27): "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 94): "Man reflects infinite Truth, Life, and

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

March is taking time by the forelock and stepping up in line before February has quite blown out.

March is no sissy. He is tough and rough and doubtful, the outline month, the black-sheep and the villain.

And wouldn't this step-son of the war god come along at the very time of the year when most of us are the least prepared!

We feel so safe with that tang of spring in the air. The generous patches of deep blue sky fooling us into thinking that Pluto has released Proserpine and Ceres is herself again.

The kids leave their helmets or caps under the radio and run out bare-headed into the wind—kites get their annual exercise and marbles play grace-notes against the corner fence. Base balls are spit upon and begin smacking their grey into space. Stone steps and even the ground offer new allure. Just more traps of Enemy March to do his stuff.

O. R. Barton

RESISTANCE IS LOW

He blows all the dirty winter dust into the ladies' eyes and mouths and ears. Each dust particle, be sure, is a miniature airplane for goodness-knows-what germ.

Physically, almost the whole pack of us are low in resistance. There may have been compensations for the absent sun in the way of cod-liver oil tonics, but as a rule only the little tads get it. Anyway winter has left many children with a resistance average below normal and that's a fact.

So don't let's get careless for a while. Above all watch the wind. Plain cold doesn't hurt anyone if he keeps dry and is warmly dressed, but windy, dusty weather, and windy damp weather, warm or cold, is dangerous.

The one thing mothers, ears and throat are vulnerable just now, especially if children have kept their ears muffled all winter outdoors. Don't allow them to go out unprotected now. Those with tendency to ear, throat or sinus trouble need to be extra-carefully watched. Any tendency to pain or soreness behind an ear needs a doctor's eye and verdict at once, even though you may know how to cope with other simpler symptoms from past experience.

COLDS START WORSE ILLS

Common colds are a peg on which March loves to hang his head-gear while he gets in dirtier work. So make the children take care of themselves, wise mother, and don't stand for nonsense.

Clean handkerchiefs and the soft sanitary tissues now in use, should be part of every child's equipment each day, cold or no cold.

The right way to give simple ear-irrigations in case of infection and quickly so explained by your doctor. The right way to gargle with salt-water or how to prepare for either sore throat or its prevention can easily be learned by any child of four or over. There is a time and a place for the doctor, but always give the benefit of the least little doubt to the mother.

Watch little babies in their prams. Keep them sheltered from dust. They are closer to the street with its unseen enemies than you. Show General March that you have outsmarted him once again.

There are approximately 50,000 postoffices in the United States. The peak year for postoffices was 1901 when there were 76,945 in the country.

EXPLORE YOUR MIND

A Fascinating Pastime With ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D.Sc.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Not all moot questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is morally right is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1.—On the whole, yes. Of course back of selfishness are wrong education, natural cussedness, nervous imbalance, etc., and back of peevishness are faults of education, natural neurotic tendencies, maladjustment of sex relations, etc. Joanna Colcord, in her report for the Russell Sage Foundation, entitled "Broken Homes," points out that the social worker who stated it was chiefly selfishness in men and peevishness in women came nearer the truth than most of the elaborate researches into the psychology of marriage.

2.—Prof. Joseph Jastrow, veteran research leader in psychology, in his "Keeping Mentally Fit," shows that accurate observation, good memory for facts and ability to state clearly one's observations are much more important. Experiment has shown that the ones who are most confident they are telling the truth are often as far or farther wrong than the genuine liars. Considering those facts ask yourself how good a witness you would make.

3.—Prof. Edward A. Ross, sociologist of Wisconsin University, argues in his fascinating textbook, "Civic Sociology" and I think rightly, that it is an evidence of the growing emancipation of woman and "reflects woman's new sense of dignity and her access to paying jobs." However, he points out that it is due in part to the "decay of the virtues upon which the family rests, namely self-sacrifice, forbearance and loyalty." So many young people, he cautions, rush into marriage because they are "in love, and not because they stand ready to practice the self-control and self-sacrifice that marriage calls for. . . . They hope love will last but little dream how much they might do to keep it alive." Sound gospel from a wise head!

NOTED PASTOR SPEAKER HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Appears in Two Different Pulpits During Day

The name of Rev. F. A. Robinson, M.A., B.D., is familiar to many Edmonton people. Some will recall him in connection with the mission conducted here some years ago by Dr. Campbell-Morgan, also in connection with the visit of the late Rev. F. B. Meyer.

For some years Dr. Robinson has been at the head of a work called "Missions of Biblical Education" with headquarters at Toronto. This is an interdenominational work, and through it, Dr. Robinson has brought light to many congregations in various parts of Canada.

He is to be in the city for the next few days, and will be speaking in several churches. On Sunday morning he will preach at McDougall, and in the evening at Metropolitan, while at 3:00 p.m. he will speak at Hope Mission. On Monday at 8 p.m. he will give an address at First Baptist church where the joint Young People's Societies are sponsoring an open meeting.

Then on Tuesday evening he will give a Good Health lecture, entitled "Building Better Bodies".

As Dr. Robinson, a few years ago, recovered his own health through learning how to properly combine foods, he likes to pass on the knowledge gained. At this meeting a collection will be taken for his benevolent work, of which he does much in connection with prisons, redemptive homes, and reformatories.

CITY COUNCIL ALLOCATES $500,000 FOR RELIEF FUND

Will Meet Today In Third Attempt To Fix Mill Rate

Edmonton Bulletin

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER IN PUBLIC SERVICE

SECOND SECTION — EDMONTON, ALBERTA—ALBERTA'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER—SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 1935 — PAGE ELEVEN

No Desire to Reduce Relief Expenditure at Cost of Needy, is Spirit of Special Meeting.

An amount of $500,000 was set aside by city council at a special meeting Friday night to meet 1935 direct relief costs, and Supt. H. F. McKee, manager of the relief department, was instructed to allocate this amount to cover the various services in this branch of the civic service. Commissioners will assist him in such allocation.

The third special meeting of council on the budget will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday and there is a possibility the mill rate will be struck at this parley or at the regular meeting Monday.

Net cost of direct relief to the city for the five-year period ending Dec. 31, 1934, totalled $1,456,655.05, the gross cost, including federal and provincial government contributions of $2,961,984.15, being $3,618,611.20, it was revealed by Supt. McKee, when speaking to an expenditure total for the city of $537,684 estimated for 1935.

Of the total city expenditure for the five-year period, $690,000 was charged to natural account and $506,655.05 to current account, giving a grand total of $1,456,655.05.

SHOULD NOT CUT

The relief department was one branch of the civic service which she did not believe should be reduced in point of expenditure, declared Ald. Margaret Crang. Human needs came before budget economies.

Mayor Clarke stated that as long as he was in office he was going to see that those on relief did not starve.

Reduced contributions from the Dominion and provincial governments were referred to by Mr. McKee, who pointed out that the estimated expenditure would be met by government action on such contributions later in the year.

Larger items of cost for relief this year are: groceries, milk, meat, $884,733; light, water, $28,450; rents $218,000; fuel, $61,000; clothing $100,000; medical care, $24,000; farm relief settlement scheme, $20,000.

CRANG RILED

Ald. Crang was riled over the fact that although the 1934 budget had provided for an expenditure of $550,000, Supt. McKee had operated on a total cost of $461,000. She was of the opinion that relief cases had suffered thereby.

Supt. McKee explained that the 1934 estimate had been considerably higher than the actual cost, the department had anticipated it would need and hence the saving. He claimed that unemployed had been given adequate relief.

Urging a uniform scale of relief as between cities in the province, particularly Edmonton and Calgary, Ald. R. V. Bellamy said he did not think council should be bound by any relief policies adopted by the council of 1935.

Ald. Bellamy referred particularly to the increase of 25 per cent of relief food allowances given last year by the city council, this being the amount extra allowed over the food relief set by the Alberta Relief commission.

SEND McKEE

He suggested that Edmonton and Calgary co-operate better in the matter of relief policies, and in this connection recommended that Supt. McKee be sent to Calgary to garner information as to the relief system in operation in that city.

During discussion of relief department estimates, Ald. R. E. Foote objected to the time spent by council on details when there ought to be "a chance of us saving a ten-cent piece." He felt aldermen should speed up their deliberations so the mill rate might be set as early as possible.

Estimated cost of relief for 1935 was $537,684, according to the figure recommended by commissioners, but Commissioner David Mitchell suggested that the amount be cut tentatively to $500,000, leaving Supt. McKee to allocate this amount.

J. T. McCreath moved a motion to this effect, which carried.

An amendment that Supt. McKee's own estimate of $552,000 be adopted was moved by Ald. Crang, but was defeated.

Dealing with Ald. Bellamy's motion to send Mr. McKee to Calgary, Ald. J. W. Fry did not see the advantage of such a move unless the Edmonton council received some assurance that the Calgary council would co-operate on relief questions.

The motion to send the relief official to Calgary was supported, however.

Council tentatively adopted the revised estimates for this department.

The aldermanic board also accepted tentatively estimates totalling $138,750 under "miscellaneous," the total for 1934 under this classification being $140,930.02.

Civic grants aggregating $37,965 were adopted. The 1934 total was $37,102.90.

GOVT. SEEKS MONEY VOTE FOR NORMAL

Estimates for Fiscal Year Placed Before the Legislature

Inclusion in the estimates for the provincial fiscal year commencing on April 1 next, of $13,262 for the Edmonton Normal school, of which $12,012 is for salaries and $1,250 for expenses, indicates that the school will be reopened for the next year's last session. It has been closed for the last two years.

Estimates brought down in the house on Friday at the same time the budget was brought in also give evidence of the renewal of the Dominion-provincial agreement by which this province is policed by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

This agreement was entered into in 1932 and expires in May.

POLICE SERVICES

Estimates include a vote of $225,000 for this purpose, of which $175,000 is for police services and $50,000 for transportation and maintenance of prisoners.

In addition to the $28,228 paid in settlement of the Powlett hazing case at the University of Alberta, the estimates include another $5000 for appeal in the case, bringing the total so far, exclusive of legal fees, to more than $33,000.

A. P. Mitchell, Liberal, Leduc, on March 5 had asked the government in the house particulars of the settlement of this case, with the amount paid to lawyers, the Powletts and other disbursements, and in reply Hon. Perren Baker, minister of education, said "Final settlement of the accounts in question has not yet been made and the particulars asked for are not yet available."

Mr. Mitchell was keenly critical of the Minister's answer, stating outside the house, that he felt his question had been deliberately side-stepped and evaded by the government.

TO AID UNIVERSITY

The amount being voted to aid the University hospital deficit has been reduced from $35,000 last year to $15,000.

There is a considerable increase in the school grants appropriations, totalling $60,000.

Elementary and secondary schools receive a vote of $1,077,410, an increase of $30,750 over last year. Consolidated schools with a total of $134,670 are $18,360 up over last year. Equalization grants are now $190,000, an increase of $10,000 over last year. An additional $1,000 is granted for high school education, bringing the total vote for this year up to $40,000.

There is appropriated for free school texts a total of $50,350, an increase of a large amount over the vote of last year, which was $67,740.

The travelling clinic is being reestablished, a vote of $25,000 being included for this purpose, the clinic business for a few seasons, the clinic was operated for a limited time last fall at a cost of $5,000. A more extended service is planned this year.

Capital account for public works total $950,000, which is an increase of $763,870 over last year. District highways will get $500,000, as against $200,000 last year.

MAYOR FAVORS REFUNDING OF ALBERTA DEBT

Ready to Support Any Measure to Reduce Huge Interest Charges

Unless Edmonton was given the right to suspend or defer sinking fund payments for 1935 and 1936 city council would be budgeting for a deficit of $300,000, if it set the mill rate under 60 mills, in the opinion of Mayor Jos. A. Clarke.

This statement was made Saturday by the mayor during the course of an interview in which he said that favored the refunding proposal outlined Friday by Hon. J. Russell Love, provincial treasurer.

"I am ready to support any measure which will mean a reduction in the huge interest charges on debentures now being met by Edmonton taxpayers," he declared.

Emphasizing the financial difficulties which faced the city, the mayor declared that the surplus of approximately $150,000 on 1934 civic operations was not liquid, but was in reality a "paper surplus" which existed only on the city's books. Out of the 1935 tax payments the city had already paid the bank $300,000 to cover a deficit resulting from the fact that 160 per cent of last year's taxes had not been collected.

"City council, if it strikes a mill rate of less than 60 mills, is deliberately budgeting for an enormous deficit, which in my opinion will be under $300,000. And council will be doing this with its eyes open," he stated, adding that in his opinion this only way in which such a deficit could be avoided was to suspend sinking fund payments.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

In view of the fact that Sir Malcolm Campbell Thursday broke his own land speed record in his Bluebird at Daytona Beach, Florida, the Inquiring Reporter sought opinions on the subject. "Should he make a second attempt to gain the 300 miles per hour mark?" Here are the opinions gathered:

J. H. W. WILLIAMS, accountant: "I am of the opinion he should leave well enough alone, but he is an Englishman, and they usually continue trying until they achieve their object."

W. T. MURPHY, salesman: "It's his neck and not mine he is risking. I guess the speed 'bug' is like the snuff habit or a passion for tiddlywinks. Once you get the habit it's hard to break."

WANTS RECORD OF MEETINGS

Mayor J. A. Clarke is recommended by city council that a full record of conferences between himself and Commissioner David Mitchell be kept, and that Henry White, at present secretary to Commissioner Mitchell, be appointed secretary to the commission board of two for this purpose.

This suggestion was made following Mr. Justice Frank Ford's ruling that a record of such conferences should be kept for presentation to city council.

Tory Convention Due In April: Many Candidates

With the West Edmonton nominating convention disposed of Conservative organizers are busy preparing plans for a convention to nominate candidates for the provincial battle. While no date has been set for this meeting it is understood the convention will be held early in April.

Provincial candidates have already announced their intention of seeking nomination, while it is certain that three sitting members, D. M. Duggan, leader of the party, Dr. W. A. Atkinson and Col. F. C. Jamieson, K.C., will seek renomination. Those who have signified their intention of seeking nomination are Mrs. T. D. Fitzsimon, president of the Women's Conservative Association, Jack Ross, vice-president of the Central Conservative Association and F. R. Lovette.

Others prominently mentioned as likely candidates are: J. A. Buchanan, Mrs. W. D. Ferrie, Don Ramsay, secretary of the Alberta Association, S. Bruce Smith, and W. Dixon Craig.

It is understood that influential Conservatives will make representations to L. Y. Cairns, K.C., recently defeated for the West Edmonton nomination by James H. Ogilvie to permit his name to come before the provincial convention, but it is extremely doubtful that Mr. Cairns will accede to the pressure, Trustees of the Edmonton Public School Board will meet in the Board room, Civic block, on Tuesday, March 12, at 8 p.m.

Ward six, Women's Conservative Association, will meet at the home of Col. F. C. Jamieson, 10561 Saskatchewan Drive, on Monday, March 11, at 8 p.m. Col. Jamieson will be the speaker.

There will be a general meeting of the Disabled Veterans' Association in their hall, 10349 Jasper avenue, on Sunday, March 10, at 2:30 p.m. Re-organization will be discussed.

W. R. Howson, K.C., provincial Liberal leader, addressed meeting on the budget in the legislature on Friday, and he will carry on when the House meets at 3 p.m. on Monday.

L. G. Smith, Ottawa, who is in charge of mining operations at the White Eagle mines, arrived in Edmonton Saturday preparatory to paying a visit to Great Bear Lake Mr. Smith stated that he was unable to give any definite details on the future activities of the mine.

The popular group of singers known to Edmonton audiences as the St. David's Male Voice Choir, will present their second annual concert under the direction of Mr. Jack Williams, in the McDougall auditorium Friday, April 5. The program and the assisting artists will be announced later.

The thirty-third annual meeting of the Edmonton Poultry and Pet Stock Association will be held next Tuesday evening, March 12, at 8 o'clock, in the Public Library hall. Presentation of prizes, election and election of officers for the ensuing year will be the principal business before the meeting. A report on contagious bronchitis in poultry, prepared by the director of the poultry division of the federal government, will be read.

Mackenzie Air Service headquarters here reported Pilot Harry Hayter out of Edmonton airport Saturday morning, bound for the Lake Athabasca mining camps with supplies. Stan Williams, pilot, was southbound from Cameron Bay. No word has reached the office from President Leigh Brintnell's stormbound at Harrisburg, Pa., while bringing a new plane here for northland service.

ABERHART MAY NOT COME HERE

That William Aberhart, of Calgary, who has been invited to come to this city and prepare a social credit plan with the Edmonton social credit group, will not accept the invitation, was the opinion expressed by several Social Credit members of the provincial government, will decline the invitation, was the opinion expressed by several Social Credit legislative circles on Saturday. The resolution, in the last week, endorsed a resolution that an invitation be extended to him.

Mr. Aberhart is taking a few days to consider the offer and the committee some members feel that he will not come.

A similar arrangements for his reception, in case he does come, have not been completed, it is understood especially as members of the House consisting of 10 members six from the U.F.A. and one each from the Liberal, Conservative and Labor and Independents will meet him and generally discuss his plan.

The resolution which will be followed when Maj. Douglas arrives, probably in May or June.

A large number of requests have been received for copies of the proceedings of the Social Credit committee of the whole, when Maj. Douglas appeared here last April and these 1000 copies are being printed for distribution.

Province Hoists Decision Relief Grants To Cities

Pending receipt of Dominion government plans for inaugurating unemployment relief after expiration of existing agreements, decision is being withheld by the provincial government on the question of any increase in the monthly lump sum contribution to city relief. Hon. Hugh W. Allen, minister of municipal affairs and in charge of relief informed Mayor J. A. Clarke of Calgary on Saturday.

So far, declared Hon. Mr. Allen, the province had not received any word from the Dominion as to the date of an unemployment relief conference.

Last year the province reimbursed the cities to the extent of $45,000 in lieu of service tax payment. This year $30,000 is being paid. The province declared that this amount is insufficient and urged a reconsideration of the grant.

In the event of extended delay on the Dominion's part in dealing with the relief situation, the minister declared the province would carry on on the existing basis until such time as a new agreement was drafted.

It is understood that the Dominion is giving serious consideration to drafting a works program to take the place of direct relief, but definite details have been heard on that point here.

TEACHERS MEET FOR ALLIANCE GET-TOGETHER

Lively Program at Annual Banquet on Friday Night

With an attendance of more than one hundred, the Edmonton High School Teachers' Alliance held its annual banquet at the Corona Hotel, Friday night.

Toastmaster and chairman for the evening was A. P. Tingley, while dinner music was provided by Cecil Waggott and his orchestra.

The toast to the Edmonton public school board was proposed by Miss Mary Crawford who expressed the hope that in the future the ideals which were the aim of the board and its trustees, which were at the present time of economic distress far beyond their ability would be carried out.

DEFENDS CONTRACT

During his answer to the toast, Dr. Walter Morrish, chairman of the board, explained that although the present contract had its drawbacks he considered that it would be a step backward if any alterations were made. Teachers, he added, had a right to expect continuous employment.

Speaking of the meeting held Thursday night before the city council, Dr. Morrish stated that the board had no intention of suing the city for the $40,000 deducted from board's 1934 requisition as a report published Friday night had stated.

A toast to the Alberta Teachers' Alliance was proposed by A. J. Powell, and was answered by John W. Barnett, secretary of the Alliance, who stressed the need for placing teaching in the professional class and thereby making it of the same status as that of the legal or the medical professions.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Alderman H. D. Ainlay and answered by Miss Jeane Howard.

UNGRAMMATICAL SONGS

"The Modern Song and English" was the subject of an address given by Dr. W. G. Hardy, University of Alberta, who stated that the best way to make money nowadays was to write a song in which the rule of English grammar was broken. In addition to this, said the speaker, there was a tendency to ungrammatical popular songs, the rhyme found in these modern songs being atrocious.

For use in the modern song, the writer letter "r" is a disturbing convenience, said Mr. Gibbs, who gave as an example, "They're wearing their hair bobbed."

Some modern songs have been written that will endure the test of time, declared Dr. Hardy, but also stated that one person had estimated that there were enough love ditties among the popular music of today to provide a group of young people with an entire evening's entertainment.

Musical numbers were given by the following artists: Miss Violet Cumming, vocalist; John Hayter, violinist; George R. Conquest, vocalist; Accompanist. For the evening was Henry Alack.

Veterinary Group To Meet In City

Members of the Alberta Veterinary Association will convene in Edmonton on Monday for a full day course of study at which lectures will be given by members of the faculty of the University of Alberta and leading members of the association.

Lectures will also be given on sanitary engineering by Dean Rankin, of the medical faculty, while several members of the association will deliver addresses on special research work which has been carried out in the province recently.

The meetings will be under the chairmanship of Dr. R. E. Barlow, Barrhead, president of the association. Dr. H. J. Love, Edmonton, is secretary of the association.

Police Court

William Young winner of the doubtful honor of being the first man to be arrested here in three days, appeared in police court Saturday morning before Magistrate Col. D. C. H. Primrose and received $15 costs following guilty pleas to five charges of false pretences.

The counts arise from the circulation of worthless land cheques on which Young is charged with having raised $75. The cases were put over to Monday.

GOVT. ENTERS BUSINESS OF CAR FINANCE

The government of Alberta appears to have entered the automobile purchase financing business.

Not content with purchasing a fleet of automobiles for its cabinet ministers, it recently through one of its departments financed the purchase of a new car for an employee.

On February 20 last Dr. Harry K. Greff, medical officer for the Workmen's Compensation Board, needed a new car. He purchased for $1,145 a car for $1,120 and received an advance from the board of $1,000 to make the purchase.

A chattel mortgage on the car bearing interest at 6 per cent was given by the doctor to the Board as security for the advance. The terms of repayment, according to the chattel mortgage are $40 monthly until the principal and interest is repaid, the first payment to be made on April 1 next.

FARM WEEK AT "U" WILL BE IN JUNE

Two Distinct Fields of Study Offering to Students

Annual farm week of the University of Alberta will be held this year from June 6-12, according to an announcement by Donald Cameron of the campus extension department.

A change in the system of courses which prevailed in previous years will be made this year, running farm week to make available two distinct fields of study for students attending, agriculture or home economics courses as in previous years, will constitute one distinct week of study while such subjects as literature, history, folk-dancing, and photography, offered as supplements to agriculture and economics in previous summers will be built up to constitute a second course.

All young people of the province between 16 and 25 are eligible for the special farm week. Over two hundred from all parts of Alberta attended last year, results probable study with a visit to the city.

FUNERAL HELD FOR W. J. HART

Largely attended by Edmonton old-timers and friends of the family, funeral services of W. J. Hart, who died Thursday, were held Saturday morning from St. Joseph's Cathedral to the family plot in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Celebrants of the requiem solemn high mass were Rev. Alexander Nelligan, Father Joseph Malone and Father J. Rolleiger. A special choir consisting of members of the Edmonton clergy assisted. Pallbearers were H. J. Roche, Maurice Hughes, Hugh McGill, L. McEvoy, Z. Q. Foy and T. J. Ducey. Connelly and McKinley, funeral directors, were in charge of arrangements.

Winnipeg's Hope

WINNIPEG, March 9.—Approval of the Manitoba legislature of a bill to revise the city's financing structure, amendments estimated to produce an additional $1,000,000 revenue, appeared the only hope today of Winnipeg's balancing its 1935 budget or lowering taxes.

WORKERS FIRED MAY NOW SUE FOR DISMISSAL

Court Ruling Starts Rumors of Suits Against the City

Rumors that attempts are being made in interested quarters to have those employees who were dismissed from the direct relief department late last year take action against the city on the grounds of wrongful dismissal have resulted in a statement by Mayor J. A. Clarke that the employees in question were dismissed for just and good reason, and another by Commissioner David Mitchell that no money is owed each of them.

Likelihood of such action on the part of the former civic servants followed the ruling handed down Thursday by Mr. Justice Ford to the effect that neither the mayor nor a commissioner alone have the power to dismiss any employee of the city of Edmonton.

Queried in connection with the announcement City Solicitor Primrose-Lansdowne said he had no statement to make.

MAYOR NOT ADVISED

Mayor Clarke said he had received no information of any intended action by the three ex-employees. "I haven't heard anything about it, but I will say that any action taken by myself in dispensing with the services of relief department workers was taken only after a full consideration of all facts in the case and was carried out for a just and good reason," he declared.

Although five employees left the department, only three were actually dismissed. They were Ald. Percival and J. D. Bower, inspectors in the special relief department, and W. G. Murray, information officer in the permanent relief branch.

Mrs. Ida Latham, another inspector, resigned in her resignation after she had been asked for it by Supt. McKee.

Carl Berg, manager of the relief clothing depot, resigned on the day the new mayor took office.

One Car-A-Day Thefts Reported

The car-a-day stealing average of joy-riders was kept up Friday night when Dr. C. H. Weniss' Hudson sedan was taken, turning place in front of the Misericordia hospital shortly after 8:00 p.m.

Police found the car deserted hours later where it had been abandoned by the thieves near the intersection of 95 street and 107 avenue. It was not damaged.

LATE BUYING HELPS WHEAT IN RECOVERY

WINNIPEG, March 9—Scattered buying near the close enabled wheat prices to recover part of their earlier losses on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Values closed ¼-½ cent lower, May at 83⅞ and July 83⅝ cents.

A lull in foreign demand for Canadian wheat restricted trading and, after a brief opening flurry, operations were slow. No export sales were reported, importers apparently satisfied with their 300,000-bushel purchases yesterday.

Chicago, weak for most of the session, staged a rally near the close after ¾-cent declines had been sustained. Liverpool held firm, prices closing ⅛d lower to ¼d higher. Buenos Aires was ⅛ cent advance at the close. Cash and coarse grains were quiet.

CHICAGO, March 9—Shipments from Australia to China and Japan amounted to 2,223,000 this week, making the total in three months 18,800,000 compared to 11,000,000 during the same period last year. The visible stocks in Australia are now down to 72,000,000 which is 24,000,000 smaller than this time last year.

Farmers are still holding out for better prices, as remaining supplies are not heavy and the drought areas have not been properly relieved. Plowing and seeding will commence in April.

There has been a better enquiry for Canadian wheat lately. Chartering for April-May shipment from Montreal is fairly active and exporters have bought cash wheat with more confidence.

Vancouver reports a better demand and exports are expected to increase. Liverpool reported sales of No. 1 Manitoba March shipment at 31-9 and April shipment at 31-10½. London reported sale of No 4 Manitoba, Vancouver March shipment, at 27-7½.

MINING STOCK TRADING IS IN SMALL VOLUME

TORONTO, March 9—Mining stock prices were irregularly lower in the closing session of the week on the Toronto Exchange with trading in smaller volume than the recent average. Several penny stocks steamed up to record heavy turnover at higher prices and McWatters continued to dominate the lower priced group. Base metal and silver issues were quiet and firm.

McWatters sagged to $2 soon after the opening and then slowly recovered to close at 2.07, off a cent net. Central Patricia in heavy trading dropped a couple of cents to 1.55. Losses up to 10 cents were boarded for Sylvanite, Pickle Crow, Macassa, Little Long Lac, Buffalo-Ankerite and Prospectors Airways.

Stadacona, Wayside, Chibougamau and Sullivan were the strong spots in the penny section. Selling at 23 cents, Chibougamau gained about 4 cents.

In the senior group transactions were few and scattered. Noranda moved ahead 50 cents and the other base metals were quiet.

YESTERDAY

House of Commons passed unemployment insurance bill through committee stage and left it ready for third reading.

Engaged in somewhat bitter discussion over defence estimates, and heard some members protest that unemployed men were being given work on cartridge factory near Quebec at 20 cents a day, thus preventing tradesmen of Quebec City from getting employment at a fair wage.

Received from Defence Minister Grote Stirling statement that men referred to were not being paid a wage, but, as unemployed, were in receipt of a relief allowance.

Passed no estimates.

DRUG PLEDGE ONCE BROKEN, MEANS DEATH

NANKING, China, March 9.—Under the Chinese National government's new anti-opium law, any addict who has been cured and who then breaks the required pledge never to use opium again, will be subject to the death penalty.

In many cities in China new centres are being established for the cure of opium addicts by the administration of a new "cure" recently invented by a Chinese specialist. This new cure or method of treatment consists of feeding the opium user a diet of nothing but the yolks of raw eggs thrice daily, with which a secret drug preparation has been thoroughly mixed.

Family Poisoned After Eating Can Of Bad Tomatoes

A family of three living in the downtown area was laid low Friday night by poisoned tomatoes from a "blown" can. Taken suddenly sick a few minutes after the supper hour they were ordered to bed and a watch was kept over them by Dr. Frank Grey. The father and mother, and their two-year-old child, residing on 103A avenue, will recover, reports Saturday morning being that their condition had greatly improved overnight.

Quicksilver or mercury occurs in nature in a free state, both in lodes and placer deposits, but only in very small quantities.

STOCK PRICES WORK LOWER

NEW YORK, March 9—Brakes again failed to hold in rails in today's short session of the stock market, and prices were pulled irregularly lower, although trading was light. The closing tone was easy. Transfers approximated 280,000 shares.

PRICE INCREASE IN MILK, CREAM

Increase in the price of butterfat is responsible for advances in the price of table cream and superior milk which will take effect on Monday in Edmonton and Calgary.

Representations were made recently by members of the provincial milk and table cream producers' association to the public utilities commissioners asking that sweet cream prices to the producer be brought into line with that paid for cream for butter-making purposes. The board granted the request with the result that cream consumers will have to pay one cent a pint and three cents a quart more for cream on Monday. Superior milk prices will advance one cent a pint, but the prices of milk will remain unchanged. Prices of whipping cream will advance two cents a pint and three cents a quart.

Under the new schedule producers will get 27, instead of 24 cents a pound for butterfat for sweet cream in both cities.

Employee Seeks Reinstatement

J. D. Bowers, former city relief inspector, who was dismissed several months ago by Mayor Clarke, has made formal application to the city for reinstatement following the Supreme court ruling that the mayor has not the right to dismiss civic employees.

The application will be dealt with by council at its regular meeting Monday.

Collection Box Stolen From City Church On Friday

Ripped off a pillar in St. Joachim's church, 9916 110 street, a steel collection box was stolen around noon Friday. Police found the box, its top battered off, in the northwest corner of Clarke's lumber yard late Friday night.

According to the officials of the church, the collection box contained only a very small amount of cash. Juveniles are suspected of the theft. From the appearance of the battered box, it was plain that great force had been used to smash it open.

The average individual has approximately one and one-half square meters of skin. This is approximately 3,500 square inches.

Govt. Not Ready To Announce Date Of Next Election

Premier R. G. Reid on Saturday stated that the government is not yet prepared to make a definite announcement as to the date of the next provincial general election that is bound to be held this year. While general opinion is that the appeal to the electorate will be held between June 11 and 14, the Premier declined to make any statement.

Following the inclusion in the budget brought down on Friday, of an appropriation of $150,000 to cover election costs, the Premier was asked if the government would follow this up with an announcement as to election day.

RURAL PHONES BILL PASSES TO COMMITTEE

Government Plan is Explained to Legislature By Hoadley

Unanimous endorsation was given to the legislation on Friday to a resolution moved by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of telephones, to give second reading to the bill respecting Mutual Telephone Companies.

The bill makes special provision for the regulation of telephone companies incorporated under the provisions of The Companies Act, many of which have been brought into being in the last two years.

In the course of the discussion, Hugh A. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, served notice that he proposed to introduce several amendments to the bill when it came before the committee for discussion.

The discussion on the motion to give second reading was productive of considerable information on the general mutual telephone situation and the mutual telephone plan sponsored by the government.

The Minister informed the house that up to March 2, 1935, there had been 201 mutual companies formed, which had taken over 7,027 miles of pole line and 11,583 miles of two wire circuit. The total plant now serving 9,113 telephones when sold and was now serving 5,848 telephones, of a gross value of 2,733.

50 NEW CONCERNS

"About 50 new companies are in various stages of organization and the plan is now changing these rural lines from a costly group serving few telephones to one serving the whole community," said the Minister.

The book value of the plant sold is $2,414,299.60, he declared, approximately 24 per cent of the rural capitalization and the selling price is $109,800.25 which is approximately five per cent of the book value. Selling expenses are about 40 per cent of the selling price.

"The new owners are well satisfied with the plan and had started in, until stopped by winter, on systematic plans for resetting the poor line poles and will work out plans for replacing them. It might be pointed out that the department intends to give assistance and advice to these companies," he said.

He said that more than 50 mutual companies had come into existence for many years previous to this plan, securing 2,000 telephones.

Of the 20,000 miles of rural pole line, 2,228 miles had been removed since the 1934 hog without a telephone and the poles a hazard.

Of the remaining 18,672 miles, 6,012 had been rebuilt and of the remaining 11,758 miles showed the same ratio of increase in telephones "we should have approximately 16,000 telephones when the plan is completed by the end of 1935."

Hugh J. Montgomery, Liberal, Wetaskiwin, contended the rural plan never came supposed to pay for themselves.

He quoted from the Wray report made about 15 years ago, as follows: "Many sparsely settled communities are as yet unsupplied with telephones. The initial cost, $800 to $1931 Ford Coupe, just like a new car ..... $325.00 balance, $10.00 month ..... $75.00 cash balance, $10.00 month ..... $285 ESSEX Coach, new paint, motor O.K., $35 cash, balance $10 month 1929 Ford Coach, duco, original finish, mechanically perfect $285

TO KEEP PACE

To keep pace with the development of the resources of the province and the increase in its population the telephone department must ultimately be greatly expanded and large extensions of the plant, especially rural and toll, must be made and notwithstanding probable savings in construction costs, due to improvements in the art heretofore referred to, the costs are certain to be higher than in the past because the system must be continuously extended into the undeveloped sparsely settled districts.

"The influence of these three factors and of the expansion of the system, will more than counteract the savings in unit from improved methods or the economy which sometimes may be obtained as a telephone system is developed. These economies may not be realized until further expansion of the system into undeveloped districts has ensued."

Several other bills were given second reading or discussed in committee.

New Low Priced Hupp Is Here

The engine develops 101 horsepower and the car has a wheelbase of 118 inches with an overall length of 189 inches. The brakes are Lockhood-type—safe with added mechanical brakes on the rear wheels. This new car comes in eight color schemes and certainly is beautiful as lines and is exceptionally well finished throughout, with all the modern appointments that add so much to the comfort of today's motoring public.

NEW BOOKS

SOME OF THE NEW BOOKS BEING ADDED TO THE EDMONTON PUBLIC LIBRARY

What Shall We Name The Baby, edited by Winthrop Ames, an alphabetical list of twenty-five hundred boys' and girls' first names with their meanings, derivations and nicknames. There are delightful pictures of babies in the margins and a very interesting foreword.

Georgina Sends, by Frank Swinnerton. Mr. Swinnerton is well known as a critic, editor and author, and has written also a delightful survey of modern English literature by means of a series of portraits of certain eminent authors.

I Worked For The Soviet, by Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, a daughter of the well-known Russian author. Countess Tolstoy, a pacifist, did not leave Russia at the time of the bewildering flight was in command of a hospital unit. In this memoir she tells what the Revolution did to her, in a straightforward way without rancor.

Preface To Peace, by Norman Angell. The purpose of this book is to try to bring order for the busy citizen out of the confusion of material that has been written on the peace problem. Norman Angell is perhaps better qualified than any one else to present the facts for discussion, and he works on the theory that if the assumptions which are fundamental are cleared away, we are in a better position to come to the right conclusions.

Small Boat Sailing, by Edwin Monk, a practising naval architect on the Pacific coast. The book has been designed for the amateur boat builder, so has presented designs for sixteen small boats and a clear explanation of the fundamentals. The plans and diagrams are good and the book should be helpful for those wishing to build their own boat for this summer.

African Passage, by Alexander Jacob Reynolds, is a book of travel among the tribes of West Africa. The author has followed primitive trails, and of the life and conditions as he found them. The book will appeal to lovers of adventure and travel.

Royal Nonesuch, by Beatrice White. In this book we are told the love stories of Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and of Mary Tudor, sister of King Henry VIII. The life of the court is used as a background for the portrayal, and such characters as Anne Boleyn, Katherine Wolsey and Henry's European rivals Francis I and the Emperor Charles V, all come into the picture.

B. U.F.—Oswald Mosley And British Fascism, by James Drennan. Sir Oswald Mosley is one of the most stimulating figures in English political life. In this volume the author considers the personality of Mosley and his influence on the Labor and Fascist movements in Great Britain, as well as a study of the fascist movements in European movement of the twentieth century.

Tendencies Of The Modern Novel, by Hugh Walpole and others. Eight famous writers of various countries discuss the main trends of the novel in the countries of Europe and in America, and introduce the names and works of the most promising of the younger writers. An analysis and description of the best-known novels of these coming authors will give a clear indication of those which have already been translated into English. This book is an admirable guide to contemporary fiction in other countries and in our own.

Care and Management of POULTRY
By C. A. ROBINSON

ARTIFICIAL BROODING OF CHICKS

Have sufficient window space to give ample light, low down facing south, with windows that can be arranged to let it in at the top about six inches, with sides boarded in to avoid draft, permitting the air to come in over the top of the window and in the event of very severe weather it can be adjusted or closed as occasion requires, there should also be a space or door in the side of the brooder house about one quarter the dimension, this provides an outlet for the fowl to run.

Floors should be double boarded with tar paper between, to avoid any possible draft.

Do not put too much litter on the floor at first. Peat Moss makes the best litter but if not available, fine straw may be used. Clean out often, avoid drinking vessels where the chicks can get their feet into the water, getting them wet, this causes colds and may result in heavy mortality. Remember an old adage. "A well dog a cold nose" and a dry-footed chick a well chick.

Arrange to have the brooder stove running for 2 or 3 days before the chicks are due to arrive. You will then be sure it is properly adjusted and the house warm enough. For the first few days put a guard around the brooder about 12 inches high and about 18 to 20 inches from the edge of the lower or canopy, as soon as the chicks know enough to find the heat remove this guard and they can choose their own temperature. Have temperature at edge of hover just above the chicks' back 95 to 100 degrees. When the chicks are placed under the hover in the brooder house we again remind you to be sure there are no upturned corners. Place pieces of cardboard or other material in the corners and see it is securely fastened so it can not be pushed aside. Thus preventing the chicks to crowd into the corners, resulting in crushing or smothering.

AMERICANS ARE WITH ROOSEVELT SAYS A. CRISTALL

The American people have complete confidence in President Roosevelt and are behind him in everything he does, said A. Cristall, local manager of the NRA, on a visit to the city this week following a three months' trip to the United States.

Mr. Cristall said that Louis wasn't few complaints about the NRA and the "New Deal," and progress and plants were increasing from month to month. Cristall confessed that "some things are not to our liking."

"The people feel that President Roosevelt has been given a square deal," Mr. Cristall added, "and they have been quick to realize that the NRA is not working out right, he will make changes as they are needed."

Liquor is sold practically everywhere in Los Angeles, said Mr. Cristall, and in some cases hotels, in the lobbies of big buildings and almost every place you could think of. He was also shocked at the number of single drunken man on the street during business or dinner hours.

Mr. Cristall confessed he was puzzled by the political change in Canada some six years ago.

"Who is running the Conservative party?" he asked us.

"First we had Woodsworth preaching public ownership of banks for years, but he suspects himself of not getting anywhere, moved more to the middle road, Mr. Bennett has adopted Mr. Woodsworth's ideas, even with regard to control of business and economic reform.

"Now Aberhart, whose party—and whose platform—is the one thing left Conservative now?" concluded Mr. Cristall.

Special Exhibit Rembrandt Prints

Honoring the tercentenary of Hermann Rembrandt Hoyt, more popularly known as Rembrandt, a special exhibition of prints of the great Dutchman's work is currently being displayed on the second floor of the University of Alberta Arts building.

The prints are reproduced by the collotype process and are chiefly etchings.

Originals of the master are difficult to find, almost the only ones available being "Jan Six," recently sold for $12,000.

Youth With Rifle Will Face Court

A youth with a .22 rifle who peppered pigeons from the roof of a local apartment block Friday will face a charge in the juvenile court.

Residents of the neighborhood complained that there was danger of some one getting hurt should the shooting continue.

The charge to be faced by the boy will be shooting off fire arms in the city limits.

The southern states have approximately 25 per cent of the total reduced population of the U.S.

Galahad Drops Off At Hot Eye

A Bulletin Short Story Complete on This Page Every Saturday.

By Rupert Hughes

Galahad, Made Romantic By the Cup That Cheers, Is Captured in the Desert By Hattie, Who Yearns to Be a Mrs.

HITCHED in front of the store one long cow-pony drooped. Squatted on the porch rail were four big men. Leaning against the door jamb was one youngish woman [illegible] staring at the motionless men. Sullen thoughts were always simmering there as she glowered at the four broad backs.

"Look at them buzzards! They call 'emselves men, but what are they good for? All day just settin' and spittin'. All four of 'em [illegible] not one of 'em with [illegible] to say so. Lord knows I don't want none of 'em [illegible], but I hate the thought of dyin' an old maid and I'm sick of bein' Miss Nobody all my life. Before I pass out I'd like to be Mrs. Somebody—Mrs. Almost Anybody."

It was always the hottest hour in the afternoon when the burly locomotive of the eastbound express [illegible] shining desert, dragging its [illegible] of blistering coaches, snapped its [illegible] never stopped, but as it skirted [illegible] over the dirty halfbreed children [illegible] swirl of air through her door [illegible] and woke for a moment her torpid dreams of her one fond memory of the time when [illegible] all the way to Chicago—or [illegible] for her father's [illegible] and had been treated [illegible] Mr. Snowden—Mr. Harold Snowden.

He had [illegible] business—a [illegible] ever his head began to swim his heart swung toward the nearest female and Mrs. Marjorie Tydings oftener managed to be that female. She had been married once or twice and had selected Oglesby as the victim of her next experiment.

He went so far with Marjorie one [illegible] evening as to agree on a wedding date. He actually had to leave town to escape her. He took along in his suitcase a supply of his favorite antidote for misanthropy and as the westbound express reached the Great American desert he reached that state of befuddlement in which his heart began as usual to yearn for woman's and almost dislocated his shoulder with a coquettish shove:

"I guess if I had my choice I'd take Minge. For mercy's sake don't call him Mange—he's mean as hell when he's sober. But he's the youngest, and he's about the only man around here that can ride a horse. It's kind of sweet and old fashioned to see a westerner on a horse. Reminds you of the movies. Only trouble is, when Mingie is soused he cries like a baby. But the others are worse. Fact is, I'm pretty well fed up on these he-men from out where the west begins."

He broke in hastily. "You'd be

From here he had a bird's-eye view of a one street town lying along the railroad track like a wind-row of tumbleweed blown against a barbed wired fence last year. Towering about the pine shacks and adobe sheds was a two story building comparative skyscraper for the town.

One end of it was filled by an enormous sign:

POP'S PANTATORIUM

Hattie said: "Pardon my pointin' but that's where I live."

"Quite so," said Oglesby with a sense of alarm, not diminished when she pointed out a fat and greasy citizen. "That's Joe Garcia. He's

"That was Ruffin," said Hattie, as she almost ran over two huge men chattering in the middle of the highway. She shrieked, "Look out, Cochran! Hey, Gorrell." They jumped backward to give her gangway as she laughed, "and here comes Mingie!"

In the near distance Oglesby saw a calico horse galloping in high gear while the rider fanned its ears with a big hat and yipped as he bounced. Hattie explained.

"He ain't been the same since he seen the movie of the last rodeo of the Pantatorium and Hattie led Oglesby in to where a deaf and dejected old man slept standing up, leaning on the counter.

Hattie playfully woke him by pushing his elbows off the counter daughter, he chewed this thought right in with his tobacco and spat out a contented:

"So?"

The screen door squeaked. Heavy footsteps trampled the sill. Four

With a rough hand, Minge spun Oglesby around and jabbed the muzzle of the pistol against his quivering liver—

[illegible] Unable to sleep he went back to the observation platform to let the night wind [illegible] his [illegible] brow. The sight of the miles rushing away to the rear and [illegible] the distance from Marjorie [illegible] and at last he [illegible] to drop off at the next station and take the first train back.

happiest with Minge — Minge then."

"Happy as anybody ever is in the world's back yard like this. In N'York [illegible] anybody could be happy with anybody."

Oglesby was afraid to have her think too well of New York. He tried to persuade her that Broadway and 5th Avenue are paved with broken hearts. She seemed unconvinced. Suddenly, the car whirled round a [illegible] and quite impeccable butte justice of the peace. Does all the marryin' for the Indians and Mex and mestizos. There's right smart of marryin' amongst them and maybe half the children you see belong to married folks."

She gave him a hungry glance [illegible]

Mingie rode straight at Hattie's headlights and pulled in his pinto so abruptly that it slid forward to the collision bar, followed by a cloud of dust. From the enveloping depth Oglesby heard:

"Howdy, Hat! What's that you picked up in the desert?"

"It's Harold Wal— Harold Snowden. He's come for me."

as she cried at the top of her lungs:

"POP, HERE'S HAROLD."

"Haow? What?"

"HAROLD SNOWDEN."

"So? Howdo, Harold."

He held out a limp old hand and showed an inclination to lean on Oglesby and go back to sleep. Hattie screamed:

"HAROLD wants I should marry him and go EAST to LIVE."

Instead of breaking down with grief at the loss of her [illegible]

large and surly citizens marched forward. Hattie jumped the introductions:

"Boys, shake hands with Harold. Mr. Snowden, shake hands with the boys. Boys, Harold wants I should marry him and go east."

Three of the four men kept silence with an almost deafening gruffness but Ruffin growled:

"When was you allowin' to step off?"

"We—I—er—" Oglesby faltered but Hattie, a bit shaken by the lethargy of her suitors, tried to stampede them into a protest.

"Joe Garcia could p'form the ceremony right off."

Minge went only so far as to ask: "Why can't you and this guy settle down here when you're hog tied? Without you Hot Eye won't be worth livin' in."

"When [illegible]" said Hattie. [illegible]

the muzzle of Minge's gun—she was a woman of her word. Then she ran around behind the counter and promptly turned up a ring that was an exact fit—she had been saving it for years. She offered it to Oglesby, who recoiled from it as he said in a strange tone:

"Mr. Minge could carry it. He's the best man."

"You bet I am," said Minge.

Oglesby was rather sparring for time than snobbishly stickling for the formalities when he said: "In the more swagger circles the bride goes up the aisle on her father's arm. The groom and best man await them at the altar."

"Grand!" cried Hattie. "You and Minge go on ahead, dearie, and I and Pop will foller. Then Gorrell and Cochran, eh?"

"Perfect," said Oglesby. "They can be pages and strew flowers."

"Cactus would suit me," said Gorrell.

With a rough hand Minge spun Oglesby around and jabbed the muzzle of the pistol against his quivering liver. Hattie protested:

"That won't look so good to the crowd outside. A lot of weddings have been pulled off that way round here, but the father always carries the gun. Leave it on the counter, Walt."

"Not much," said Minge. "I'll hide it, but I'll keep it handy."

He shoved it in his right coat pocket. Oglesby eyed it with hopeful eagerness, but Minge shifted him to the opposite side and gripped his arm so hard that he squeezed an inspiration from Oglesby's frantic brain:

"There is still one thing lacking, Hattie, to make this wedding perfect. According to the strictest New York standards there really ought to be a farewell bachelor supper."

"A what?"

"In the smart set, before a gentleman marries a lady, he always entertains his male friends as a farewell to bachelorhood. I hereby invite these four gentlemen to the best the town affords."

Gorrell ran the refreshment parlor. He called for more light: "Would the supper be on you or on us? Who would pay for the vittels and such?"

"I would. Naturally! And handsomely! A bachelor supper consumes no end of the most expensive——"

"What say we all go over to my place and have a snifter or two on Harold and talk it over like?"

In the great open spaces where men are men and admit it, the [illegible] of a snifter at the expense of an alien is always irresistible. Hattie was afraid the boys might get Harold alone and murder him, but she was also afraid they were not jealous enough even for that.

Gorrell led the way to the Ranchers' Retreat and into a back room dominated by an authentic bar that would have delighted a dealer in genuine American antiques. He set out the glasses and expertly skirted them to the waiting hands. Then he produced a tall bottle which he described as "imported bourbon."

The Hot Eye quartet waited for the effete easterner to curl up and strangle at the first taste, but their contempt was challenged by the size of the drink he poured and his failure to ask for water. They did not know their Oglesby. [illegible] lifted his glass and pitched the entire contents straight at his uvula. Tears shot instantly from his eyes. He was only human and that was [illegible] at its hoochiest. But, [illegible] and partially paralyzed as he was, the hero reached for the bottle again. Contempt became respect and then [illegible] when he drained the drink with unerring aim. The others followed suit with varying reactions, waiting for Harold to collapse into the [illegible] He merely called for a second bottle and a third.

Their own knees were buckling and they were hanging on hard to [illegible] when Oglesby's [illegible] suddenly turned to a [illegible] ferocity. He was once more the great lover, the [illegible] for women. Without warning he lunged at Minge and roared with a [illegible] of hysteria:

"Give me th' gun, you cur! You can't prevent me from marrying my beloved Miss Sweeney, my sweetheart Hattie. I'll kill you like dog! Like two dogs! Like a whole pack of dogs!"

Harold might have spattered Minge all over the saloon if Joe Garcia, being [illegible] of peace, had not [illegible] unloaded the weapon before he lent it to Minge. But Gorrell did not know this and he lunged across the bar and wrested the weapon from Oglesby while Cochran seized his arms and dragged them behind his back.

Hattie had spoken of Minge's tendency to tears when intoxicated and now instead of resenting the horrible indignity of having his pistol taken away from him, and by an easterner of all men, Minge bent his once proud head to the bar and wept:

"Nobody loves me. And I don't want to live in no worl' without nobody to [illegible]."

In vain Gorrell, Ruffin and Cochran assured him that they adored him. Gorrell tried to kiss him but the bar was too wide. Even Oglesby embraced him, but Minge broke from the eight embracing arms and tottered out into the [illegible].

Oglesby cried, "The quartet! Forget him! Let's drink to my blushin' bride Ho Whattie Hittey, the apple of my Hot Eye."

Oglesby announced that he loved his new found friends and the [illegible] metropolis of Hot Eye so well that he was going to build Hattie the finest home in Hot Eye. This would not have been much of a boast if he had not described the new domicile as a sort of enlarged Alhambra with Lake Como for a swimming pool and Central park for a window box.

Ruffin, Cochran and Gorrell as good citizens welcomed any public spirited visitor with plans for civic betterment. Ruffin suddenly remembered that the quartet made up all the officers of the Hot Eye Chamber of Commerce, and in fact, almost all the members. Cochran had an idea:

"I rise to p'pose—I sit to p'pose we give dear ol' Harg Whozis the freedom of the city."

Ruffin as president, called the

"Are you hurt?"

"Not a scratch! But there's something wrong with the car. They're working on it here at the garage. Some people came along and towed me this far. Its going to take hours and hours before the car's ready—maybe not tonight. What I want to know, Brian—can you come out and get me?"

PAT'S PANS by BILL LEWIS

Before this day runs out, Edmonton may have another Alberta senior championship to add to the one captured by Bill Ruffa's Commercials down in Calgary Thursday night. If the Rialto Superstars can beat Coleman tonight for the second straight time they will be crowned senior champions of the province—if not, the series goes to the third game, with Scotty still having an opportunity to turn the trick. . . .

Right now, Edmonton has a chance to take five Alberta hockey titles for 1935. . . . One of these—the junior—is already in the bag, thanks to Canadians. . . . With superiors favored in both the senior, three are, in addition, three other possibilities. . . . The Imperials, winners of the local juvenile league, are still in the hunt for provincial honors, while Clarence Mosher's highly-touted Edmonton Athletic Club midgets are likewise pointing for the Alberta title in their division. . . . Mutuart Orioles, ladies' intermediate squad, are out after the crown in that section. . . .

It would be great to see all of these teams bring home the provincial bacon. . . . Each is a mighty smart squad and there is a possibility of them all doing just that. . . . Calgary's prestige as a hockey centre certainly has suffered badly in comparison the last couple of years.

Ira Stuart and his Soops are not taking this Coleman team lightly in any game tonight. They realize the Canadians rallied to win 6-1 against Drumheller after taking a 5-0 drubbing in the opener of that series and that it is not an impossibility for them to do the same thing here. . . . Soops won handily in the south but that doesn't insure them against a defeat, even on their home ice, and they are going to be plenty determined when they wade into the visitors this evening.

There will be a number of familiar faces here on the lineup of Nimbletoes Dynamiters, who should Sweps accord in beating Coleman . . . Harry Brown played here as a member of the Stuart crew, while Hornquist, Redding, Puffy Kemp, Ast and Hugo Macklie, Kenny Forsey and Reginald have all played here with one team or another.

Gene Carrigan and Paul Runge, a couple of Edmontonians down East in the Canadian Pacific League, are staging quite a race for scoring honors in that circuit. . . . Gene, who is captain of Boston Cubs, headed the last official scoring list issued with 45 points, while Paul, who performs for Quebec Beavers, was right behind him in second place having a mark of 43. . . . It would be good to see them finish the season like that.

LETHBRIDGE HERE FOR HOOP GAME

Making their eighth and last appearance of the season, Doug Mc-Gregor's fearless University of Alberta senior basketball six is scheduled to engage Lethbridge Aces in a contest at Varsity gym Monday, at 8:00 p.m.

Without a ripple victory to show for their season's labors, the Collegians promise a desperate effort in their Monday appointment. The campus team will be at full strength.

ERSKINE HOOP SQUAD BEATEN BY LIVEWIRES

Local Junior Basketball Team Wins by Heavy Margin of 53-13

Livewires junior basketball squad came through with a decisive win over the Erskine five last night in the championship finals for the northern championship from Erskine last night in the McDougall School gym as they turned in a score of 33 to 13.

The Erskine team put up a good scrap for the first few minutes but Beer dropped in a long looping shot for the first score of the game and then peppered steadily for the remainder. When the locals solved the visitors' defence however, a good lead was soon built up and at the end every point Livewires were on the long end of the 20-0 count.

Both teams made great use of long shots but the "Y" boys had more success as they managed to work in unhurried shots while Erskine had fewer of these chances. Most of the damage done by the winners was done in during the last few minutes as they repeatedly found the opposition.

OLEINEK GETS HAND

Oleinek was outstanding in this respect with Malcolm a close second. The biggest hand of the evening was given this same Oleinek as he dribbled through the whole Erskine lineup in the last frame to drop in a perfect goal from right under the hoop with the whole opposing team on his trail. Seldon and Yonale had a good night on the guard line, too, with the former getting three times, all via the long shot route.

Beer was the scoring threat for the visitors but he was not given the support he needed and was seldom able to get a pass when he was in the scoring position. "Primo" Cembret and Reynolds did most of the defensive work for the losers but the more experienced team had a way of breaking up their plays and drew them out of position badly to ward the final count.

Playing with the handicap of a strange floor and crowd and a new and slippery ball, the Aces were at a big disadvantage. They promised to turn over a new leaf tonight in the second and concluding game of the series and, if they do as they did last year, Livewires will have to do some hustling.

Redskins and Flying Foots pleased the large crowd of spectators in the preliminary tilt when the latter came winning 53 to 46. Archie Clousten turned in the top score with 22 to his credit.

Preliminary to the game tonight, Imps, Monday City league, tangle with Dougalds of the Commercial School league, starting at 7.30.

To Match Boxing Card In Amateur Elimination Bouts

Officials of the Edmonton and District Boxing Association will go into a huddle over the week-end and will match the eleven purse for the Northern Alberta elimination tournament, to be held at the Monumental Hall next Friday night.

Entry dates for the tournament closed last night, and the officials will have a busy week-end making out next Friday's draws.

All entries are asked to report not later than 8.00 o'clock at the Memorial Hall next Friday to weigh in and take their doctor's examination before the tourney gets underway.

According to the secretary, a large entry list has been received and it is expected the total entered will be greatly increased before the draws are made out Sunday.

South Side Six Plays Dominions Exhibition Game

Pep Moon's South Side Athletic juniors will clash with Walter Hunter's aging Dominions in an exhibition game at the Arena Sunday afternoon, starting at 3.00 o'clock.

These hard-fighting South Siders should give their higher rated opponents a good battle, although the seniors are favored to cop the winning verdict. South will, it is assumed by Moon, give the Dominion crew a fine battle and the game should prove to be an interesting affair to watch.

South Side after a poor start at the beginning of the season, struck a fine pace in the last half of the schedule, nosing out Edmonton Athletic Club for a play-off berth, and then they forced the Canadians into two straight games for the semi-finals. When the locals solved the Canadians' defence however, a good lead was soon built up and at the end every point Livewires were on the long end of the 20-0 count.

Both teams made great use of long shots but the "Y" boys had more success as they managed to work in unhurried shots while Erskine had fewer of these chances. Most of the damage done by the winners was done in during the last few minutes as they repeatedly found the opposition.

SAFEWAY FIVE HAS TRIUMPH IN PLAY-OFFS

While the play could be described as fairly even for both teams the store girls outchecked the Orange Crush and had all and advantage of defense players over anxiety to get up in the play and cinched the game victory with several close in shots.

AQUATIC STARS MEET IN MAY

WINNIPEG, March 9—Canada's most outstanding aquatic stars will gather here for the Canadian swimming and diving championships about the middle of May.

Additional to the lure of Dominion titles, will be Olympic games at Berlin next year and with this extra stimulus this year's Dominion meet, sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur swimming association, is expected to be a keen contest.

Canada's Olympic team will not necessarily be chosen from those who break records at this year's meet but outstanding marks of exceptional class registered at the May meet will have a bearing when time comes to look for their team in 1936.

Sixteen events will be staged.

Quebec Beavers Beat Reds, 6-3

QUEBEC, March 9. — Quebec Beavers last night defeated Providence Reds 6-3 in a Canadian-American League hockey game to increase their second-place margin over Reds to three points.

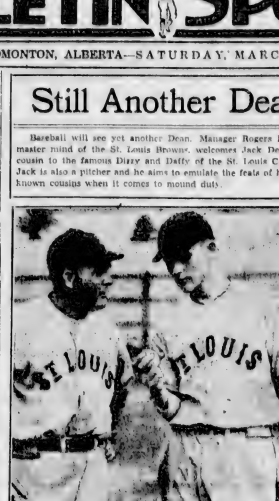
Still Another Dean

Baseball will see yet another Dean. Manager Rogers Hornsby master mind of the St. Louis Browns, welcomes Jack Dean, first cousin to the famous Dizzy and Daffy of the St. Louis Cardinals. Jack is also a pitcher and he aims to emulate the feats of his well-known cousins when it comes to mound duty.



Soops Seek Crown In Contest Tonight

Coleman Canadians Here For Second Game of Alberta Finals

Anxious to capture the Alberta senior hockey championship in straight games if possible, Ira Stuart's Superiors will be a fighting crew when they skate onto the Arena ice tonight to oppose Coleman Canadians, southern title-holders. The action commences at nine o'clock sharp.

With one victory already to their credit, as a result of their win in the opener at Coleman, Soops need only a triumph tonight to annex the provincial title and the right to enter the inter-provincial Allan Cup playdowns against Kimberley, B.C.

Coleman, however, rated a great team when down, will be battling to win this evening and get up on even terms again, forcing series to the full three games. If they do this, the third contest will be staged here Monday.

Ira Stuart is looking for a tough battle from the Crow's Nest squad and states they have some high class performers, particularly in Fred Brown, Jenkins and Kwasnie.

The Superiors' line-up for tonight has not been definitely settled upon but they will be selected from the following: Goal, Stuart; defence, Watt, Faulder, Lammie, Montgomery; forwards, Graham, Jim Brown, Bus Brown, Crossland, Anderson, Grove, Purcell.

Canadians arrived in the city last night and expect to have a skate on the Arena today to accustom themselves to the big surface.

Freshmen at Pennsylvania State College are required to take swimming as a part of their course of study.

JOHNNY BLOCHLINGER MEETS GOODLAND IN MAIN GO HERE

Wildcat Carter to Fight Frank Kameckie in Six Rounds

Johnny Blochlinger will square off against his greatest test since fighting in local rings when he meets Sailor Goodland over a main event route of six rounds March 22 at the Empire Theatre.

Blochlinger has been riding rapidly since joining the professional ranks last fall with his recent triumph over Maurice Picard in a headline event.

In his last appearance here Blochlinger literally cut the French-man to pieces, but just what he will do to Goodland is doubtful in many fans' mind. He should, if not beat him, give him a hard battle.

On the semi-windup there will appear that ever popular figure of the coast rings—Wildcat Carter.

Sir Malcolm Agrees To Keep After 300 M.P.H.

Briton to Continue His Efforts to Achieve Coveted Goal

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 9.—Sir Malcolm Campbell decided Friday 276.816 miles-an-hour isn't fast enough for him and he will stay here and continue to shoot for his goal of 300 until past the fatal tides of March, if necessary.

After conferring with the city fathers yesterday, the titled Englishman who added 4.708 miles-an-hour Thursday to his old average of 272.108 announced he had "consented to remain" in the hope heavy spring tides and "the almost certainty of strong northwest winds, would give him ideal conditions."

He made the north run Thursday through the measured mile at an average speed of 281.030 miles-an-hour, fastest he ever has driven. He had the wind shutter closed on the front of Bluebird on the north run and he estimated Friday that if he had done the same going south he would have added 15 miles an hour to the 272.727 he achieved against the wind.

"I don't know when I shall run again, but if the beach is right I'll go today," he said.

Millers Win Close Game Over Eveleth

DULUTH, Minn., March 9.—A solo play by Swenson, brilliant Minneapolis wing, enabled the Millers to eke out a 2-1 decision over the Eveleth Rangers here last night in a regular Central Hockey League tilt.

The winning goal came at the three minute stage of the overtime session.

LIONS DEFEAT SEAHAWKS, 5-3

SEATTLE, March 9—Vancouver Lions defeated the league-leading Seattle Seahawks, 5-3, in a Northwestern Pro Hockey League game here last night and retained a single chance to capture the second playoff berth from Portland Buckaroos on a goal-average basis.

Lions play Seahawks at Vancouver Monday next in the final game of the regular schedule and a victory for Vancouver would put them in a tie with Buckaroos in case the second position would be awarded Lions, who have a better goal average than Portland.

Raymond Morand Succeeds Late Armand Lavergne

OTTAWA, March 9—Hon. Raymond Morand (Cons., Essex East), has been selected as successor to Armand Lavergne, deputy speaker of the house of commons, who died this week, it was learned on good authority last night. Dr. Morand's appointment will probably be announced today.

Born in Windsor, Ont. in 1887, Dr. Morand's parents were both French Canadians and he is fluent in both languages.

Max Schmeling Prepared For Steve Hamas Sunday

Germany's Pugilistic Hero Confident After Stiff Drill in Training

HAMBURG, March 9.—Supremely confident he is destined to be the first man in history to regain the heavyweight crown, once lost, Max Schmeling wound up his preparations for Sunday's 10-round bout with Steve Hamas with a furious workout at his snowblocked camp near here.

With a capacity crowd watching, Germany's pugilistic hero put on an exhibition that had his manager, Joe Jacobs, and his trainer worried still lest he incur a last-minute injury.

Where Schmeling has trained with even more than his customary intentness, Hamas has given the impression he has the black of Uhlan's number and can't lose. Schmeling is a 5-1 favorite.

BADMINTON CHAMPIONS BEATEN

Every Titleholder Of Last Year Now Is Out Of Tourney

HI-School HI-Lights

ON SPORT

By CHARLES TODD

After a hectic midweek of sports, all of the high schools took it easy yesterday. Friday was spent in talking over events that had happened earlier in the week.

At Garneau they were busy figuring out how their senior squad lost to Scona and how they will be able to take them into camp next time. Victoria still ranked and raved about the two gift goals, one of which was wrapped in cellophane, that they gave Garneau to drop out of city playdowns.

Eastwood was elated over their bantam's win from Victoria in the first game of a home-and-home series, total goals to count. For their fine effort the far easterners will take a slim one-goal lead into the second game on Wednesday on Victoria's home ice.

Technical it still pondering over how near but how far their junior puckchasers came from landing a playoff berth. They were just one lone point behind South Side Commercial, who landed the second and final berth. Their senior squad did not fare well at all, but will be back next year as usual.

With same number one just a happy memory, Scona's senior pucksters will be out practising this morning in order to be in form for the second and what they hope will be the final game in senior city playdowns. They belted Garneau into a 3-1 defeat in the first contest.

Garneau, on the other hand, figures that they still have the necessary what-it-takes and will atop Scona dead in their big tracks during the next two contests. They will be at a disadvantage as the next game is scheduled for Scona's home sheet.

Switching over to basketball, we find that McDougall Commercial and Victoria have agreed to play a sudden death junior game, the winner to meet Garneau for the city title. This contest is billed for Tuesday after four of the McDougall gym.

A question as to where this game should be played arose and it was decided to treat all to the toss of a coin. Victoria won the toss and so could have played at their own gym, but the players selected the Commercial floor, so the toss made no difference.

It finally looks as though senior boys' basketball has folded up. After their last terrific trouncing from McDougall the Victoria crew never were the same. The squad fell by the wayside and to add pill of the efforts of Coach Smith to arouse a bit of enthusiasm.

The Commercialites were invited to visit Victoria for an exhibition game last Wednesday, but it was postponed until Monday. Yesterday Smith announced that the whole thing had been dropped, as his squad would not respond to practices notices and were not in condition.

It was a tough way to see one of the leading boys' winter sports for years pass from the scene. Large crowds have usually turned out to witness cup games and often they saw some real playing and close scoring. McDougall will keep the Queen Victoria challenge cup for a year.

New Dominion Champs to be Crowned Today in All Events

OTTAWA, March 9.—A completely new slate of Canadian titleholders will be crowned at the Ottawa Badminton Club today when finals are played in the 1935 Dominion badminton championships. Before keen competition, four champions bowed Friday and Thursday, while the fifth, Douglas Grant, of Halifax, did not defend his men's singles title.

Mrs. Ann Kerr Particle of Vancouver, a double winner in the 1934 championships staged at Toronto, was stripped of both titles losing her singles crown last night when Mrs. W. R. Walton, 1935 Ontario champion and a resident of Toronto, baffled her with drives and drop shots for an 11-4, 11-8 victory. Thursday night Mrs. Patrick and Dick Birch lost their mixed doubles crown.

WESTERNER WINS

The rising young British Columbia star, Margaret Taylor, of Kelowna, B.C., one of the finest left-hand players in the country, eliminated Ruth Robertson, Ottawa, the Dominion 1931 and 1933 champion, 11-6, 11-4, in the second semi-final in which the westerner appeared the better player throughout.

Bev. Mitchell, Ottawa's finalist to Grant last year, eliminated Jack Belcher of Ottawa in the semi-finals and will meet Rod Phelan of Toronto in the final.

Phelan defeated Dick Birch of Vancouver in a three-game match, 15-9, 10-15, 15-12, which developed into a terrific battle in the third game before Phelan's overhead smashing gave him victory.

ONTARIO STRONG

Ontario players will dominate the finals. In addition to one women's singles finalist, the men's singles, men's doubles, mixed doubles finalists and one of the women's doubles teams are found within the borders of this province.

Amisk Seniors Beat Hughenden

HUGHENDEN, March 9. — In a very exciting hockey game, played on Thursday evening, the Amisk seniors defeated the Hughenden juniors by a score of 7-6 in overtime.

Outstanding stars of the game were Bert Whitehead starring for Hughenden, and Russel Bowen, starring for Amisk.

During the first period play wavered between the two goals and Russel Bowen scored twice, once for Amisk and then for Hughenden. The period closed 1-1.

In the second period Bowen scored three times against Amisk in the lead 4-1. The third period was played almost entirely behind the Amisk line. Then Whitehead scored three times and Harold Bell once, for Hughenden, while Bowen added another for Amisk, bring the score 5-5, in ten minutes of overtime, the first five minutes was scoreless. Then Hughenden scored once and Amisk twice. The game closed 7-6 for Amisk. The few fans who braved the cold cheered lustily. Stewart Martineau ably refereed.

Camrose Defends Ash Curling Cup

CAMROSE, Alta., March 9.—Camrose was successful in defending the Ash trophy against the Edmonton Granite Club here last night. The total score was 29-22. Theraldson defeated H. Ritchie by 16-7, while F. Greenwood of Camrose was defeated by R. Sellers 15-13. Personnel of rinks: Camrose—F. Greenwood, skip, A. Langbell, B. Townsend, G. Sjorlie. S. Theraldson, skip, F. KANSAS STAR MILE WINNER AT MONTREAL

But Cunningham Fails in Attempt to Lower the World Record

MONTREAL, March 9. — Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas University, won the invitation mile in the Canadian indoor track and field championship meet here last night but his time was over nine seconds slower than his world record. Joe McCluskey, New York, was 20 yards behind Cunningham and Glen Dawson, Tulsa, Okla., was third. Five feet behind McCluskey, Cunningham's time was four minutes 13 seconds.

Cunningham turned aside Joe McCluskey's threat with ease. He was leading by nearly 20 yards when he broke the tape. Glen Dawson closed up a little on McCluskey and was only a few feet behind at the finish. Ruckarski and Wade trailed along behind by 30 feet.

The Kansas miler's time was slow compared to his world's indoor record of 4.6 2-10.

HAMILTONIAN WINS

Ray Lewis, Hamilton, Ont., won the 600 yards run, coming from behind to beat Phelan, Ottawa Kansas, with Fred Shaver, Hamilton, third. Lewis covered the distance in 1.16 2-5.

In the 50-yard high hurdles Gene Record, Montreal, former captain of Harvard University track team and former U. S. inter-collegiate champion, beat Jimmy Worrall, Montreal, by four feet. Our record time was 6.3-10 seconds. P. H. Mathewson of Middlebury, Vt., was third.

Phyllis Ford of Montreal equalled Stella Walsh's world record for 50 yards indoors when she won the 50-yard invitation event for women in six second flat. Isobel Bracdell, Montreal, was second and Alice Lewis, Ottawa, third.

COP RELAY EVENT

Lasalle Academy of New York won the high school relay event easily after taking a wide lead on the first two laps. Central Collegiate's team was second and Westmount, Montreal, was third. Time for the race of approximately 1,200 yards was two minutes and 15 seconds.

The 1,000 yard run was an easy victory for Chuck Hornbostel who won by nearly 40 yards margin over Kenneth Grady of Hamilton. Jack Palmer of Hamilton coming third. Hornbostel's time was slow, 2 minutes 19 seconds.

George Harrison, of Paterson, N. J., el oped side-cloth of a second from Roy Cumpston after the 300 yards dash, covering it in 5 3-10 seconds, outstrip a 4.30.4 set by Stuart Kerr of Hamilton in 1908.

Middlebury College of Middlebury, Vt., won the relay race with McGill University, Montreal, second, and Montreal A. A. A. third. Winning time was 3.25.

NEGRO BOY VICTOR

Young Sammy Richardson, Toronto negro, who has his eye on a berth for Canada at the British Empire games in England last summer, carried off two 300 yards dash events with ease. He won the dash for 10-year-olds in 39.3 and then added a 1-10 second slower in winning the same distance event for 16-year-olds.

Harold Osborn took the Canadian high jump championship away from Gordon Smith, Toronto, with a jump of six feet, four and three-quarter inches. Smith failed to clear that mark, though his Canadian record of 6 feet 7½ inches still stands.

Frank Cowley of New York A. C. won the two mile run in 9 minutes 31 7-10 seconds. A. Clarke of Toronto was second and Scotty Rankine of Preston, Ont., third.

Planes Carry Ice Team To Play-Offs

WINNIPEG, March 9—San Antonio's senior hockey team, first seed from northern Manitoba to challenge for the provincial championship, "flew to town" here Friday and tonight Flatons in a three-game series for the right to represent the province in Allan Cup playdowns.

Three planes were chartered to fly the team from the mines, 145 miles northeast of here.

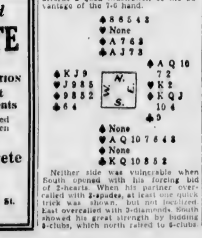
FAMOUS BRIDGE TEACHER

THE POWER OF A 7-5 HAND

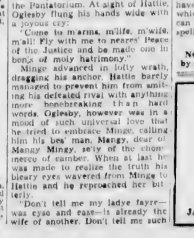
There is about 1 chance in 10,000 to hold 2 suits at least as many cards as other suits. The most desirable 2-suiter is the 7-5 hand, with partner able to strongly support one suit. There are about 4 to 1 odds that no other player will hold more than 2 cards of your 7-suit, and there are better than even chances that no other player will hold more than 3 cards of your 6-suit. There are 63 chances in 100 that your partner will hold in one or the other of your long suits at least as many cards as either opponent. The following hand affords a good illustration of the advantage of the 7-5 hand:



Neither side was vulnerable when South opened with his forcing bid of 2-hearts. When his partner overcalled with 2-spades, at least one quick trick was shown, but not sufficient. East overcalled with 3-diamonds. South showed his great strength by bidding 4-clubs, which north raised to 5-clubs. East doubled. Very wisely the declarer did not redouble, or East would have saved money by bidding 5-diamonds. He had South dared bid a grand slam in clubs.

West led his top trump, in an attempt to cut down cross-ruffing. South won with the 4-spot and ruffed by dummy. The declarer led a low spade. East hopped with his ace. South ruffed. Dummy trumped another spade and South led his last heart, leading South's hearts established. It was time to pull trumps. The pack of clubs picked up the last opposing club. South ruffed himself in by leading a low heart from dummy. He spread his cards, claiming fulfillment of the doubled small slam contract, with a single overtrick.

Can South Go Game at Spades?



South played the hand at 4-spades, doubled by West. The opening lead was the king of clubs. Before Monday see whether game can be made against the best subsequent play of his adversaries.

GALAHAD HAS STOP-OFF AT HOT EYE TOWN

meeting to order and directed Secretary Minge to read the minutes of the previous session.

Minge had not been idle. He had gone straight to Hattie—not exactly straight, of course, but had gone to Hattie. She had been doing a bit of thinking in the absence of the men. She could hardly think better when there were no men around.

She had dreamed of marrying the handsome stranger because he was handsome. Then she had insisted on the marriage to save him from destruction. But she had to admit that his chivalry had departed as fast as his subsidy had returned. He had done everything he could to get out of the marriage and the town.

Who was the fellow, anyway? He might be a tinhorn gambler. He might have been put off the train for lack of railroad fare. Why should she sacrifice herself for an unknown and an outlaw? No! She resolved that she would never be Mrs. Harold Snowden or Mrs. J. Galahad Oglesby or Mrs. Whatever. She could continue as she began.

Then Minge reeled in, sobbing. She demanded:

"Now what you blubbering about you big baby?"

"You're going to marry Hart, and it breaks my yart."

"What's it to you who I marry, seein' you don't want to marry me yourself?"

"Of course I do! I'll die if I don't."

"Aw, go on! Why should you want to marry me?"

"Because I love you, you dum fool."

"Well, I suppose that's as close to a proposal as you'll ever come. So let's go to Joe Garcia's and get married."

"Wo—you and me?—us?"

"If you want me grab ine quick."

"Ha! Oh Hat, you don't mean it —really mean it. You—"

"Aw, shut up and git goin'!"

COME ALONG POPS!

Minge and Hattie were hardly man and wife before the Hot Eye Chamber of Commerce and its almost extinguished visitor set out in search of the absconding secretary.

The municipal and the matrimonial processions met in front of the Pantatorium. At sight of Hattie, Oglesby flung his hands wide with a joyous cry:

"Come to marma, mlife, mwife, mall! Fly with me to nearest peace of the Justice and be made one in bons of holy hatrimony."

Minge advanced in lofty wrath, dragging his bride. Hattie barely managed to prevent him from smiting his defeated rival with anything more heartseaking than hard words. Oglesby, however was in a mood of such universal love that he tried to embrace Minge, calling him his best man. Minge, dour of Manage Minge, ashy of the chloromerce of camber. When at last he was made to realize the truth his bleary eyes wavered from Minge to Hattie and he reproached her bitterly.

"Don't tell me my ladye fayre—was cyse and ease—is already the wife of another. Don't tell me such perdifly is yeale. Don't tell me! I can't abair it! Why, it's downright treachery. It's deadly chilling. My dearest friend! Mincemeat turns out after all these years—dastes out! Mincemeat, O, thass bad! Thass terrible but that you Miss Hattie Smallpox-O, fairless female, of all should stab me mind back before my very face—I can't believe it! It's unabiingpossibletable!"

He actually tried to win Hattie back, to lead her aside and conspire with her to fly with him and abandon both Minge and Hot Eye. The enchanted citizens swarming in the streets at midnight gave him the universal Romeo slaughtered before their eyes if the shrill whistle of the marshal had not just then pierced the sunset air and inspired Hattie to a solution of the riddle.

"I tell you what! You boys hustle Harold to the depot and slam him on that train."

The entire company of mourners fell upon the struggling Oglesby and rushed him to the station. There Chesterfield, in his official capacity as railroad agent, turned him over to the conductor and the brakemen with the most positive instructions:

"Take this guy's far as you go and then transfer him to the end of the line. Then one of the worl's too close for comfort."

Oglesby, wrapped in the fervid embrace of the conductor and the brakemen, was still shrieking for Hattie when a train pulled out. The brakeman and the conductor were jerking him and telling him how to behave. Suddenly he looked aside and his cries made Hattie's heart ache, yet as pleasantly as hearts can ache, for after all it is rare, the supreme womanly privilege of clinging to the husband of choice when Amor the desperate lover of her discarded was carried away by force. What a wedding night!

The memory was a rich solace to her and aided a glow even to the kitchen stove on Minge's ranch when she was cooking supper for a squad of smelly cowhands whose vocabularies contrasted woefully with Harold's. She forgot Oglesby's faults and remembered only his poetry. No one in Hot Eye ever heard of him again. Probably Marge got him. But Hattie got most out of him. To Hattie he became legend, the myth of a sorrowful god who descended into her life and redeemed it before he was translated.

As she often reminded the blissful Minge, it took four men and a railroad crew to keep her from being dragged away to a Fifth avenue palace by an infatuated New Yorker. That was the last of some class with Helen of Troy. Besides, she realized that, if it had not been for Galahad, she might never have gained that beautiful title, which is never, has never been, can never be pronounced as it is spelled—"Mrs."

The noted "Leaning Tower of Pisa" was not built in a perpendicular plane and slopes at its foundation in order to produce the present leaning. Nutting it in another way, he would be violating the principle of subtle architectural illusion was a favorite practice of the period when this tower was erected and the illusion were not the original aim of the builders. Towers and buildings were frequently built in inclined planes to heighten the architectural effects.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

by WILLIAM FERGUSON

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THERE WERE ABOUT FORTY MILLION ANTELOPE IN NORTH AMERICA AT ONE TIME! THE SPANISH EXPLORERS SAW THEM ON ALL SIDES. NOW THERE ARE BUT A FEW THOUSAND OF THESE BEAUTIFUL ANIMALS LEFT.

BOTH THE MALE AND FEMALE HAVE HORNS, WHICH, CURIOUSLY, THEY SHED EACH AUTUMN! BUT ONLY THE OUTER SHELL OF THE HORN IS MOLTED. THE BONY CORE REMAINS.

CROSS SECTION OF HORN, SHOWING CORE.

The PRONGHORN ANTELOPE...

AN ANIMAL WHICH COMBINES THE FEATURES OF THE GIRAFFE, GOAT, ANTELOPE, AND DEER.

The ANTELOPE IS CONSIDERED THE FASTEST NATIVE ANIMAL IN AMERICA! IT HAS BEEN CLOCKED AT FORTY-FIVE MILES PER HOUR.

ON ITS RUMP THE ANTELOPE HAS A LARGE, WHITE PATCH, THE HAIRS OF WHICH CAN BE RAISED ON END TO FLASH A DANGER SIGNAL TO OTHER ANTELOPE

UNLIKE MOST HOOFED ANIMALS, THERE ARE ONLY TWO TOES ON EACH FOOT.

WHEN ONLY A WEEK OLD, A BABY ANTELOPE CAN OUTRUN MOST DOGS! WHEN NEWLY-BORN, IT ESCAPES ENEMIES BY LYING MOTIONLESS ON THE GROUND.

THE PRONGHORN HAS NO NEAR RELATIVES IN ALL THE WORLD! THE CLOSEST, PERHAPS, IS THE CHAMOIS, WHICH INHABITS THE LOFTY CRAGS OF THE EUROPEAN ALPS.
